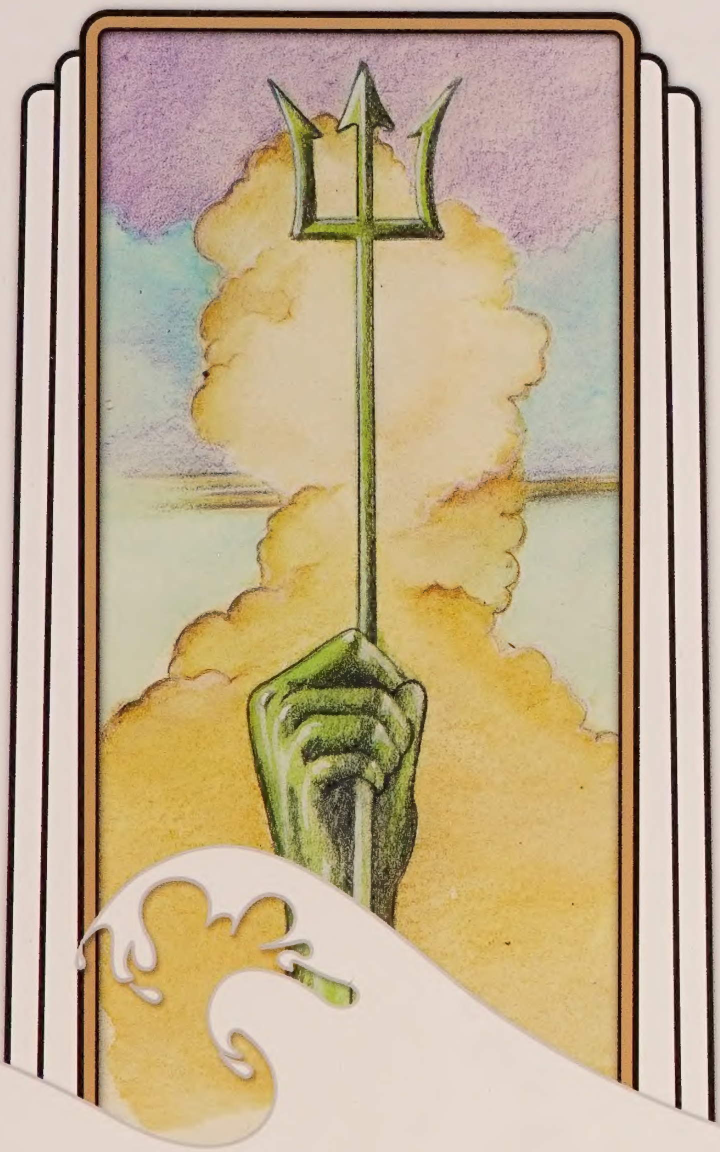
UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY

ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND



TWO THOUSAND AND ELEVEN

Kristen Marie Dickmann

Class of 2011

Kristen didn't just love life, she loved living, and she lived with a perpetual smile radiating across her face. In her world of limitless possibilities and crazy math logic, she basked in the glow of a "D" on her Physics midterm—because to her it represented gaining 67% new knowledge in only 18 weeks—and her pure Dink reasoning for selecting the #6 for her Navy volleyball jersey: her sister sported the #3 and Kristen was twice as good.

On the volleyball court, Kristen was a fierce competitor who left everything she had on the court every time she stepped onto it, smiling as she played any position or any role asked of her, genuinely happy just for the opportunity to play. Kristen began her only season with Navy recovering from a broken leg and using her well-decorated cane—quacked at by her company and nicknamed Grandpa by her team. She left imprints of her head on bleachers and walls as she dove relentlessly after balls, never seeing obstacles to keeping the play alive.

Undoubtedly, Kristen's most incredible feat lays in all that she gave to others through her indomitable spirit. She accepted the Academy's challenges with her usual aplomb. During Plebe Summer, Kristen wrote home asking for treats for her Lima company-mates. Knowing the candy would be confiscated if discovered, Kristen asked for it to be packed in Tampon boxes, quite confident that her cadre would neither suspect nor discover anything. She saw every sit-up as bringing her one crunch closer to a cherished 6-pack, and asserted that it would be the Navy's failure for not working her hard enough—certainly not any personal shortcomings—if she did not develop perfect abs. Kristen's running ability became legendary when she broke rank and sprinted past her company, frantically searching for a bathroom. She sang her way to front row seats for Brad Paisley with the help of a lint roller, paper flower, and her 'online coolness.' For the only time in his 4 years at the Academy, her 21st company squad leader, Mr. Smith, said he smiled through the Dark Ages because Kristen always could find some way to brighten his day, especially when it involved flattening an unsuspecting Mr. Seipp. Upon commissioning, Kristen had hoped to pilot a C-2 Greyhound, so she could bring smiles to the fleet being "the best damn mailman in the Navy."

To every teammate with whom she played, and to every mid with whom she proudly served, Kristen modeled commitment, determination, and respect. Kristen loved her company, her team, and the Academy, and gave selflessly of her time and energy, quite unaware of her impact on those around her. And in the end, her cover topped Herndon, while her smile left an indelible mark on everyone who knew her.

"I came to the Naval Academy to become the best leader I can. I walked onto the yard one afternoon, and I knew right then...this is where I belong."

The Lucky Bag is a collection of all events occurrring during a year at the United States Naval Academy. Purposed for creating an eternalized memory, the nation's largest color yearbook is the finest testament to all graduates.

Chain of Command

We are led by the most powerful leaders in the world. Our chain of command expects the best of us and so we are held to a higher standard as the future Naval and Marine Corp Officers who will one day lead sailors and marines in the service of our country. Just as a ship cannot sail without its captain, the Academy cannot exist without its leadership.

Academics

As midshipmen, we are no strangers to the world of academia. Michelson, Chauvenet , Sampson, Maury, Luce, and Rickover are our battlefields. This is where we reach our limits with Calculus, make a circuitous route around EE, force ourselves through Statics, visit the strange worlds of Western Civ, experiment with Chemistry, and eventually we navigate ourselves to graduation.

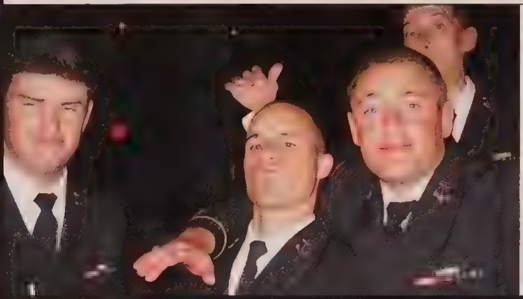
Class History

Every midshipman's dream is of that glorious day they get to throw their covers in the air and join the ranks of officers. The Class of 2011 has finally realized that dream. As the other classes bid us all a fond farewell and wish us good luck out in the Fleet, we look back on the four years we spent here by the bay where the Severn joins the tide. May we never forget the lessons we have learned or the friendships we have forged while being a part of this timeless institution.

First Class History



Rewind

Though the Class of 2011 just recently comprised the staff responsible for detailing and training the incoming plebes, it was not that long ago when they themselves were plebes entering the Academy on I-Day. While their minds have forced this awkward experience out of their memories, photographic evidence still remains of their trials and efforts.

IHTFP

As the years go by, it is interesting to note that more and more Midshipmen are at the Academy to "fly planes." Some even get this admirable saying engraved on the inside of their class rings. It is safe to say that by the time Commissioning Week rolls around, every graduating 1/C Midshipman is a "pilot" inside.

First Class History Class of 2011

As the Class of 2011 disperses into the fleet, they carry with them the traditions and memories they will never forget from the past four years at the Academy. Just as their 50 year link in the chain, the Class of 1961, 2011 will one day return as mentors for the class of 2061 as they enter plebedom.

Last Summer as a Mid!

Fun with Fleet

In a last ditch effort to teach the Mids about the fleet and the Marine Corps, the Academy sends the Mids out into the Fleet or Marine Corps one last time. This is to show the firsties what they might be interested in for Service Selection. They will be sent on a variety of cruises, like plebe summer, aviation cruise, surface cruise, SEAL cruise, EOD cruise, Leather Neck., etc. The made many memorable memories and also learned many valuable lessons for their upcoming military career.

2/C Summer

Summer training is the one time of the year when we get to leave the classrooms behind and get some hands on experience. For the Second Class it means one thing: an awesome block of PROTRAMID.

So long working blues...

..and hello cammies, khakis and flight suits. During the month long PROTRAMID (or BROTRAMID as some like to call it) the second class get a taste of the Fleet and Marine Corps. Each week is dedicated to a different service selection. The second class spent a motivating week with the Marines and "got some" while shooting various weapons, doing PT, and eating MREs. For those of a different temperament, there were plenty of chill times with the pilots during aviation week. Some preferred being under the sea and they were not disappointed when everyone spent a day underway on a nuclear-powered submarine. Last, but not least, was SWO week, where the second class got to experience firsthand the world's most powerful surface navy in action. Certainly not your average college summer!

Below: MIDN 2/C Jess Palacio prepares for her flight in a T-34 trainer.

Over the course of a month, second class get such varied experiences during PROTRAMID as flying in Navy aircraft, diving under the ocean in the world's most advanced nuclear-powered submarines, firing automatic weapons with the Marine Corps, and experiencing the thunder of naval surface fire support.

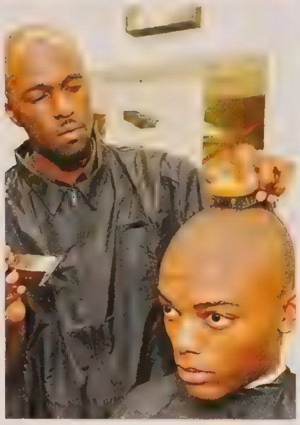
The Longest Day

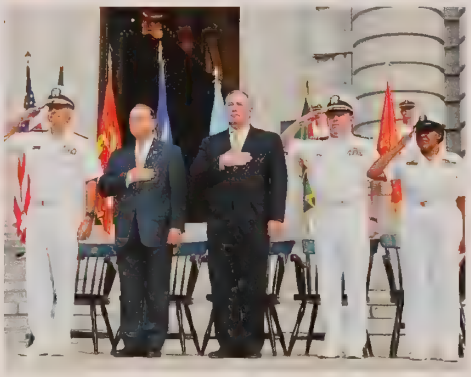
Say farewell to your sobbing mother, kiss your long locks goodbye, and embrace the military lifestyle. It all starts with I-day, a day few wish to remember but most never will forget.

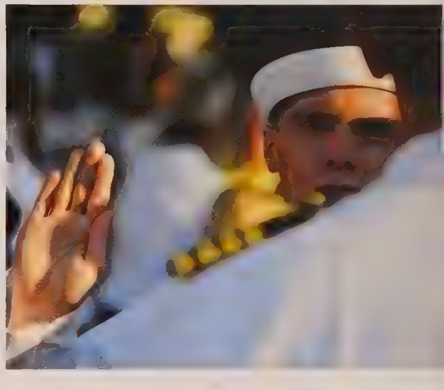
Induction Day

The plebes wait as patiently as they can for the swearing in ceremony to finish so they may see their family one last time.



"I do solemnly swear,"
On Induction, or I-day, all Plebes take the oath of office, acknowledging their allegiance to defend the Constitution without mental reservation.





It's the journey...

One thousand, two hundred, and forty-five young men and women swarmed the Naval Academy grounds on July 1st, 2010. After one last embrace with loved ones, the new Plebes entered an entirely new, hostile environment, trading in their first names for six-digit alpha numbers , their civilian clothes for whiteworks, their long hair for military regulation haircuts, and their beloved Twilight novels for their new favorite book, Reefpoints . They learned only to speak when spoken to, and even then, only to use their five-basic responses, sandwiching everything between two sir's or ma'am's. They learned the proper way to don a dixie cup, render a salute, keep their eyes on the boat and hold their "trash" at 90 degrees. Finally, the Plebes lugged their heavy, stark white laundry bags to their new home, Bancroft Hall. There, they caught their breath and anxiously awaited meeting their new

Plebe Summer

After six long weeks of early mornings, motivated socks, daily rates, and seemingly endless gray space, the Plebes finally become indoctrinated members of the Brigade.

Put some PEP in your step.
Plebes became quite familiar with the physical mission of the Academy over the summer, waking up at 0530 every morning for PEP with their favorite motivator, Major Antonelli.

roommates, desperately hoping that someone would have a remote idea as to what exactly was going on. Eventually the exhausted and utterly bewildered Plebes were herded back to the Rotunda to take the Oath of Office and officially become members of the Class of 2014. Blinded by the sea of fresh white works, and worn out from the excitement of I-day, most Plebes could barely keep their eyes open for their own swearing in, but everyone woke up when the F/A-18 Super Hornets ripped through the sky in their traditional flyover. The plebes returned to their proud parents for one final farewell, and after the shortest thirty minutes of the summer, everyone sloppily marched back to spend their first night in Mother B. After singing their first "Blue and Gold" and turning the lights out, many Plebes found it hard to fall asleep that first night, anxious to embark on the long, strange journey known as Plebe Summer.

Something for everyone
Over the summer, Plebes are kept quite busy, attending leadership classes, learning basic sailing skills, testing their mettle on the obstacle and endurance course, and discovering how to march in step.

Above: Let's go!

The Dant brings some motivation to morning PEP.

Left:

A MIDN 1/C detailer yells out cadence for a regimental run.

The six long weeks of Plebe Summer brought both stunning triumphs and demoralizing defeats to the Class of 2014. Every day they were tested to find intrinsic motivation to get through the rigorous morning workouts, stressful uniform and rack races, endless briefs, all while adjusting to the discipline of the military lifestyle. Relying on their classmates for support and encouragement got most of the Plebes through the summer. Others simply counted down the days until they would be reunited with their parents, hoping only for the summer to be over as soon as possible. Whatever the method, all the new 4/C underwent a drastic transformation over the summer and emerged ready to join the Brigade of Midshipmen.

4/C Parents' Weekend

Six weeks and thirty-three black flag days later, the Plebes finally were reunited with their parents and friends.

Reunited and it feels so good,
After being separated from their closest family members for two months, the Plebes came to truly cherish the time they finally got to spend with them on Parents' Weekend.

Fourth Class, Dismissed.

This simple, three word command was the sweetest thing the Plebes had heard in almost two months--aside from, of course, one of Rabbi Phillips' anchorprayers. With their summer whites still immaculately fresh, the Plebes excitedly stepped-it-out of Tecumseh Court to find their families and significant others in the massive crowd gathered on Stribling Walk. After much hugging and kissing came the stares of disbelief. What a difference six weeks at the Naval Academy could make on the class of 2014. After everyone overcame the initial shock of seeing their son or daughter in uniform came the endless questions regarding what exactly had transpired over the past few weeks.

Who are you?
The transformation from civilian to midshipman can be quite shocking. Many parents struggled to distinguish their own children out of the crowd of some 1250 identical looking Plebes.

The first salute

Before hugging their deeply missed parents, Plebes with mothers or fathers in the military exchanged their first formal salute, beaming with pride to be continuing their parent's tradition of service.

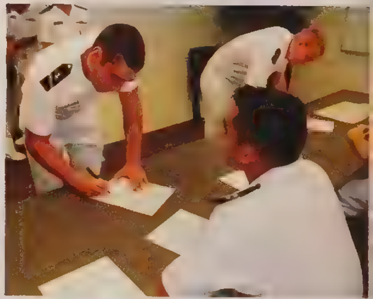
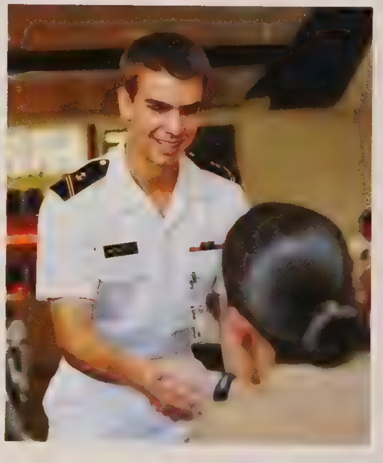
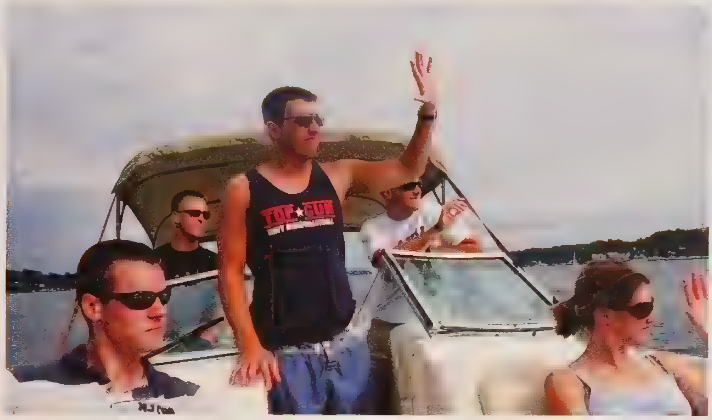
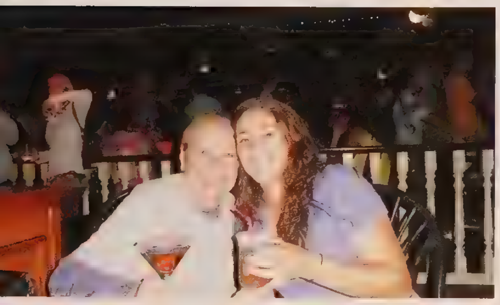
During the fall semester of 2/C year the time comes to sign seven more years of your life away. For some it is a celebration of the two years that have already passed in a Midshipmen's Naval Academy career. For others, it is merely a recognition that they have made their commitment to serve their country.





2/C Parent Weekend





Pep Rallies

"I...I believe...I believe that...I believe that we...I believe that we will...I believe that we will win!"

Belief goes a long way.

Before all of the major football games of the season, the Brigade gathered in Dahlgren or on Farragut for some "mandatory fun". Never to disappoint, the Commandant, Superintendent, Electric Brigade, and Bill the Goat attended each Pep Rally, collaborating with the cheerleaders to motivate the midshipmen to victory. Cars were smashed, mules were burned in effigy, and many silly frisbees were tossed about, (and then used in male covers to prevent premature youngster smiles from forming), but in the end, everyone agreed that Pep Rallies truly did bring the Brigade together for a common goal---victory.

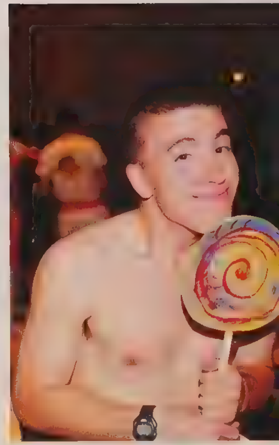
Halloween



Midshipmen know that Halloween isn't just for kids. Only at the Academy, would we change the night from the 31st of October to the 28th, to better suit our schedule. Following the colorful costume dinner, the search for treats began. While some costumes could be found at any local college or university, most had been at least touched by the influence of Bancroft Hall. And for the fourth class, the question remained, did your room buy enough candy for all the upperclass "trick or treaters?"

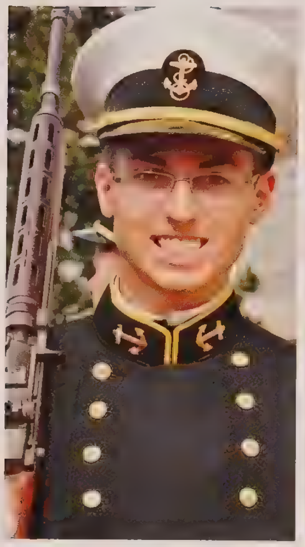
Parades



Military drill is a time-honored tradition at the Naval Academy through which generations of midshipmen have developed personal discipline. This past year, at the conclusion of each parade , we passed in review, marching in the footsteps of graduates who have distinguished themselves in both peace and war. We have saluted the honoree who reviewed the Brigade. To those observing their first formal parade, nothing was more impressive than the backdrop of sailboats flying full spinnakers, the thunderous gun salute, and the crisp drill movements of the Brigade.

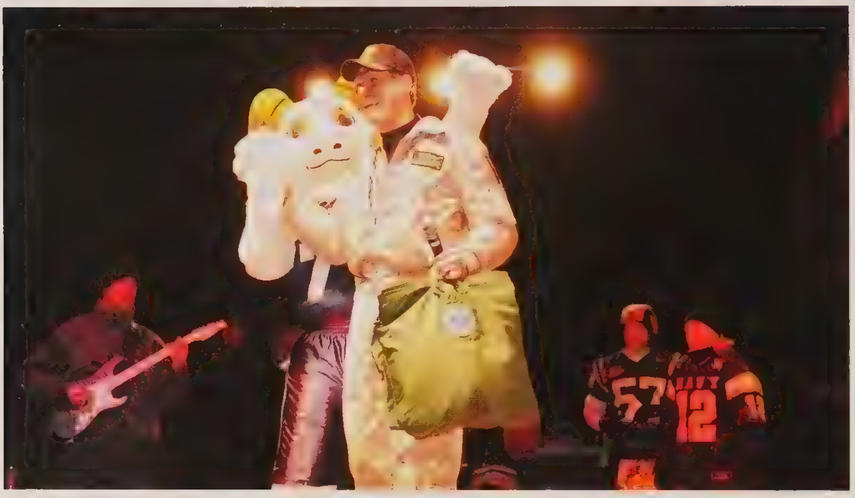
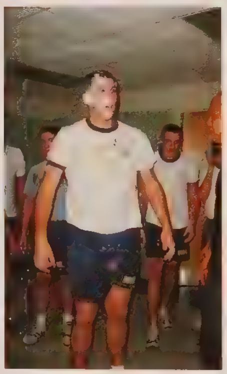
ARMY WEEK



A Week of Mayhem and Spirit

What better way to prepare for the greatest football rivalry in the country than by playing pranks on each other? Whether it be pouring out your drinks on a well deserving upper class in a Wildman or "borrowing" your local Woops uniforms, everyone finds a way to join in on the fun of Army Week.

One of the most distinct signs of Army week is that smell of shaving cream bombs combined with some rotten and putrescent food from King Hall. Mmm Mmm good.



I believe that we will...

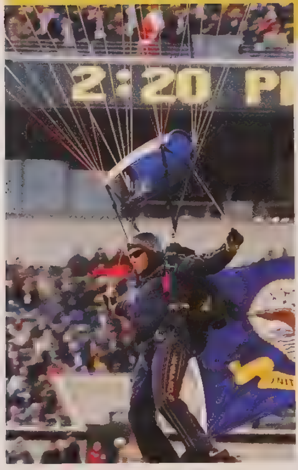
Army vs. Navy



From plebe to firstie, we all wanted the glory that lay on the other side of a Navy win. The Army-Navy game is much more than just a football game. It means more than any contest between two historic rivals fighting for a regional, or even a national title. Televised across the country and around the world, the game is truly an American institution.

While the Brigade and the Corps of Cadets filled the stands in Philadelphia, Sailors and Soldiers across the globe crowded around their televisions to watch the drama play out. They took a part in the day too, by submitting their support in the form of their own "spirit spots" shown on the stadium video screens for the crowd to see.

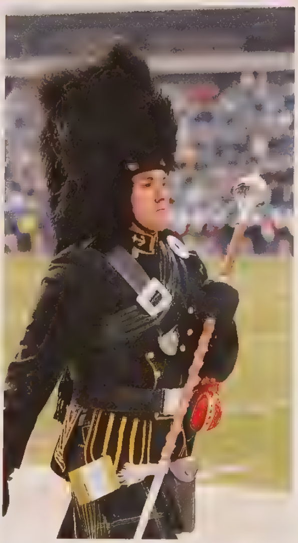
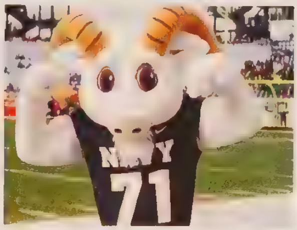
Go Navy! Beat Army!

At the end of the day, Navy clinched its ninth straight victory, 31-17.





As we left the stadium with our friends and families for a weekend of liberty in Philadelphia, we were proud of how the season ended on such a glorious high note.

Navy's Eighth Straight Bowl Game

The Navy Midshipmen have had the honor of going to a bowl game every years since 2003. This year was no exception; the Midshipmen had the honor of taking part in the Poinsettia Bowl in Sunny Southern California, which was not so sunny it turns out. California had a series of rain storms uncommon to SoCal and the stadium ended up flooding. Luckily for the Midshipmen and Aztecs alike the rain stopped and flood water receded just in time for the march on and kick off. The Midshipmen played valiantly in the game and showed Southern California how Navy Football is played... With the triple Option of course!

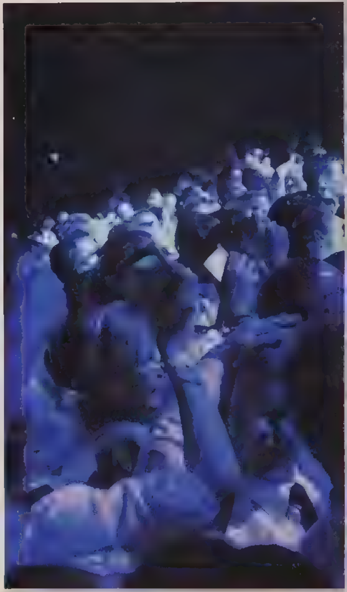
The return from the holiday leave is never easy, as we are welcomed by the gray skies, and the ever present threat of a cold and rainy walk to class. As certain as the Dark Ages come each winter, they soon melt away as spring approaches. From plebe to firstie, everyone knows brighter days are just around the corner.

Dark Ages

The plebes counted down the days and appreciated life more as their lives improved each day. Firsties were gleeful about about their service assignments and looked forward to commissioning. Second class picked up their class rings and tried to find a Ring Dance date. Youngsters searched for more defined roles in the Brigade and look forward to legally don civvies and drive cars in Annapolis.

Brigade Concerts



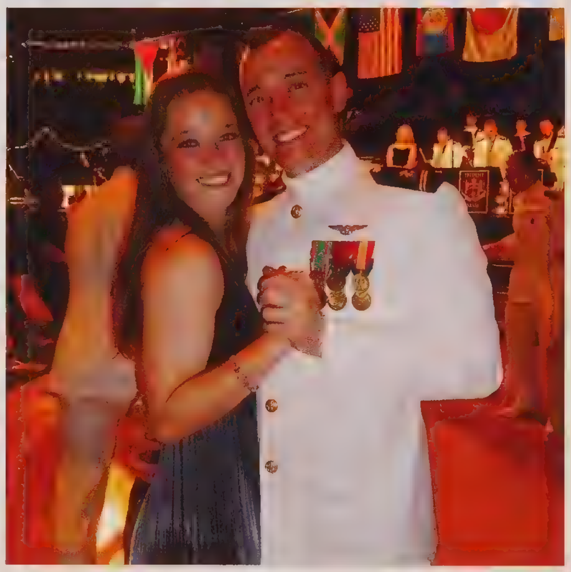
Annual Fall Concert
For the annual Brigade Fall Concert the Mids had the privilege of hosting 3OH!3, Ke$ha, and the Goo Goo Dolls. The Mids were ecstatic about the line up for the concert and showed it by selling out all the seats. These concerts were what was needed by the Brigade to break up the routine of life at the United States Naval Academy.

International Ball

Honoring individuals and cultures from around the world. Celebrating global relations.

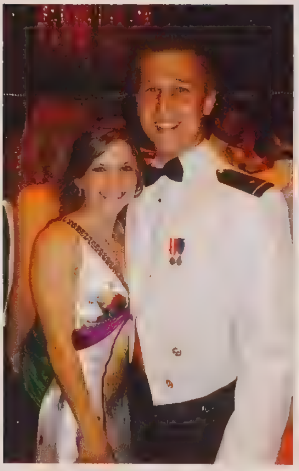
Mother-B Boys

The Mother-B boys, pictured right break dancing during the Ball, have also made their own spirit spot to show at Navy Football games.



A Taste of Culture

Before the dance floor opens up and the official festivities begin, Midshipmen involved in various international clubs at the Academy are provided the opportunity to share a bit of their culture with the Brigade. They perform segments of dances from around the world such as salsa, break dancing, flamenco, Scottish Highland dancing, and swing. This not only introduces other Midshipmen to different styles of dancing, but also to the backgrounds that inspired them. After the exhibition, Midshipmen are encouraged to mingle with the foreign officials and service members in attendance to serve as a representative of not only the United States, but also the Navy.



Dirty Dancing

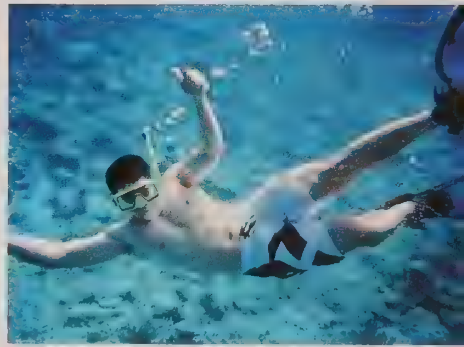
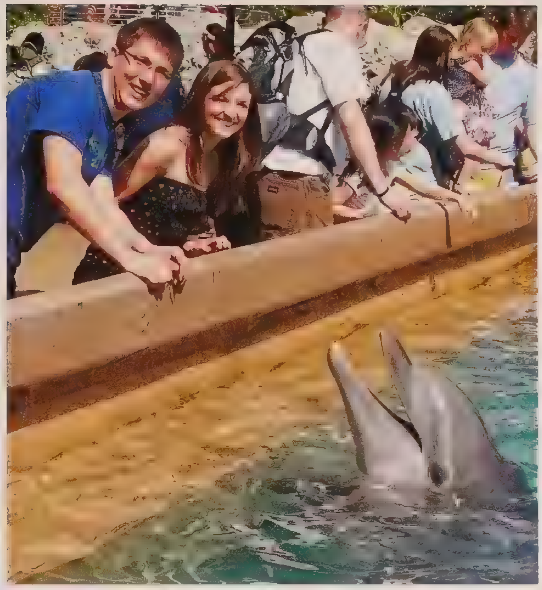
Spring Break

What to do with a free week...
To round off the "Dark Ages," there is no better way than having a free week and traveling to exotic locals like Puerto Rico, Miami, and Europe. Fun in the sun is the best way to stave off the onset of depression from the dark depths of winter and snow from Mother B.



HEY MON NO PROBLEM

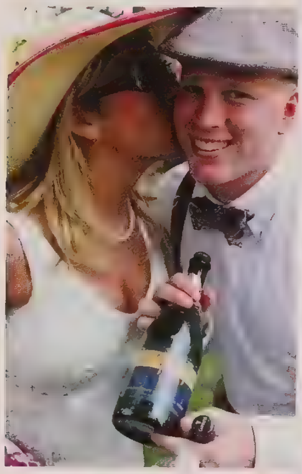


Intramural Warriors

Upon the Fields of Friendly Strife

All Midshipmen are required to participate in some kind of athletic activity while at the Naval Academy. Although the Naval Academy is known for its various elite varsity sports programs, only a select few have the honor of participating on these great teams. For the rest of the Brigade they carry the infamous title of Intramural Warriors. These warriors take to the field of battle on Monday through Thursday... when it's not raining. Their battles take many forms including, football, soccer, handball, basketball, ultimate frisbee and many others. Prior to the upcoming battle the warriors made the long trek through the elements to Hospital Point. This trek made Spring feel like Death Valley, and Winter feel like Siberia. And still after this courageous trek the warriors still faced the prospect of an epic battle against the determined foe of a rival company.

Croquet



Middies Against the Johnnies

The croquet match against the "Johnnies" is a long standing Naval Academy tradition, and it has always been the job of 28th Company to recruit, train, and equip the team who will go to battle against our friendly neighbors on the Severn. It is also a tradition for the upper class Midshipmen who attend the Croquet match to dress up in an outrageous fashion unorder to intimidate the "Johnnies" (or was it just to be stupid?). But every year the Croquet match takes place and it is a great time, with lots of festivities. The Trident Brass comes and plays for awhile, there are many BBQ and cook outs going, and of coarse lots and lots of dancing, fun, and friends.

Plebes' Trial by Fire

It's a test for the new rising Youngsters...

Sea Trials. The second to last step to becoming youngsters; the Naval Academy`s Crucible. Hoorah. And what a day it was for the class of 2014. Starting off the day was the dark phase which included a beach assault, tire flip, and many other things; next were the regular phases that every mid would be familiar with, bear pits, pugil sticks, rooms cleared, logs carried, the pool phase, and of coarse Wet and Sandy. 2014 was tired, hungry, and thirsty but they pushed through and persevered. This was due mainly to their strength and potential as a class but also in part to the good leadership of the class of 2012 and 2013. Together these three classes found themselves crawling through mud, lifting ammo cans, and running with rucks all over the yard and Naval Station. After a grueling 15 hours the PTing was over and the plebes and upperclass alike attended the closing ceremony in Dahlgren, to hear a few words from the Supe and Dant; this included the order to CARRY ON!

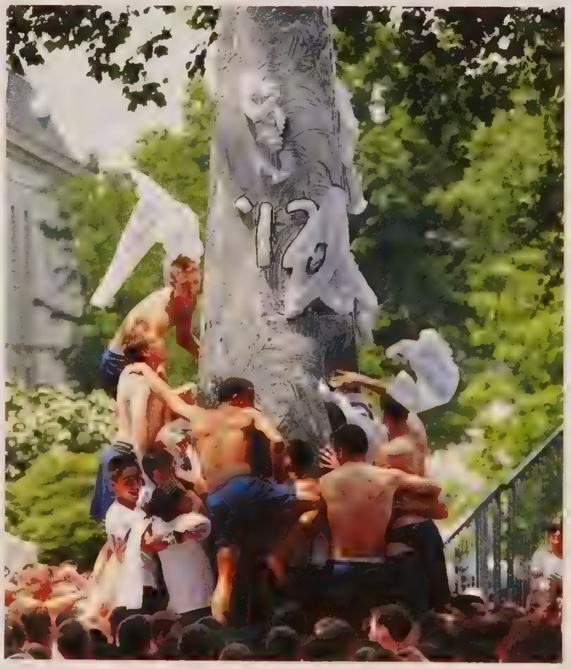
HERNDON 2014

The road to the end of Plebedom!

After the class of 2013 was denied grease on the Herndon climb, the fate of the tradition was in jeopardy. Herndon is named after Captain William L. Herndon, who instead of saving his own life, remained aboard his ship SS Central America with the rest of his crew as it went down on 12 SEP 1857. The class of 2014 and those to follow are proud to see that the tradition is back in full.

After almost three grueling hours the class of 2014 could chant "Plebes no more" to celebrate the end of plebe year.



GREASE IS BACK!

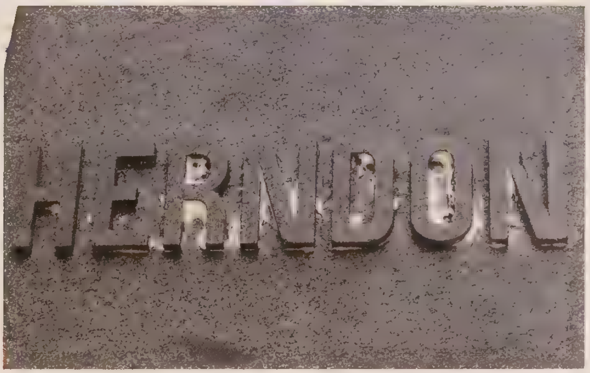
No Longer Plebes!

Aftermath

Discarded blue rims and socks remain behind used to remove Crisco from the monument.

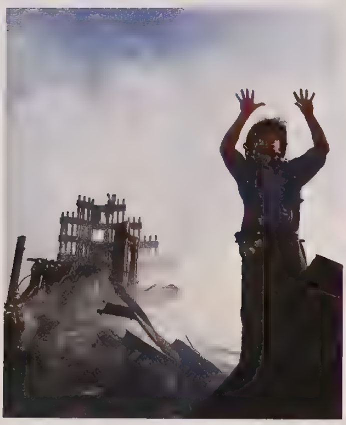
For a good cause

At the Herndon climb participants were given the opportunity to donate shoes to victims of recent tornadoes and floods.



What was done...

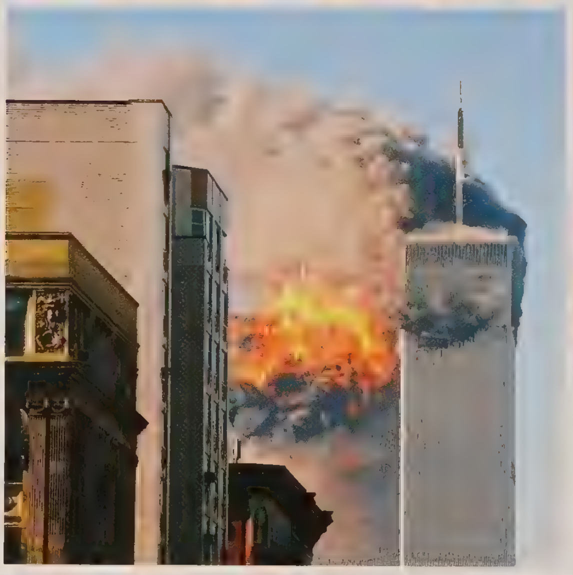
On September 11, 2001, a series of coordinated suicide attacks by al-Qaeda upon the United States took place. On that morning, 19 al-Qaeda terrorists hijacked four commercial passenger jet airliners.



Both towers collapsed within two hours.

The Attack:

The hijackers intentionally crashed two of the airliners into the Twin Towers. The third was crashed into The Pentagon, just outside Washington, D.C. The fourth plane crashed into a field near Shanksville in rural Pennsylvania after some of its passengers and flight crew bravely attempted to retake control of the plane.



Nearly 3,000 victims died in the attacks.

What's been said...

"We will not tire, we will not falter, and we will not fail."- President Bush

"Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead!"-VADM Miller, USN

"I believe that we have won!" CAPT Clark, USN

"Our enemies have made the mistake that America's enemies always make. They saw liberty and thought they saw weakness. And now, they see defeat."
- President Bush

"Tonight, I can report to the American people and to the world that the United States has conducted an operation that killed Osama bin Laden, the leader of al Qaeda, and a terrorist who's responsible for the murder of thousands of innocent men, women, and children.

It was nearly 10 years ago that a bright September day was darkened by the worst attack on the American people in our history. The images of 9/11 are seared into our national memory -- hijacked planes cutting through a cloudless September sky; the Twin Towers collapsing to the ground; black smoke billowing up from the Pentagon; the wreckage of Flight 93 in Shanksville, Pennsylvania, where the actions of heroic citizens saved even more heartbreak and destruction.

And yet we know that the worst images are those that were unseen to the world. The empty seat at the dinner table. Children who were forced to grow up without their mother or their father. Parents who would never know the feeling of their child's embrace. Nearly 3,000 citizens taken from us, leaving a gaping hole in our hearts." - President Obama

"You can be sure that the American spirit will prevail over this tragedy."
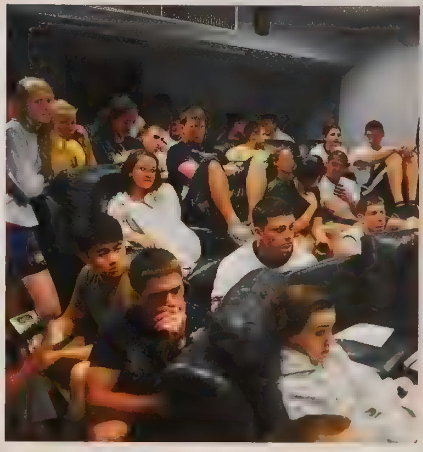
- Colin Powell

Osama bin Laden's Demise

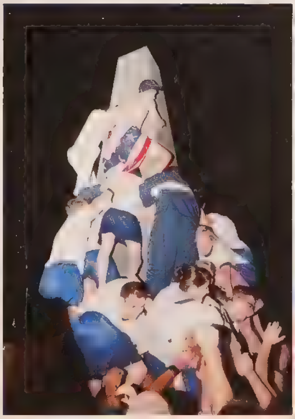
The United States Naval Academy celebrates justice and a job well done.

Operation Neptune Spear

On May 2, 2011, United States President Barack Obama ordered Operation Neptune Spear to be carried out. The CIA operation was carried out by SEAL Team Six in conjunction with CIA operatives. The raid on bin Laden's compound in Bilal Town, Abbottabad, Pakistan was launched from Afghanistan. After the raid U.S. forces took bin Laden's body to Afghanistan for identification, then buried it at sea within 24 hours of his death.



"Justice has been done."



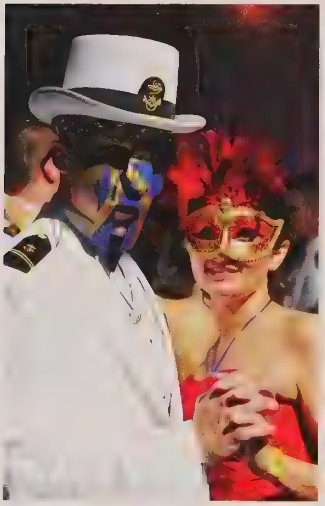
Plebes no more?
An unofficial Herndon climb took place in the celebration with even some upperclass participating. I guess those youngsters thought 2 ungreased climbs equate to one greased one!

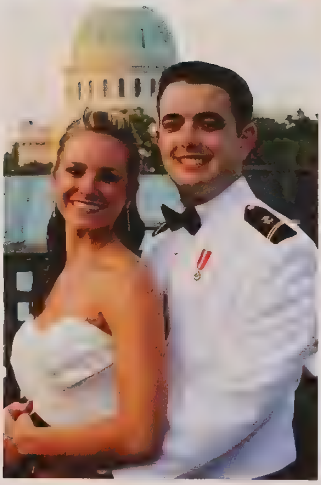
2/C Ring Dance

What happens at Ring Dance.......stays at Ring Dance.

Tradition

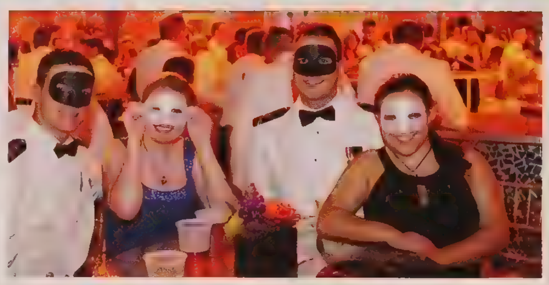
The Ring Dance was established as a Naval Academy tradition in 1925.

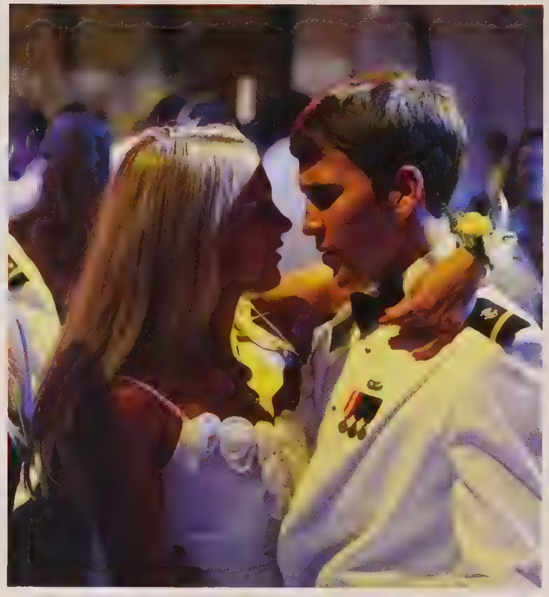




After-Parties

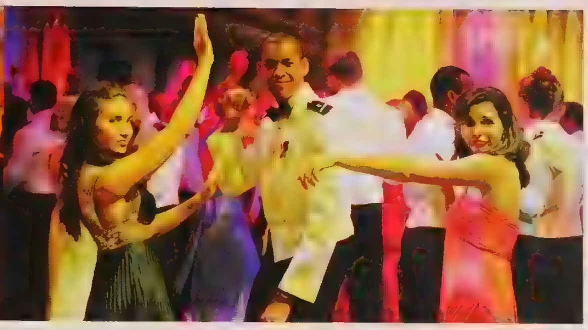
After the 2/C Ring Dance there are many after-parties where the 2/C can celebrate with their dates .

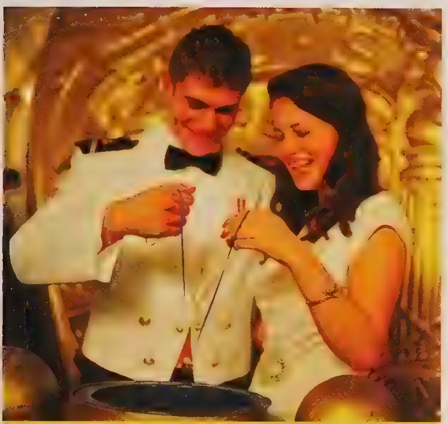




Symbolism

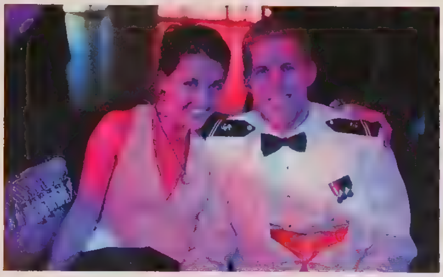
Ring Dance for the Second Class is as much a right-of-passage as Herdon is for the Fourth Class. At this event, Second Class Mids officially receive their class rings and have them blessed by dipping them into the "waters of the seven seas." As the tradition now unfolds, Navy chaplains gather and mix water from the seven seas then dip each ring into this water which symbolizes the mids being "wedded" to the Navy.

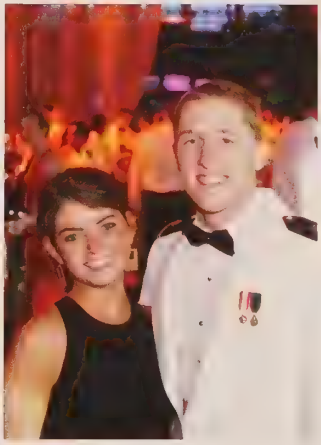




Previous Tradition

Previously, the Second Classmen put on their rings after completing their final nav exam. As they left the building, the Firsties grabbed them and dragged them to Dewey Basin where they were then thrown into the Severn. Unfortunately, in 1924 one Midshipman, Leicester R. Smith, did not surface after being thrown in because he hit his head on the seawall. His drowning prompted USNA to change the 2/C ring tradition.





Formal Wear

The dance is a formal affair. Anyone in attendance will see the Mids at their "spit-and-polish" formal mess-dress best.

Location

The Second Class Ring Dance is typically held inside of Dahlgren Hall.

COLOR PARADE

Recognizing 1st Company and 26th Company as Color Companies for the 2011 Academic Year

Three cheers for the Color Companies!

Colorful History

During the last parade of the year, two companies are honored for their exceptional performance throughout both the fall and spring semesters. This year 1st Company, who was recognized as Color Company for ranking first amongst all thirty companies in the fall semester, passed the torch to 26th Company for their stellar performance this past spring semester. Although 1/C Midshipmen were discouraged to partake in the long lasting tradition of leaving their shoes on the parade field, those with leadership billets did not miss out on the opportunity to take a little swim to cool off in the Severn after the long parade. Just like all other company staff within the Brigade, MIDN 1/C Jessica Grupp, 10th Company XO, found out just how strong the plebes in her company were as they chased, carried, and threw her into the Santee Basin by the sailing center.

The End of the Beginning

May 27, 2011, marked the day that the Class of 2011 will always remember: their graduation from the United States Naval Academy. Friends, family, and the underclassmen of the Brigade watched with awe as each First Class Midshipman was finally and officially sworn into office as either and Ensign in the U.S. Navy or a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps. Many had dreamt of this day for as long as they could remember and had been anxiously awaiting its arrival since the beginning of the year. This year's speaker was U.S. Secretary of Defense, Robert Gates.

The names of every graduate were rattled off in alphabetical order by company. All of the newly commissioned officers patiently waited for their names to be called so they could take the walk across the stage and receive their diploma. Walking across the stage meant something different to each graduate, but the excitement was clear for all to see- whether it was a leap into the air, or a simple handshake with a friend. With school work done and striper positions turned over, the Class of 2011 walked out of Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium with many fond memories of the four years they shared on the banks of the Severn.

Varsity Sports

There are few schools whose athleticism, cohesion, and competitiveness match that of the United States Naval Academy's Varsity Athletic organizations. Not only do varsity athletes uphold themselves to the highest of standards within the Hall as Midshipmen, but they also give their blood, sweat, and tears on the field as teammates. Navy athletic teams are put to the test in more ways than any other team could imagine; and for that, they share a bond unrivaled.

NAVY FOOTBALL

Maintaining a strong tradition of good football, Navy posted a 9-4 record in 2010, appeared in a school-record eighth-consecutive bowl game and won a record ninth-straight game over rival Army (31-17). The senior class finished their career with 35 wins, which is tied for the second most in school history.

The football team's outstanding year including many records and awards won. Quarterback Ricky Dobbs won the Lowes Senior CLASS Award, which is given annually to the most outstanding senior student-athlete in the NCAA's Football Bowl Subdivision and focuses on the total student-athlete; and was also named First-Team All-East. And who can forget Safety Wyatt Middleton's famous 98-yard return for a touchdown against Army.

Senior wide receiver Greg Jones had a monster year for the Midshipmen at wide receiver, catching 33 passes for 662 yards and five touchdowns. Linebacker Trey Grissom saw action in 11 of 13 games in 2010, mostly on special teams,and recorded 11 tackles on the season. He and fellow senior Billy Yarborough were chosen to lead the team out of the tunnel carrying the American flag before every game. Offensive tackle Jeff Battipaglia was a three-year starter and anchor of the offensive line, starting all 40 games that he appeared in. Linebacker Tyler Simmons led the Midshipmen with an incredible 131 tackles in 2010, while forcing three fumbles and recovering three fumbles. Punter Kyle Delahooke averaged 41.2 yards per punt over his three years as Navy's starting punter, the second-best average in school history. Kicker Joe Buckley had an outstanding career nailing 17 of 23 field goal attempts and 75 of his 76 extra point attempts.

Junior guard John Dowd was named an ESPN Division I First-Team Academic All-American by the College Sports Information Director's of America. Dowd is the first Navy football player to be named as a First-Team Academic All-American since 1980 and is just the sixth first-team selection in school history for the sport. Dowd, who carries a 3.92 GPA in mechanical engineering, started all 13 games in the fall for the Midshipmen.

CAPTAIN

"Life can be very challenging and cause a lot of people to fall flat on their faces. Winning every game this season like we planned would have been great, but the lessons we learned as a team prepared us for some of life's toughest challenges. This 2010/2011 Navy football team will be prepared, and I wouldn't trade not one single memory or lesson learned for any trophy nor championship!"
-Ricky Dobbs,
Co-Captain and Quarterback

Women's Volleyball

By: Jenny Rudewicz

At the beginning of August when other Midshipmen were still on summer cruise or leave, the Navy Woman's Volleyball team came back to the Academy to start their two-a-day pre-season. Water bottles in hand, the team would practice in the sauna of Macdonough Hall and lift in Wesley Brown. When they would get free time they would see Step Up 3D and have dance parties in the hall. The team established a Team Fist attitude right from the beginning as they started play. They took lots of road trips and along the way got to see Niagra Falls and New York City. The girls stopped at their favorite restaurant Ruby Tuesday's and always enjoyed a good bus movie. Each game brought battles for every point, cheers, "good games", and lots of hight - fives! The team could not have done it without the support of all their fans. A special thanks to all those who have supported Navy Volleyball! GET EM' GOATS!

Captain Jenny Rudewicz

"My favorite memory of this year was the team trip to Buffalo for a tournament. We crashed a hotel party, saw Niagara Falls, beat Delaware State, and went to Kaitlin Roseti's house for dinner. We laughed for hours at her house as we went through all of her baby and high school pictures!"

SPRINT FOOTBALL

By: Granger Benson

After coming off of a championship season in 2009, which was clinched with a 1 point win over Army, Navy Sprint Football carried its 23 game win streak into the 2010 season. The season proved challenging for the seniors of the class of 2011 because of the loss of the talented class of 2010 and the arrival of new head coach Major NSB extended the win streak to 25 games before losing a close contest to Penn in Saratoga Springs, NY at the Allegiance Bowl. Navy finished the season with a record of 5-2, the second loss coming in a two point loss to Army in the season finale which prevented NSB from clinching its fourth straight Collegiate Sprint Football League title. Seniors Tyler Terronez, Kaleb Kaetterhenry, Jeremy Harbaugh, and Mike Nolanwere all honored with All-CSFL First-Team all-conference selections as were juniors Sean Fergerson, Matt Williams and Zzmar Stone. As a team, NSB set multiple school records in many categories, and continued to represent the Naval Academy as student-athletes of character. Navy is looking ahead to the 2011 season in which it is hungy to avenge the losses to Penn and Army and reclaim the CSFL trophy as league Champions.

Senior: Cart Hall

"It was a disappointing year for us, but I'm not worried about the future of this program. The Sprint Football brotherhood has been left in good hands and they know what it takes to reclaim what is ours. We'll be back."

Women's Soccer

By: Jessica Grupp

The 2010 Women's Soccer season was nothing short of a good time between starting preseason a week early with a week's notice (the plebes were happy), getting skinny cow ice cream for desserts (at least we earned it), scalding our feet on the burning pavement and shards of glass to get to a river with our water tubes that were deflated and child sized, having our coaches serenaded at a Texas restaurant, yelling at Balex and Barker to turn the music up in warm ups, quoting Mean Girls into daily conversation, the dance parties in the locker room, and furthermore growing together as a team. The best description of the 2010 season is with the word "Ubuntu" which was printed on the back of our warmup shirts. It was the fundamental descriptor of our teamwork and defined our family.

The 2010 season started off with two losses in South Carolina but quickly rebounded with a win over Mt. St. Mary's and George Mason in overtime. Throughout the season NWS never lost their tenacity and determination. Each member of the team contributed to the family dynamic in some aspect both on and off the field whether it was 1/C Jess Grupp leading from the front as team captain, 1/C Carissa Younker leading the team in goals, 1/C Christie Calderon occupying the defenders of VMI as they man marked her or 1/C Stasia Abid as midfielders struggled to keep up with her. The 2010 season was full of emotions and hard work. There were some games that the outcome did not turn out favorably, but there were also many games in which our fortitude beat that of our opponents in games such as UPENN and the Patriot League opener against Colgate. Assisting with these wins was not just the tactical offense but also the defenders. Leading in the middle was 1/C Katie Kelly along with the inspirational leaders who led by example and pushed their teammates in practice to be the best such as 1/C Traci Willemse.

We will remember our teammates both those who graduated before us and those who will graduate after us. At the beginning of the 2010 season, NWS started with 29 talented soccer players and ended with 29 sisters and we thank every single one of them for making our Senior year memorable.

Senior: Anastasia Abid

"Even when you've played the game of your life, it's the feeling of teamwork that you'll remember. You'll forget the plays, the shots, and the scores, but you'll never forget your teammates."

MEN'S SOCCER

By: Sam Lepley

Navy Mens Soccer showed improvement in the 2010 season. The Mids finished sixth in the Patriot League with a record of 7-5-4. This was their winning season since 2005 which was especially impressive considering their tough out of conference schedule.

It was a strong start to the season with 4 straight wins and a goal differential of 13 goals for and only 2 goals against. The Mids then traveled down to UNC Greensboro where they held their own against a tough Spartan's team but ended up losing 1-0. Responding to the tough loss, Navy went up to West Point to open up Patriot League competition. They ended up beating Army 1-0 in the N-Star match with a dramatic late second half goal by Michael Rakoczy.

The Mids struggled to get positive results over the next stretch of games. Ties to Patriot League competitors Lehigh and American were tough to stomach considering the great play by Navy. The Mids also gave up a couple of tough late against both Howard and Longwood.

Perhaps the defining game of the season was an away game at Holy Cross. The Crusaders shocked the Mids by going ahead 1-0 with a quick goal happening in the first minute of of the game. Shortly into the second half, the Crusaders scored again to extend their lead to 2-0. The Mids responded a minute later with a goal by Sam Miller to cut the lead to one. Ten minutes later, Billy Sweetman scored a header off a corner kick to tie the game. And finally, with ten minutes left in the game, Wes Powell converted a penalty kick which ended up closing out the game and giving the Mids a 3-2 win. it was the second Patriot League win of the Season for Navy and put them in great position for post-season play.

Unfortunately, the Mids went on to tie Colgate and lose to Lafayette which ended up eliminating Navy from the post-season and thus cutting their season short.

Nonetheless, Navy finished with a winning record as well as a plus 11 goal differential. 2nd year Coach Dave Brandt's tactical philosophy and unique style of play really started to take form on the pitch this season. The team only graduates 3 seniors, and the future looks bright for Navy Soccer

Women's CROSS COUNTRY

By: Katie Rentz

Women's cross country had an exciting and memorable season in 2010. With 4 returning firsties and 9 new plebes, our team was fairly young, but benefited from the valuable experience the firsties had to share. Travels took us from Pennsylvania all the way to North Carolina, and it was humbling to see how many people turned out to cheer us on at our two home meets! NWXC took 1st place at two meets this year: the Lehigh Invitational and the Great American Cross Country Festival at North Carolina State. Plebe Rachael Honrath made quite a name for herself, earning three consecutive Patriot League Rookie of the Week accolades in September! To wrap up the season, NWXC took 4th at Patriot League Finals. At NCAA Mid-Atlantic Regional Championships, the team ran very well and placed 21st, led by junior Jess Palacio, who placed 10th overall. Women's cross country has a reputation for being geniuses, and this year was no different—14 runners made the Patriot League Women's Cross Country Academic Honor Roll, with captain Katie Rentz becoming the 3rd student-athlete in program history to earn 4 Patriot League Academic Honor Roll selections.

The girls were proud to have Big Liz back in competition, and she made an enormous impact, placing in the top 8 in all 7 of her races. Senior Bethany Rahall finished off a very strong season with a bang, placing 3rd for Navy and 72nd overall at NCAA Regionals. Sophomore Brigid Byrne placed in Navy's top 4 in all 8 of her competitions,and was a pillar of the team both competitively and inspirationally. Junior Mollie Hebda placed in Navy's top 5 in each of her 6 races, while spunky freshman Zatha Loewen, sophomore Jacqueline Blackburn, Liz Milewski, and Bethany Rahall all ran in every single race the team completed in - 8 in all. Junior Jess Palacio never failed to shine as the team's consistent frontrunner, sometimes putting a hundred meters or more between herself and the second-place competitor! Seniors Erin Neumann and Sarah Burns were huge contributors to the morale and humor as well as the competitive prowess of NWXC. They served as a unifying forcer among the team, and weren't afraid to tame the wild plebes when necessary.

Senior: Sarah Burns

The women's cross country team had a blast this season - and took Big Bertha down multiple times to boot. We KARTed, answered some insane trivia with Erica's dad, had some good bonding time on the bus (and let a rando' use the bathroom in traffic), enjoyed some sweet tailgates, and no, men's waterpolo. We aren't going out with you to Pussers tonight. Thanks for asking!

Men's Cross Country

By: Andrew Hanko

Expectations were high for the Navy men's Cross Country team coming into the 2010 season. Returning six of the top seven runners from the 2009 campaign, the midshipmen brought a deep and experienced squad into competition every week last fall. After the tragic loss of head coach Al Cantello's son over the summer, Navy's varsity ran with renewed purpose, reaching to out-do their previous season, which saw them claim their third consecutive Patriot League title and finish a gutsy fifth at the NCAA regional championship. Led by team captain Andrew Hanko and a strong contingent of seniors including Matt DeVillers, Robert Alvarado, and Aaron Foote, Cantello's boys raced to a banner year. Highlights included a dominating performance at home against Army in the annual star meet, where the Mids placed all twelve of their runners ahead of Army's fourth, and a third consecutive Patriot League championship in which Andrew Hanko (individual champ for the second consecutive season), Ken Bunnell, Kyle Satterwhite, Matt DeVillers, Jeremy Haney, and Dean Black each earned All League Honors. In the team's final race of the season, Hanko placed sixth in a speedy field to earn a spot at the NCAA National Championship meet, claiming his third All Regional cross country medal.

Looking ahead to next season, the Men's Cross Country team is shooting to be a force on the course. Losing only two of their top seven runners, the squad will look for its more experienced runners to prove their dedication to this arduous sport. Draw…swords! SWORDFISH!

WATER POLO

The 2011 Water Polo team started right where it left off the previous year- Keeping the winning tradition of Navy Water Polo alive. The 2011 team didn't disappoint. With six returning Firsties, the team began their season with an stellar nine straight wins. In fact, the Mids only dropped six games all season long ending with an impressive 23 - 6 record. Firstie Luke Baldwin earned his second Honorable Mention All-American 1st Team, and CWPA All-Southern Division Team. Also coming through big for Navy was Firstie Jordan Carter- also a 2nd Team CWPA All-Southern Division Team. Jordan's strong presence and 30 goals will also be missed. In addition to amazing performances in the water, five players were also recognized by Collegiate Water Polo Association (CWPA) for outstanding achievement in the classroom and naming them to the Men's Scholar-Athlete Team: MIDN 3/C Jackson Hummeldorf (4.00 GPA), MIDN 4/C Sean McDonald (3.50 GPA), MIDN 1/C Luke Baldwin (3.48 GPA), MIDN 4/C Joel Elenbaas (3.44 GPA), and Archie Warren (3.39 GPA). Key returners for next year, such as Conor Handley, Stevie Ray and Kyle Wertz all look to improve on this year's strong finish. A great benefit of Navy's large roster is that there will always be a large amount of players who can stop up to fill the loss of the graduating Firsties. Looking to next season, Navy Water Polo should once again be in competition with teams such as St. Francis to get the automatic bid to the NCAA Championships.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The 2010-2011 season has been historical for Navy Women's Basketball. The start of our season was rough. There seems to be a lack of treadmills on ships and Marine Corps bases because everyone came back out of shape. This quickly turned around because we were not allowed to touch basketballs until late October. By the time November came around we were ready for action!

Non-conference play started off well. We won some, we lost some, and we had some fun. But let's cut to the chase . . . if you've read this far, then you guys want to hear about the road to the NCAA Tournament, not to be mistaken by the road to the Final Four. Conference play started off well with a winning record of 6 – 0 before being stunned by evervescent Colgate Raiders. We lost the Star game against Army and everyone was down. We had two more games before the end of the season and after the Army game we had a talk as a team and decided to get to our end goal which was win the patriot league championship and make it to the NCAA tournament.

American was the next team we had to play after Army. It was on a cold winter night when we last played American after a three hour bus ride because of the blizzard. We got off the bus after that three hour bus ride and didn't miss a beat. We won! So, you can imagine that for our second game against American the Eagles wanted some revenge. It was senior night for us so Cassie Consedine and Angela Myers were recognized at midcourt before tip-off. And a special senior night it was! We beat American and were one step closer to accomplishing our goals. For our last game of the year we were on the road against Colgate. . We won and celebrated winning the Patriot League Regular Season. That meant that we would have the number one seed in the tournament and that we would host.

First round of play had us face off against Colgate and won. We beat Bucknell in the second round and final, we had made it to the championship game against American Eagles! That game was scheduled for the day after spring break and the brigade was gone. Thankfully Erin Edwards had sent out a voicemail to 10,000 people asking them to attend our game. It was a packed house! Best atmosphere the Patriot League Championship game has had. We started out rough, but then Alix Membreno and Jade Geif led a fierce attack coming into the second half and everyone followed accordingly. We won that game and finally made it to the BIG DANCE!

We all got together at the Federal House to watch selection night on ESPN. We were all so thrilled to see our name on the screen and could not wait to get to Penn State to play DePaul. We were really hyped for the game and played with a lot of heart. Despite our loss, it was a great game and we were proud of the effort we displayed. It was the best end to a great season!

MEN'S BASKETBALL

In the 2010-2011 season, Navy Basketball saw many up and downs during the season. Entering the season with 6 freshmen and 4 seniors, the dynamic and cohesiveness of this team was going to be automatically tested from the get go. Seniors, Mark Veazey, Romeo Garcia, Greg Brown and Ojevwe (OJ) Avworo all who have had significant playing time and success, was tasked with leading this team to the best of their ability and be patient as their last basketball team would probably be a late bloomer. The Midshipmen Basketball team had a rough start, opening against teams like University of Texas and Louisiana Tech. But the greatest aspect of this team was its attitude, as it worked through every dilemma it faced. The team picked up their season after a slow start to the Patriot league by finishing tied for 4th. They were only one of 3 teams to finishing in the upper half of the league in the last 4 years. The Mids had impressive victories against George Washington, Towson, and most importantly beat Army Twice in the same season; something that hadn't been done in years.

According to some of the players, this was one of the most rewarding team to be on because of the attitude each player possessed. Regardless of their record or performance they were not short of "Let's Go's!" and light hearted encouragements.

Dancing "cheeks" were always moving around in the locker room which was filled with amazing video footage. Not to forget the encounter with the Melwood worker who for lack of name will be addressed as "TEDDY." One player expressed how much he will miss and Midn Brown's pontifications and practice presidential speeches, but said it will be hard with "Mike Mike" in his history. Though the team didn't perform up to their level of expectation, (finished the season 10-19), their experience and values learned will carry the returners to have an exceptional season next year. The leaders of next year's team along with the great incoming class will propel Navy Men's Basketball team to the top!

Women's Swimming

The Navy women's swimming and diving team had a perfect dual meet season this year winning all 10 dual meets. The team was led by Head Swim Coach John Morrison & Assistant Swim Coach Rob Lias, Head Diving Coach Joe Suriano and team captain MIDN 1/C Natalie Albertson and 5 other outstanding seniors. The season began with decisive victories over George Mason, Loyola and James Madison. The team took its first trip to North Carolina this season to swim in the Nike Cup at UNC Chapel Hill. Multiple school and Patriot League records were broken by the midshipmen of Navy at the Nike Cup. It was their best showing at a fall invitational meet in the previous 4 seasons. Following the Nike Cup the team concluded the fall season with its meet against Army. The meet was held in a neutral location for the first time. Like the football game it too was held in Philadelphia, PA. The Navy women's swimming and diving team concluded the fall season with its 22nd consecutive victory over Army. The final score of the meet was Navy (254.5), Army (45.5).

The team had the wonderful opportunity to spend the final 10 days of winter leave training for the remaining meets of the season in Coronado, CA. They were able to train at the highest level, reconnect with former team members & grads, and enjoy a bit of California sun before returning to the "Dark Ages" at USNA. Upon their return to Annapolis the women's team went on to defeat each of its subsequent opponents both home and away. The highlight of the second half of the dual meet season was the meet against Yale which they won for the 3rd consecutive year, and decisively for the first time in school history with a final score of Navy (161), Yale (139). The 2010 2011 season concluded with a strong 2nd place finish at the Patriot League Championships in Lewisburg, PA and a 6th place finish at ECACs held in Pittsburgh, PA. There were multiple new school and league records set at the two final meets. The strong team finish and outstanding individual performances bodes well for next season.

MEN'S SWIMMING

By: Sam Martinette

The 2010-2011 season for Navy Men's Swimming and Diving is one for the books. In December for the twentieth year in a row we beat Army, on a neutral stage in Philadelphia, PA, by winning every event and set a new high score for the meet (246-54) in the process. Two months later, we traveled to Princeton, NJ to compete in our closest dual meet of the year. And for the first time since 1963, we returned victorious and broke Princeton's 94 home meet win streak. We went on to win nearly every event at the Patriot League Championships in Lewisburg, PA and walked away ith the title for the eight year in a row and in as many seasons in the league. We also competed in the ECAC swimming championships for the third year in a row and walked away with our third championship. We sent three to represent Navy on the national level and compete at the NCAA championships in Minneapolis, MN.

SQUASH

By: Brad Seidel

The Navy Squash team went an impressive 23-10 this year finishing 16th nationally. Team captain Brad Seidel commented on his final season by saying, "This team is composed of a great group of young men, and I felt privileged to lead such a talented group of athletes." The Navy Squash Team was led by a strong and attractive 1/C; Brad Seidel, Allan Lutz, Tommy McNamara and Aidan Crofton. These firsties put the team on their back. 2/C Clayton Young and Jock Tracey kept the team in line towards the back of the line-up. Youngsters Billy Abrams, Hunter Bouchard finished playing second man with a season record of 20-8. he was very excited to talk to the Lucky Bag about his solid season finish, but he also could not be reached due to some very important business calls. Billy Abrams finished next in the line. If Billy was in good shape his record would read 33-0, needless to say he finished his season 19-12. Hunter Beck played four man and finished 23-7. John Richey finished 22-10. He has some serious lips and tree trunk egs. Tommy McNamara had a great career finishing 60-20. Tho-mas is a stand-up gentlemen who has the ability to make his opponent feel dizzy on the court. He did a great job keeping himself out of the back seat of cop cars. Brad Seidel ended up playing seven man after missing the majority of his season due to a broken foot, Seidel finished his career at 59-22. Sediel finished 5-1 at nationals his last two years and did so with a smile on his face. Brad tried to woo his opponents into feeling good with his upbeat and kind attitude on court; this explains why he went from 4 man to 7 man from junior to senior year. Frat Boy David Koenig finished his season 21-9. Thought he was a talented player on the court but actually talented on the table. Aiden Crofton is a man to look up to, shirt always tucked in, yut-cut always in regulation; he made his way up from the depths of JV and finished his career playing 9/10 man at nationals. With a career record of 25-7 he wrote the book on how to go up 2-0. Too bad you need 3 games to win. Clayton Young swapped with Crofton 9/10 spot. Finishing 9-6 this year, Clayton played his best when cougars came to watch him play and when he was able to tell a made-up sea story. Jock Tracey going 18-3 this year, finished with the best record % on the team. Cornado's best game was a lost to Yale. Being in good shape doesn't always mean you're a good squash player. Emile Toscano had a 5-0 season but midway through the season left for Mars.

Navy Diving

At the start of the fall semester, our team returned to gorgeous Annapolis with a larger than usual team. Each day began with Coach Joe Suriano reminiscing the glory days of riding motorcycles to Woodstock and stories about divers from the past 60 or so years, when he was just a little younger. After not static stretching and ensuring the hot tub was filled with water at the optimum temperature for keeping warm and making the swimmers jealous, our practices began. Dive after dive of getting our feet to the end of the board, watching our feet land on the end of the board, and ensuring our entries don't look pregnant, our season progressed. We had a successful season that concluded with senior Olaf Olson representing Navy at NCAA Nationals.

We will be losing two seniors this year, Olaf Olson and Bryan Gentz. Olaf will be heading off to build sandcastles and work out just a little here and there as he trains to be a Navy SEAL, while Bryan will be leaving to begin his long awaited dream of being a bronzed beach God in Pensacola. Although our team is sad to see them go, we wish them the best of luck in the fleet! As for Tanner, Courtney, Jordyn, Ben, Wil, D.J., and Grace… Hot Tub Club meetings will resume in the Fall with a new group of plebes to clean the diving boards and fill the hot tub!

WRESTLING

The Wrestling team had yet another successful season placing 9 out of 10 wrestlers in their conference tournament with senior Matthew Demichiel and Bryce Saddoris in the finals. Team captain Bryce Saddoris was Navy's only All-American becoming Navy's all time wins leader and a 2 time All American ending his career with a record of 147-40. Navy's season is packed with competition starting in October all the way through nationals in March. By December the wrestlers have competed against 22 out of the top 25 teams in the country. Navy competed all over the country with a tournaments in Michigan, Las Vegas, NV, Reno, NV, Oklahoma, South Carolina, and Pennsylvania. Special highlights include Navy's win over #9 ranked Lehigh, and the spectacular win over University of North Carolina in a last second victory. The win over UNC established 11th year head coach Bruce Burnett's 100th duel victory. Navy finished the year out placing 6th overall at the EIWA's and tied for 37th at the NCAA national tournament held in Philadelphia, PA. Navy pounded Army for the 11th straight year with a landslide duel victory in this year's match held at Army. Overall the Army-Navy wrestling series stands at 45-5 for the Midshipman. The Mids also won the All-Academy championships tournament held at the Citadel competing against the Nations other service Academies. The Mids will be losing team captain Bryce Saddoris, 174 pounder Matthew Demichiel, 165 pounder Robby Neill, Heavyweight Mike Landis, team manager Carson Burton, and 125 pounder Allan Stein. Next year the team is looking just as tough bringing in top recruits and filling the positions with strong competitors.

GYMNASTICS

After a tough 2009-2010 season, the Navy Men's Gymnastics (NMG) team was anxious to clean the slate and start fresh in 2011. The biggest obstacle for the team this season was not having the luxury of depth in the competition line-up. Although the team gained three promising recruits this year, they also lost two seniors and a sophomore. With a roster of only eight gymnasts, NMG optimistically began their season at the West Point Open in mid January. Although NMG suffered a lost to Army at this first meet, the West Point Open demonstrated the team's potential and fueled their drive to improve. One month later, NMG returned to New York for the Army/Navy Star Meet. Our small eight-man team competed fiercely and was able to edge out Army for a 324.1-322.8 upset. However, as any varsity athlete from Navy will tell you, beating Army just once is never enough. In the week prior to the final team competition of the year, the ECAC Conference Championship, misfortune struck two members of our already small team. Junior Brandon Tinkham and freshman Chris Junghans would be unable to compete due to injuries. NMG would have to compete against Army's fifteen-man team with only six gymnasts at the conference championship. After receiving some much need motivation from Assistant-Coach Craig Holt following a disastrous vaulting event, NMG was able to beat the odds and emerge victorious over Army.

Women's Track

By: Janet Von Eiff

Our winning attitude is something that has been driven into our mindsets by our coaches' enthusiasm and love of the sport. It causes us to make everything into a competition and secretly compete with our teammates when we are practicing. There is nothing wrong with a little friendly competition, especially when it makes everyone work harder and earn their top spots. This year we were lucky enough to have a team of women who are hard working, selfless, and determined to do what the team needed to win. With these attributes we were able to dominate the indoor season by breaking eight school records and winning the title of Patriot League Champions! After an indoor season like that we were given the credit we deserved and topped the preseason polls for the outdoor season. During the outdoor season our first major goal was to dominate Army, which we made look easy. Even though our coaching staff always makes it seem like we are "losing on paper," we know that it is just them trying to make us push ourselves to get better marks/times. Although we suffered many setbacks at the beginning of the outdoor season, due to injuries, we were able to pull out the win and beat Army with a 56 pt. victory which is the largest point margin every for the Navy women's track team in an outdoor Star Meet. This speaks volumes about the dedication and will to win that these women have to push past the pain and fatigue that has built up from the indoor season or practices and think of others before themselves. We do not have an off season in-between indoor and outdoor so injuries are carried over and have to be treated before or after practice. Even with injuries, we are looking strong for the outdoor Patriot League championships which is the next major goal that we would love to accomplish. As of now, the class of 2011 leaves behind a legacy of seven victories over Army and the title of Patriot League Indoor Champions not once, but twice. There is nothing better than having the seniors end their track careers with the first ever indoor/outdoor championship sweep for the women's track program. however, if it does not happen this year, I know that it will happen soon because there is nothing but great things to expect from the rising underclass and I would like to wish them all the best of luck in the years to come.

Men's TRACK

By: David Ash

The 2010-2011 Indoor Season for the Men's Track and Field Team consisted of a number of home meets hosted at the brand new state of the art W.A. Brown Field House. The team traveled to New York for their annual dual head-to-head meet against the West Point Cadets early on in the season. Other away meets included the Iowa State Classic in Ames, Iowa and the IC44 Championship meet in Boston, MA. The Navy Men's Track and Field Team ended their long indoor season with a huge victory at the Patriot League Championship meet hosted in the Wesley A. Brown Field House. The team had entered their season with their eyes set on winning the Patriot League Championship and they did just that. Following a successful indoor season, the Men's team transitioned to their outdoor competitions. The outdoor season ended with equal success as the team finished with a winning record despite fierce competition at a number of their meets. The competition scheduled consisted of meets in San Diego, Florida, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Indiana. Even with their successful season, the team looks forward to more victories, as much of the team is young and will be returning next year. Their eyes will be most focused on defeating Army at the two dual meets throughout the season, as well as capturing the two Patriot League titles.

CAPTAIN: DAVID ASH

"The Men's Track and Field Team maintained a persistent, focused effort all season, saw great improvement in all event areas, and strengthened their cohesive, team-oriented atmosphere upon which great success in the future will be based."

Navy baseball has come a long way from their first weekend at Presbyterian college to their now bright future in the middle of their season. They have young players coming into their own at the right times, and everyone is showing true commitment to the game. With hard work and team baseball the baseball team looks for their first patriot league playoff appearance since 2008. From their 7 day trip to Florida to their apprehension of Vinny the Vulture, the future of Navy baseball looks bright.

NAVY LACROSSE

By: Mike Haas and Brian Striffler

The 2011 Lacrosse season will be one to remember for the great class of '11. Lead by a group of hard-nosed seniors, this team lived by the Spartan code of "With your shield, or on it". This group brought Navy Lacrosse back to its origins of hard work, mental focus, and unparalleled heart, hustle and intensity. The attack was anchored by Junior Taylor "Shake 'N Bake" Reynolds at X and was flanked by Freshmen Sam Jones on the right and Tucker Hull on his left. Jones and Hull finished the regular season as two of the most prolific point leaders in the country as they both ranked in the top 20 in the nation for points scored. The attack was also helped by seniors Sean "DO YOU KNOW WHO I AM!" Dinn and Patrick "High Heat" McCormick. The 1st midfield was held down by returning All Patriot League attackman Andy "I Beat Hopkins" Warner who made a seamless transition from attack ('08-'10) to midfield ('11), while the 2nd midfield line was under the command of Kevin "Casper" Doyle. Helping rotate the players through the substitution box was player/coach Matt "How ya doin'" Suhr. On the defensive side the field, the team was held down by Senior Defensive Middies Marty "Dumpy" Gallagher (Team Captain), and "Bounce Shot" Brian Striffler while the close Defense was lead by returning All Patriot League defensemen Michael "Gimme dat Nugget" Hirsch. In net was returning Patriot League Goalie of the year RJ Wickham, who had another solid year in the cage with a breakout performance against Georgetown posting 20 saves which tied the Navy record for saves in a game. At the face-off X was Logan West and Evan Mcgoogan. Logan came into his own against Lafayette where he was named player of the game, and Evan was always there to give the team a second look when needed. With hard work and dedication, these two rigid players will be a force to be reckoned with next year. You can't help but look at the record of this team and assume this season was a failure. Of course Navy had high hopes and was looking to advance into the post season and those goals were not reached. But this year brought the team closer together as a group. A foundation of devotion, commitment , hard work, and a never let down attitude has been laid. The team learned something new from each game and these lessons will be carried over into the following season. Coach Meade has developed men and leaders out of the class of 2011, and the underclassmen now have a standard to uphold. A Patriot League championshipis in the team's sights and nothing will stand in their way. There is no doubt that the Midshipmen will be able to take the they dealt with this year and turn into hard fought victories next year and the years following. Go Navy, Beat Army! a group. A foundation of devotion, commitment, hard work, and a never let down

Women's LACROSSE

Women's Lacrosse is a fast-moving, fast-paced, and also fast-growing sport. The competition level for women's lacrosse has increased incredibly in recent years, and Navy Women's Lacrosse is keeping up with that growth. When you hear news about eh woman's lacrosse team, it is typically that they won another game, another tournament or that they finished high in the nation. There is certainly a winning tradition with the Naval Academy women's lacrosse team- the dedicated group of players take this game very seriously. The work hard and their success is directly the result of their sacrifice. The 2011 team finished with a respectable record of 15-6, and although they ended the season with a disappointing loss to nationally top-ranked Maryland in the first round of the NCAA tournament, they have much to be proud of. "For Navy to be in the NCAA First Round was very special for our team and our program," said head coach Cindy Timchal. "We got off to a slow start and that really hurt us, but we hung in there. We're a young team and we will learn how to be stronger and tougher in the future."

Seniors

Some of the many bright spots of the 2011 season include two players, MIDN 3/C Jasmine DePompeo and MIDN 1/C Katrina Nietsch earning academic All-District honors for their high GPA and contribution to the team. DePompeo was also selected to WomensLax.com's All American Team as well as earning IWLCA All-Region Honors.

Team captain MIDN 1/C Caitlin Mandrin Hill graduated with four four school records and was selected to compete in the 2011 IntercollegiateWomen's Lacrosse Coaches Association (IWLCA) North-South Senior All-Star Game. Mandrin Hill, a 2011 All-Patriot League First Team attack, amassed 69 points on 35 goals and 34 assists. The 2011 team captain led Navy and ranked eighth in the nation with 3.95 draw controls per game and her 34 assists this season were the 11th most in the country.

Women's Tennis

The Navy women's tennis team was rewarded for its fantastic season as three players and head coach Keith Puryear were all honored by the Patriot League. 1/C Amanda Griffin and 3/C Emani Decquir and Stefanie Ton were named to the All-Patriot League team while Puryear was voted the league's Coach of the Year. Navy recently wrapped up its second varsity season as the Patriot League Tournament runners-up and concluded the 2011 season with a 22-10 overall mark and a 3-0 Patriot League regular-season record. Griffin and Decquir were named to the first team, while Ton was selected to the second team.

Griffin, a senior that played at No. 1 singles for all of the season, finished the year with a 20-17 overall mark and a 13-12 record in dual-meet action. Her 20 wins are the third most in a season in school history and she went 2-1 against Patriot League opponents during the regular season. Griffin got better as the match went on, posting a 4-1 record in matches that lasted three sets. She recorded four separate streaks of three of more victories in a row and went 17-19 in doubles play throughout the course of the season. Her 37 combined wins this past year tied for the second most in a season in school history. Decquir was named to the first team for the second straight season while playing No. 2 singles. She finished the year with a 13-19 overall record and a 9-13 dual-meet mark, but went 3-0 in Patriot League play and was 2-0 during the Patriot League Tournament. She won her last five matches of the season with three of them coming in three-set decisions. Decquir ranks tied for second on the career singles wins list with 27 and owns a 27-29 career mark. She also went 16-15 in doubles play during the course of the year. She has 58 combined victories during her two-year career to rank second on the career combined victories list at Navy. Ton was selected to the second team after posting a 14-14 overall record and a 9-10 dual-meet record at No. 3 singles. Ton also went 16-16 in doubles play during the 2010-11 season. Ton set a school record this year by winning seven straight matches from March 6 to April 9 and she went 3-0 during Patriot League regular-season action. Ton, along with teammate Emani Decquir, will carry a six-match doubles winning streak into next year. Ton has a 27-21 overall singles record, good for second place on the school's all-time wins list. She is 28-25 for her career in doubles play for a combined record of 55-46, good for fourth on the career combined wins list. Puryear was named the Patriot League Coach of the Year following a sensational second varsity season at Navy. He led the Midshipmen to a 22-10 overall mark, a 3-0 Patriot League regular-season record and an appearance in the Patriot League Tournament finals. It marks the 11th time during his coaching career that he has been named a conference Coach of the Year and he will carry a 478-317 coaching record (men's and women's) into next season.

Men's Tennis

Marching their way to a 17-11 record, the 2011 Navy Men's Tennis team has much to be proud of this season. Aside from their winning record, many of the players earned national honors and recognition. MIDN 1/C Owen Bullard was Patriot League Men's Tennis Player-of-the-Year. Bullard, who played No. 1 singles and doubles for the Mids this season, posted a 17-11 record in dual meet singles matches this year and a mark of 20-8 in doubles matches during the spring season. He compiled a combined record of 13-1 against Patriot League opponents this spring, while his 37 overall victories for the season was just two shy of tying the Navy single season record. He totaled a career dual match singles record of 70-37, which included a 25-3 record in career matches against Patriot League foes, and was 50-25 in spring doubles matches over his four years on The Yard. His 70 singles wins ranks second in school history (76, Mitch Koch, Class of 2000), while his 120 combined singles and doubles dual match victories also ranks second at Navy. Bullard also earned the the men's Coaches' Calvert Award, presented to that man in the graduating class who has persevered the most in his career.

Also receiving all-league accolades this season was MIDN 1/C Jeremy New. He posted a 16-8 record in singles this spring, including a 5-0 record in league matches, and finished the season with a 9-7 record in doubles. New played in the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions in singles this year and tallied career dual meet records of 35-19 in singles and 18-13 in doubles.

2011 also marked the third year in which Men's Tennis Captain, MIDN 1/C Nick Birger earned academic honor as Patriot League Scholar-Athlete of the Year in Men's Tennis. Birger compiled a 4.00 cumulative grade-point average at Navy and ranks first in his class on the USNA's Overall Order of Merit. Birger was 2011 Valedictorian.

LIGHTWEIGHT CREW

Another year has passed and Navy Lightweight Crew had yet another grueling time preparing for the Eastern Sprints. The fall season started innocent enough, as a combine welcomed us back to the Severn. A few log tosses, football kicks, and an opening day 6k were better received than the heavily anticipated 15k in memory of our move at the 15,000 meter mark of a 2,000 meter race. We quickly got down to business, however, by touring the Severn, lifting big and lifting often in the weight room, and doing our homework on the erg. We even discovered the source of the river a few times (five to be exact). The end of the fall season signified the official welcoming of the class of '13 into the fold by the presentation of red sweatshirts, and the Navy Lights entered winter trainingwith the intent of building the fastest team in Navy Lightweight Crew history. With the help of erg baseball, rifle range, 10-9-8-7 followed by double outers, or any other "fun" workout Coach Perry could devise, the Navy Lights built the foundation for the spring. As ice thawed and winter became spring, ergs became less frequent (except for Mondays, of course) and we headed out to the water to show how strong N150 became over the winter. First stop, though, was spring break in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. For the class of 2011, spring break was remarkable for one reason: sunlight. For the first time in four years, Oak Ridge was beautiful. Of course, beautiful weather simply meant more time on the water. Seat racing, the first annual marathon row, and the revamped class day race - complete with a little rule breaking from the "winning" class – marked another successful spring break as the entire team picked up speed. Speed was the key word on the trip back to Annapolis too, as nearly half the team was ticketed for speeding in Virginia. Unfortunately, a return to the Severn meant a departure from flat water. It also spelled the end of the JEVA (R.I.P.) as well as the arrival of Wintech's, correction: King's, new submersible hull. A few swamped boats couldn't stop the Navy Lights, however, and the team continued to train harder than ever. Whatever results the Eastern Sprints and IRA bring, N150 had another successful season. Navy Lightweight Crew gave more of themselves at every practice than ever before. They produced fast crews and established a new framework for the future. More importantly, the Navy Lights demanded perfection and wouldn't settle for anything less.

Well, you Sons of the Severn, it's been real. It's been something special too. From Poughkeepsie to Ithaca you all have amazed me by your sheer ability to gut it out and and pull hard (If this weren't the Lucky Bag I'd preface the pull hard with a certain word). When they make a movie about us, I don't think they'll ever be able to truly capture how hard each of you worked this season or how hard you all pull. We've got a lot of the season left to go and I'm excited to see how it turns out. No matter the result, I will always hold this season as my favorite and am honored to have been in the same boats as you.

'11: I almost forgot to write about us – the lost children of the boathouse. People seem to forget our undefeated class day race record, our 10th place finish at IRAs, and the fact that we were truly the biggest partiers at the boathouse. I think over the past years we've come down from the cloud that earned us our "Pre-Madonna" nickname. Ergs don't floar and I wish you all the best success.

'12: The quiet champs, the Untouchables. You didn't ask for it, but you were given the mantle of leadership in the boathouse from day one. You may not realize it but you've set the tone at Hubbard Hall for years to come. You have impressed everyone day in and day out just by coming to practice and pulling hard. There's nothing a rower can be respected more for.

CAPTAIN

"It's gonna be a back-ally fistfight with Harvard, but we're bringing bottles and chains!"

'13: The Meatheads. You guys have brought Navy Crew back up to one of the best teams in the country. Your power and aggression have been a huge part of that. You all have so much potential, but don't ever forget that your greatest strength is each other and the bond that you all share. "The more you lose yourself in something bigger than yourself, the more strength you will find."

'14: You guys really know how to haul on that oar. Keep it up. There is so much to be learned from Hubbard Hall, Crew, and Coach Clothier. Don't let a tough practice, tough day, or the Academy jade you.

When you guys eventually read this, I hope you'll go out and take a big 10 for Chimpanzees and Frogs.

Damn the torpedoes, FULL SPEED AHEAD!

"We're proud of them and coach Nicky (Stimpson) does a great job with that crew." The varsity eight boat finished fifth in its heat with a time of 7:03.66. The crew went on to finish third in the third level final behind Boston University and MIT as it turned in a nearly identical time of 7:03.52. The second varsity eight placed fourth in both its heat (7:06.62) and later in the petite final (7:05.36).

The Mids' third varsity boat rebounded from placing fourth in its heat with a time of 7:53.47 by posting a time over 20 seconds faster in petite final. In the petite final, Navy posted a 7:34.35 to take sixth.

In its only race of the day, Navy's fourth varsity boat placed second behind Georgetown with a time of 7:48.58.

In addition to a stellar season, MIDN 3/C Jacqueline Penichet was voted to the Academic All-Patriot League team. Penichet is the coxswain of Navy's varsity four crew, which has been one of Navy's top boats this spring. Penichet carried a 3.87 GPA.

OFFSHORE SAILING

Navy's Varsity Offshore Sailing Team had a great 2010-2011 season. Over the summer 2010, crews competed all over the east coast, to include the Annapolis to Bermuda Race, Sothern Bay Race Week, Onion Patch Regatta, Newport to Bermuda Race, Solomons Islands Race, the Screwpile Regatta, Around Martha's Vineyard Race, Around Long Island Race, and the Maryland Governor's Cup. Entering the fall championship season coming off of a strong summer, Navy helped raise over $250,000in charity by participating in the local Hospice Cup. Navy then took 1st and 2nd place in the Annapolis Yacht Club Fall Series, won the Regatta Escola Naval in Brazil, and participated in the Storm Trysail Club Invitational in Larchmont, NY. Navy also sailed well in the Farr 40 North American Championships, IRC East Coast Championships, and the J105 Chesapeake Bay Championships. Navy took a 2nd place finish in the Shields Trophy Intercollegiate Regatta, 1st in the MacMillan Cup, and 3rd in the Kennedy Cup to end the season with a strong record. In the Spring 2011, Navy won the Keelboat Promotional Regatta, and is preparing for another summer with races to Bermuda and Halifax.

AVAL ACADEMY

INTERCOLLEGIATE SAILING

Navy's Intercollegiate Sailing has a spectacular season in 2011. Among their many accomplishments was a strong showing at the Coed Dinghy National Semifinals at St. Mary's College of Maryland on April 20. Navy's team was able to advance to the National Semifinals, finishing third overall. Robert Vann skippered the A division boat to third place with crews Jason Carminati, Jocelynn Knudsen and Alice Hong while Clark Hayes, Lukas Edegran and Saverio Maldari were fourth in B.

A week later, Navy hosted this year's MAISA Women's Championship and the team made the most of it, finishing fifth overall to claim a berth in the 2011 ICSA / Sperry Top Sider Women's National Dinghy Championship. "It was an interesting day of tight racing and our young team kept its cool throughout the changing conditions," said Navy head coach Ian Burman. Navy sailed the youngest team in the regatta by far and beat out many older, more experienced squads. Making it to the nationals with two freshmen starting as skippers indicates that our team will be strong in women's competition for years to come. Finishing sixth in the A division were Marissa Lihan and Erica Leinmiller while Killian Corbishley and Laura Burzenski were fifth in B.

Things only kept gettin better for Navy's IC Sailing as the team sailed a solid regatta this Long Beach, CA on May 4, finishing third in the ICSA Eastern Semifinal to qualify for the finals of the ICSA / Gill Coed Dinghy Nationals. Fickle Santa Ana winds made for an unusual weekend in Southern California, but the Midshipmen found consistency in the deep fleet to place third out of nine Eastern teams. Robert Vann and Alice Hong finished third in A while Clark Hayes, Saverio Maldari and Lukas Edegran were second in the B Division.

The season was capped by Navy Women's IC Sailing Placing 13th at ICSA Women's National Championship on May 31, and Navy IC Sailing Finishing Ninth at ICSA Nationals on June 2.

GOLF

2011 was a great season for Navy Golf. This year Navy had the pleasure of hosting the 2011 Patriot League Championship. The Naval Academy Golf Course, had previously hosted the 1993, 1995, 2001 and 2006 Patriot League Golf Championship. Navy MIDN 4/C David Hall shot par in the final round to overcome a 1-stroke deficit and claim Patriot League Rookie of the Year honors, while leading the Navy golf team to a second-place finish at the Championship. "As a team, I thought we played really well throughout the tournament," said Navy head coach Pat Owen. Posting a 2-over par 215 over the two-day event, Hall became the fourth different Navy player to earn Patriot League Rookie of the Year recognition since the inception of the award in 2005. "The most important thing for me today was to go out and play the course, not the opponent," said Hall. "It was a great honor to play in the tournament and not only represent the Naval Academy but also have the opportunity to win rookie of the year. There are some great players who have come before me to win the award and it's a great privilege to be part of the group." Also gaining All-Patriot League laurels for the Mids was MIDN 2/C Tim Shield. After not placing first two appearances at the conference tournament, Shield sewed up second-team honors by way of a sixth-place finish with a 4-over par 217. Shield got off to a rocky start, posting a 6-over par 77, but he quickly regrouped by shooting the low score of the day with a 2-under par 69. The next day he shot par to secure his all-league finish. Just missing All League honors were two previous winners, Hayes and Reilly, who placed 11th and 12th, respectively. Hayes closed out his career by shooting an 8-over par 221 thanks to a 3-over par 74 in the final round, while Reilly was one over on to finish the year with a 9-over par 222.

Rookie Drew Selby tied for 20th with a 16-over par 229, while junior Tyler Kuhn tied for 26th with a 19-over par 232. "I'm real excited about the team's outlook for next season with a great group of leaders coming back and a solid crop of newcomers," commented Coach Owen.

Club Sports

For those Midshipmen who don't have the time or the grades to commit 24/7 to one sport or for those multitalented enough to continue playing several sports from high school, club sports is the perfect calling. These teams not only compete with other colleges and universities around the United States, but some also maintain international relations with and host foreign teams to come play on the yard when they tour America. Club athletes are all about playing the sport. There's no glitz and there's no glamour, just raw talent.

BOXING

The boxing program at the Naval Academy started in 1865 under Admiral David Porter, and flourished at the Naval Academy as an intercollegiate sport from 1920 thru 1931. During that eleven year period Navy was a boxing powerhouse and would be undefeated in dual meets capturing six national titles. Many of the boxers in the program in the 1920's and 1930's were very prominent figures in WW II. Admiral "Bull" halsey was the Boxing Team Officer Rep from 1928-1931. Intercollegiate boxing at the Naval Academy was discontinued in 1941, and the Brigade Boxing Championships were started that year. Championships were started that year.

In 1976 Navy joined the National Collegiate Boxing Association(NCBA), a non-profit organization whose goal is to provide a safe, positive educational experience for college athletes.

Since 1996 the USNA Boxing Team has won five National Championships with many individual All-Americans.

The United States Naval Academy Boxing Team is a Club Sport. Club Sports at USNA are designed to provide a more competitive atmosphere for those midshipmen who are interested in sports at a higher level than intramurals. The Club is midshipmen initiated and midshipmen controlled with oversight from an officerrepresentativeand part time coach. The Club Sports program comes under the PE Department and is not associated with the Athletic Association.

Women's Hockey

Navy Women's Ice Hockey started only a year ago with the dedication of 2/C Ella Starr and her vision of women's hockey at the academy. Since their inauguration, this new team has overcome many hurdles to end their second season with a championship win.

Head Coach Tim Murphy, over 40 years experience and retired Navy corpsman, Joe Reekie, former NHL defenseman for the Washington Capitals, Scott Steele, former CHL player, Maria Powell, a 22 year old newly certified goalie coach and Paige Johnson, a former figure skater, volunteered their time and their love of hockey to lead a group of women who was short four starters and a goalie into a championship team. Practice starts early for this group of hardworking ladies; 0530 the team shuttles themselves to the Brigade sports complex every morning for practice on ice and then continues with off-ice workouts in the afternoons. Defeats over IUP, Columbia, American, Maryland, Drexel, and Villanova 'wowed' the Delaware Valley Hockey Conference to see such a young team able take on and defeat their opponents with years of experience. When play-offs came around, the un-defeated champions, Slippery Rock University (SRU), were ready for another win; Navy thought otherwise. Ten minutes before the first round in the play-offs, the coaching staff, Captain Ella Starr, and Assistant Captains Christine Tyndall and Jacqueline Drew, came up with a strategic yet risky plan. They decided to use only two offensive lines and three-defensemen. This dare-devil plan left Slippery Rock's coach in shock of their unexpected switch and within minutes, they realized it wasn't going to be the 'easy win' they expected. Navy players Samantha Leyva-Yelverton, Katie Otano, Liz Ziek, Jacqueline Drew, Christine Dullnig, Shannon Lavin, Christine Tyndall, Ashley Spring and Ella Starr and Mimi Amore took on the challenge and played a game they'd never forget. Goalie Mimi Amore kept Navy in the game with an amazing 47 saves during the final championship game . By the third period, they had tied the game 2-2. With a mere six seconds left, Slippery Rock's most important pass was intercepted by defenseman and Captain Ella Starr who collected the puck and cranked a slap shot on SRU's goalie from the blue line and scored. The team also won the first annual Seahawk Tournament a week later while the Commandant watched and cheered along with the team. This season has created a legacy for this program to grow and continue to exemplify the fighting Navy spirit. Go Navy, Beat Army!

Whether they were winning or losing the game these Navy girls never lost spirit and always made sure to have fun. This season was a great lesson in knowing that the name on the front of the jersey matters much more than the one on the back. It was a lesson that their coach emphasized over and over again at every game and practice.

CLUB LACROSSE

Men's Club Lacrosse, now almost 20 years old at the Naval Academy, is bound for another successful season. Navy currently holds 4 Club Championships under its belt since its inception into the NCLL (National College Lacrosse League), which as a league has grown to over 120 teams and Navy has made a foothold as one of its best. For the 2009 and 2010 seasons Navy made it to the semifinals of the National Tournament and this year look to go even farther. They finished last season with 12 wins and recording only 2 losses both of which came in overtime. Navy begins this 2011 season ranked Top 5 in the league and the boys are looking to capitalize on their skillful and experienced players at all positions.

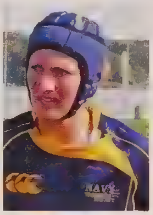
Leading the defense is Captain Ben Read whose goalie play is sure to keep Navy in the games and the opponents out of them. At close defense Navy will rely on Captain Taylor Pierce and Raf Ortega to lead our defense. In the Midfield Captain Will Comiskey and Kory Hoppes will be on top of their game initiating the offense and helping out on defense. Finally, newcomers at attack including Alex Samaniego, Sean Crain, and AJ Cybulski will learn from experienced players like Tom Fiammetta to contribute to the offensive production. Overall it's a team summarized by great depth and a devotion to success that will undoubtedly make for a fun and exciting season.

WOMEN'S RUGBY

LOVE THE LEGACY

Not Simply a motto, but rather a way of life for Navy Women's Rugby. Home or away, alumni can be seen on the sidelines cheering on the women that strive to live up to what they have set before them. Every woman that steps on the pitch understands the sacrifices that must be made, not only to the body but in the mind as well, to accomplish the mission. The mission: setting up a future where young women can step on the pitch and leave everything behind; building a family from a team here, now and beyond. Their mission is to score ruthlessly; demolish opponents, win national titles. The legacy is simple- give your all for the women to your left and right, just as the women before you have and you can bet those that follow will do the same. Hold each other accountable on and off the field and NEVER allow the name of the team to be tainted in any way. Be proud of who you are and what you accomplish. Respect each other, those from the past and those still to come.

1/C Megan Misencik describes the rugby jersey, "There are no names on the jerseys, for the jersey does not belong to a specific girl and the name on the back of the jersey never matters. The girls play for each other and the team, never for themselves, for they know that it takes the effort of all fifteen girls to win." As cliche as it may sound, these women understand that the name on the front of the jersey is far more important than their own.



"This year we had a very young team that underwent a lot of changes, but we stuck together and had a successful season."
-1/C J. Sproule

Rugby is a game of pain. In every play, each player must have 100% mental discipline, be prepared to strike and make split second decisions. Teammates throw their bodies in front of the opposition in order to, at the least stop their opponent from making any progress with the ball.

This year NWR traveled to Ireland to play international matches and train with premiere coaches. NWR won both matches and were successful in polishing points of play. For a majority of the season, NWR was ranked 7th nationwide. By placing 3rd in the Mid-Atlantic Rugby Football Union tournament, the Midshipmen were able to progress to the national tournament. The round of 16 was played against Colorado State University in Blaine, Minnesota.By defeating CSU 44-18 the Midshipmen advanced to the "Elite 8" round of play against the Brigham Young Panthers (#2). Navy held the panthers to a 7-0 deficit and came out of the game with heads held high. NWR placed 5th in the Nation for the 2010-2011 season.

MEN'S RUGBY

Capping off a respectable season that began with six straight wins, the Navy Men's Rugby team received an invitation to participate in the 2011 USA Sevens Collegiate Rugby Championship on June 3rd-5th in Philadelphia. This second annual event has quickly become one of the premier rugby events in the country.

The Navy men's team was one of the 16 elite collegiate programs playing in the round-round tournament. Navy was paired with North Carolina, Central Washington, and Army, and played three games over the course of the day.

Rugby Sevens features seven players per team playing on the same full-sized field as a traditional 15-person-per-side rugby match. The wide field offers non-stop action where speed, high scoring, and athleticism dominate the competition. The format allows for constant entertainment with each match split into two seven-minute halves. Rugby Sevens will be an Olympic sport starting in 2016 and this tournament offers a preview of the talent pool available for the U.S. Olympic team.

CLUB SOCCER

The USNA Men's Soccer Club was organized in the fall of 1999 as a sports team that offers Midshipmen a level of competitiveness which is unique from the varsity and intramural levels. The Men's Soccer Club was introduced in 1999 to span the gap between the varsity and intramural competitiveness levels. This median level of soccer gave experienced soccer players a high-level of competition without interfering with their other Midshipmen obligations. Members of the club soccer team are active in the Brigade, and fully participate in summer training without Division I athletic requirements. In addition, the Men's Soccer Club provides Midshipmen with another leadership avenue to develop themselves morally, mentally, and physically. Teamwork and sportsmanship are emphasized at all team events, and peer leadership is vital to the functionality and longevity of the organization. Therefore, the purpose of the USNA Men's Soccer Club will be to continue to provide Midshipmen with a sports team that offers a unique level of competitiveness and another avenue to explore leadership at the academy.

The 2011 USNA Club Soccer team finished the regular season with a stellar 13-0-1 record. Next year they look to keep the winning tradition of excellence alive and continue representing the Brigade well in all of their club games.

Men's Hockey

The Navy Men's Ice Hockey Team finished this year with a number of landmark achievements. Returning to the Eastern Collegiate Hockey Association (the conference to which the Mids belong in the American Collegiate Hockey Association) after a three year hiatus, Navy made a strong showing. They dominated in-conference rivals Towson and Lehigh, clinched a shoot-out win at Drexel, and twice beat in-state rival Maryland at home in front of a packed house. Navy's hard work and dedication earned them a 2nd place finish in the conference and an impressive 22-10-2 record overall. Additionallytheywon their annual invitational Crabpot Tournament. At the foundation of their successful season was unparalleled goal tending by veteran junior, Jameson Marshall and the new freshman phenom, Andrew Mills; the two would provide solid and dependable performances game in and game out, as is proven by the fact that Navy outscored their opponents 148-96. Of course, it wasn't all so easy, and it took the steadfast leadership of one handsome and talented Team Captain, Sam Carlson. Sam shouldered the burden of the team's inner conflict, resolving touchy issues like whether to use Jack3d or NOXplode, whether to go to Dillo's or Pusser's after the game (uhh... Dillo's, obviously because Coach Dupree will hook us up), or of course, the always dicey dilemma of who to put on the penalty kill when Doug Dietrich was...uh...well incapacitated. He also had to keep his team's energy level even, not allowing them to get too high when Coaches inspired them with a 50,000,000 year old shark tooth, or too low when Coaches expressed the desire to usecreativepunishments. It was a tough job, but with the help of his two assistant captains the always sexy Steven Csutoros and the always sleepy Matt Roberts Sam went above and beyond the call of duty. In the wake of a downward trend from the past few years, the Class of 2011 was able to turn things around and set the Men's Ice Hockey team on the path to what appears to be an extraordinarily bright future.

Along with the first winning season, the team earned a berth to the National Club Field Hockey Tournament held in Virginia Beach at the National Field Hockey training center where the team played against the highest levels of club field hockey teams in the nation.

During the 2011 spring season, the Navy Field Hockey team continued to expand and grow as a program with new captains Diana Hunt and Marilyn Pendlyshok. The team participated in various tournaments across the country with Coach Pam Hixon, the former coach of the U.S. National Team.

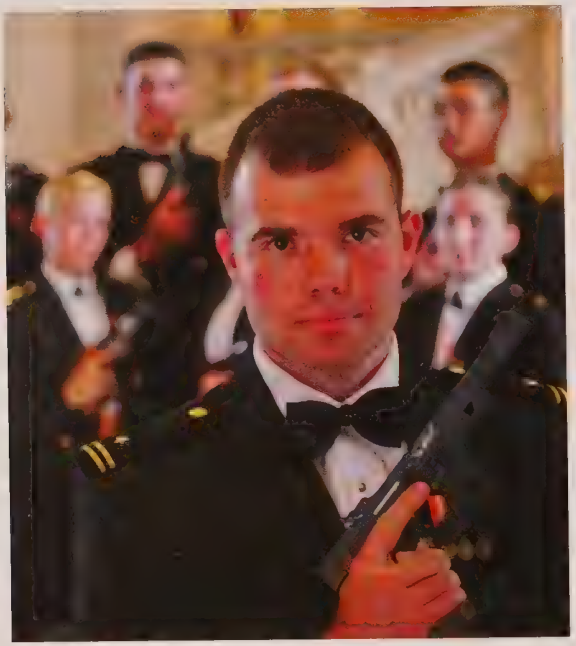
PISTOL

The Navy Pistol team competes in a style of competition called International Pistol which is shot at the Olympic Games. All events are single-handed shooting with small caliber pistol that, with the shooter, deliver highly precise shots. Men compete in Air, Standard, and Free pistol. Women traditionally compete in Air and Sport pistol, but may compete in all events due to Title IX. Over the years, Navy shooters have set a number of records at the national collegiate level and continually strive to raise the bar.



FENCING

The Naval Academy Fencing Club provides lessons for beginners as well as advanced fencers, and supports intercollegiate club level competition in men's and women's epee, foil, and saber fencing. One of only four sports to be included in every modern Olympic Games, fencing is a strenuous sport that uniquely supports the Naval Academy mission by promoting: aerobic fitness balance and coordination of footwork and bladework rapid problem-solving involving timing and distance timely execution of offensive and defensive actions honorable conduct in heated competition. Although not a club sport at USNA the Fencing Team has earned a strong name for itself amongst it's competitors, commanding consistently more respect on and off the strip with each passing competition. Notable accomplishments this year include (but aren't limited to): Record participation in the Annual Alumni meet, Securing new and improved team spaces, Vast improvment of their Armory/Equipment Repair Center, Supporting the largest active roster since Fencing was a varsity sport in the '90s, Significantly improving participation in the US Fencing Association (USFA), and earning 1st place in their conference, the Baltimore-Washington Collegiate Fencing Championships (BWCFC)

GUNG FU

Every weeknight after dinner, you can find a group of dedicated midshipmen practicing the art of won hop long chuan, a complete Chinese art style with a few modifications derived from Okinawan concepts. The group is taught primarily by Sensei Clark six days a week, with a very relaxed atmosphere. A very tight knit group, all the students are involved in learning and teaching one another different kata (forms), waza (structured self defense), and drills. After both giving and receiving quite a few bruises during kumite (fighting), you can't help but smile at your fellow midshipmen. Everyone learns at his or her own pace, with friendly encouragement and friends challenging one another to better themselves. The Gung Fu club is always happy to share its knowledge; they only require that you come willing to learn.

JUDO

Since the start of the academic year, the USNA Judo Team has already doubled in size and is still continually growing, providing more and more Midshipmen with the opportunity of earning black belt before their time of graduation.

During the 2011 Fall Semester, the judo team competed in tournaments at the University of Maryland, North Carolina, and Drexel to name a few. During these tournaments, not only was the judo team successful in individual matches, but it also performed well overall as a team. At the Maryland tournament a total of 6 medals were won (4 gold, 1 silver, 1 bronze), with the Navy Judo Team taking all three medals for the 175 pound weight division and taking 3rd overall as a team. In North Carolina, Navy Judo won 2 gold medals and 1 silver medal. The team was honored to also have Olympic Gold Medalist Kosei Inoue visit the academy to demonstrate and aid in the training of the Navy Judo Team.

During the Spring Semester of the 2011 Academic Year, Navy Judo participated in the Virginia State Open in hopes of competing in the National Collegiate Team Championships.

Cheerleading

Navy Cheerleading represents the Naval Academy at many different functions including sporting events, community service projects and pep rallies. The squad auditions new members in the fall to support the Navy Football and Basketball teams and they can be seen cheering for Navy on various major sports networks. This past season was quite the rebuilding year. The squad spent much of its time organizing the team dynamically and critiquing basic skills which include stunts, pyramids, tumbling and dancing. They had a great time growing as a team and supporting Navy athletics while travailing to different locations such as LA Tech, the Pentagon, East Carolina and San Diego.

Navy Cheerleading has already begun preparing for next season where they plan on participating in UCA Cheer Camp in Scranton, PA. The team has also begun working on readying itself to compete against other college cheerleading teams at UCA Nationals in 2012. Other plans for the team in the upcoming year include reaching out to the community by participating in a diabetes walk, supporting incoming troops from deployment and walking to support finding a cure for cancer.

Ye Olde

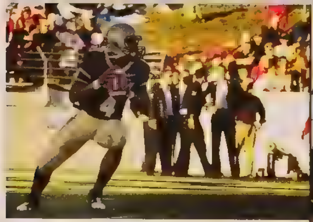
Activities

However unacquainted Midshipmen might be with their textbooks, they are no strangers to fun and relaxation. At times when others might crack open a cold one, of root beer that is, the ever high and dry Midshipmen turn to a cornucopia of hobbies to escape the stresses and demands of life within the Brigade. Be it on the field, on the stage, or in the community, Midshipmen are internationally renowned for their extracurricular pastimes.

Cannoneers

The USNA Cannoneers provide all the firepower for Navy football games and parades. They even appear at pep rallies with their mini cannon which still packs a big punch! Whether you are jealous because you see them out in their quasi-pirate uniform at games or because they get out of the parades to yell "FIRE", you can't kill them to take their jobs. It's a 5th Company thing, sort of. You don't choose to join the Cannoneers, they choose you.

The Cannoneers are at every home football game helping blast Navy's way to victory.



Team Bill

Most people look at the sidelines and see the Naval Academy's mascots, the goats, but few realize the driving force behind them. Team Bill are the people in the trenches, the people ensuring these goats are at every game whether Navy plays in in New York or Philadelphia; and yes, they are also the people who clean up the goat's poop. This year was a big year seeing Bill 33 open the season running onto the field at M and T Bank stadium. Bill 34 didn't want Bill 33 to have all the attention when he bucked the Army Mule in Philadelphia almost causing the unsuspecting whoop to fall from the Mule. There are few teams on the yard as special as Team Bill. They do everything from shaking hands with the highest ranking people in the Navy to even serving as pawns in a bet between the Chief of Staff of the Army and Navy. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, Team Bill is a one of a kind opportunity that its members will never forget.

The Jolly Rogers

USNA Silent Drill Team

The United States Naval Academy Silent Drill Team, "The Commandant's Own," was established in September of 1990 by a group of midshipmen. The Jolly Rogers' missions include performing at various Naval Academy sporting events and official ceremonies. They compete at invitational drill meets around the nation and represent not only the Naval Academy but also the United States Navy in a wide variety of public appearances which include local military events, and other special performances as dictated by the Commandant of Midshipmen.

Each member of the team trains rigorously in order to memorize the entire performance routine and execute it without any verbal commands. They also compete in regulation drill and practice everyday in order to obtain and maintain a high level of bearing and precision in their manual execution.

D&B

Drum and Bugle Corps

Over 60 members strong, the Drum and Bugle Corps supports the Brigade of Midshipmen musically, performing at formations, parades, and athletic competitions. This year, the D&B performed at every football game, including the Navy-Air Force game and the Poinsettia Bowl in San Diego. D&B also supported Navy's volleyball, lacrosse, hockey, and basketball teams, witnessing the women's basketball team clinch the top seed going into the Patriot League championship.

Traveling to promote the Naval Academy, the D&B performed at band shows in New York, the Gasparilla Pirate Festival in Tampa Bay, and Serenade in Brass in Harrisburg. The next time "The Thunderer" gets stuck into your head during noon meal formation or parade season, please feel free to thank the D&B!

Pipes and Drums

The Pipes and Drums along with the Highland Dancers instill the highland spirit into our football teams by playing every home football and sprint game as well traveling to the Notre Dame game in NYC, Air Force game in Colorado Springs, and the Army Navy Game in Philly. The West Point Pipe Band even joined The Pipes and Drums this year for a halftime show. The talent and popularity of the band have led to spring and winter concerts (as an exhibition of our wide repertoire), invitations to lead NYC's Tartan Day parade, and headline The Royal Military College of Canada's mess night. The band was commanded by MIDN 1/C Dave Connell in the Fall and MIDN 1/C Patrick Sullivan in the Spring.

Color Guard

Color Guard is a team of 30 dedicated Midshipmen that carry the colors at all Naval Academy events and perform nation-wide as representatives of the Naval Academy. In recent years, the Color Guard has performed at events ranging from the World Series to Mardi Gras ceremonies and local Boy Scout meetings. In addition to performances, the Color Guard attends yearly competitions in Louisiana, New York, and Pennsylvania. This year the team placed in the top five at every competition, taking home a total of three trophies. All members are hand selected over their plebe summer through a rigorous process in which over 80% of the selectees are cut. Only those who display the utmost proficiency at drill and maintain the highest uniform standards are kept through the academic year.

Men's Glee Club

Under the direction of Dr. Aaron Smith, the United States Naval Academy Men's Glee Club has achieved national prominence as one of America's premier men's choral ensembles. They appeared on network television such as The Kennedy Center Honors (CBS), The Today Show (NBC), The Early Show (CBS), Christmas in Washington (NBC and TNT), and Good Morning, America (ABC).

The ensemble has performed throughout the U.S. and abroad including Chile, Argentina, and multiple European tours with performances at St. Peters in the Vatican, cathedrals in Brussels, Wells, Winchester, Salisbury, and St. Paul's in London. The Men's Glee Club's most recent collaborations include Boston Pops Orchestra, Charlotte Symphony, Phoenix Symphony, Columbus Symphony, and Nashville Symphony.

In addition to attending the ensemble's annually sold-out concerts of Handel's Messiah with the Annapolis Symphony which is often nationally and internationally broadcast, you can also enjoy the Men's Glee Club's musical stylings on their newly released CD.

Gospel Choir

The United States Naval Academy Gospel Choir, under the direction of Ms. Karla Scott, is an upbeat inspirational musical ensemble. Comprised of Midshipmen from various places, races and creeds, the Gospel Choir is reflective of the diverse interests and ethnicities within the Brigade of Midshipmen. Their common bond is musical talent and a passion to praise through song.

Throughout its distinguished history, the Gospel Choir has performed at the Martin Luther King, Jr. National Historic Site and has spread its message of inspiration, motivation, and exhortation throughout the country.

The Gospel Choir is a wonderful part of the Naval Academy family. Not only does it allow its members to express their faith in song, but it also provides an opportunity to witness the diversity and talents of today's Brigade of Midshipmen. The Gospel Choir continues to excel, spreading the joy of Gospel Music and assisting the Naval Academy to fulfill its various missions.

Navigators

Mission: "To advance the gospel of Jesus and His kingdom into the nations through spiritual generations of laborers living and discipling among the lost."

The Navigators is a Christian community striving to impact the Brigade through small groups, one-to-one mentorships, prayer, retreats, and mission trips. They are committed to investing time into the lives of midshipmen. Their overall purpose at the Naval Academy is to help Midshipmen and Officers cultivate a personal relationship with Jesus Christ through teaching, worship, and fellowship. This emphasis contributes to the moral mission of the Naval Academy and affords those interested the opportunity to develop their faith,.

The Navigators is a ministry of evangelism, discipleship, and leadership development that begins at USNA and continues beyond Commissioning. There are Navigator staff worldwide who are committed to continue the building process into the lives of men and women who leave the Academy so as to help them become leaders in their families, the military, and their communities.

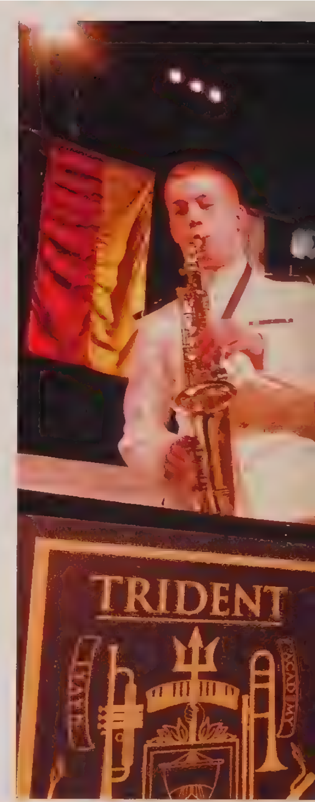
Trident Brass



The Trident Brass had an exciting year! The band brought in some very talented fresh faces who combined with returning stars such as Jim Berg on vibes, Natalie Crow and Adam Carlson on Piano anchoring the rhythm section and strong lead players in Anthony Walters (alto sax), Bill Jones (trombone) and "Big" Mike Ramsey hitting the high notes on trumpet the Band sounded better than ever in 2011.

The highlight of the year was the band's stellar performance at the Reno Jazz festival at the University of Nevada, where the band competed against some of the best musical talent on the west coast. Solo Trumpet player Kyle Britt and Vibraphone Jim Berg earned "Outstanding Improvisational Solo" Honors and led the band in outscoring many schools with dedicated music programs and degrees. The trombone section stood tall in "Bone Busters" where all the members of the section were featured to include Jones, returning anchor to the section Nick Deluca, young talent Ben Morris and a cool performance by Marcus Lewis on Bass Trombone. Stephanie Wexler made the crowd swoon with her beautiful rendition of "Embraceable You" and the band closed the show with "A Night in Tunisia" receiving a standing ovation from the only full house that any band at the festival played to.

The band promises to bring great performances into 2012 as young players like Chris Humber (trumpet) Tom Uyttebroek (Tenor Sax), and Chris Arndt (alto sax) return to fill the roles played so well by the graduating firsties from the great class of 2011. The band would like to thank MU1 Mike "Iron Mike" Bogart, and MU1 Matt "Blackjack" Shea for their time and tutelage whom without, the band just wouldn't groove as hard. Midshipmen Action Group

The Midshipman Action Group (MAG) was established in 1992 as a community relations program to be organized and maintained by the Brigade of Midshipmen. MAG currently offers a variety of educational, environmental, and social service volunteer projects coordinated with community partners from the Annapolis, Baltimore, and D.C. areas. MAG aims to provide reliable, diligent, and enthusiastic volunteers willing to offer their time, talent, and energy. MAG also hopes to better prepare midshipmen for future service by encouraging peer leadership, teamwork, character development, morale, selflessness, and good will towards others.

The mission of the midshipmen-run Yard Patrol Squadron is to provide its members an opportunity to enhance themselves professionally through leadership, seamanship, and navigation. It serves for many as their first taste of command and responsibility while still wearing the anchor of a midshipman, as they progress from a bridge watchstander to command of their own pennants and beyond. Squadron is an excellent opportunity for any leadership minded individual and a must for any who hope to one day command ships of their own. Ex Scientia, Tridens.

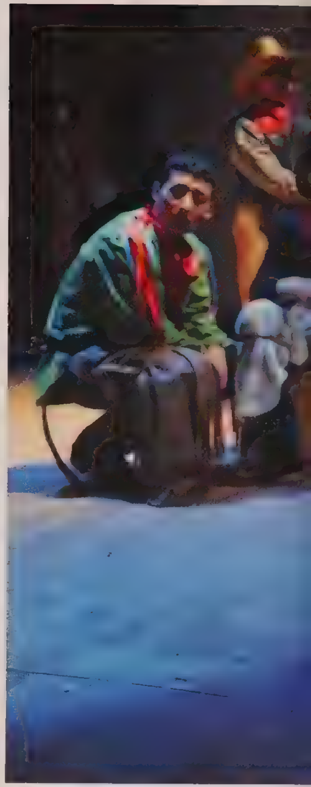
Masqueraders



In the fall, Masquerader's produced Lynn Rigg's Green Grow the Lilacs. With a cast of over 20 midshipmen, Green Grow the Lilacs conveyed a message of acceptance in a foreign land, cultural diversity, and changing societal norms, all of which are relevant to life at the academy.

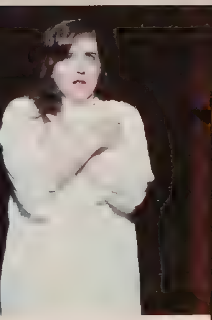
Several members of the Masqueraders were fortunate enough to perform at the National Musuem of the American Indian, in Washington, DC. Audience memebrs were able to make historical connections to the ballads the Midshipmen sang which were incorporated into their fall production.

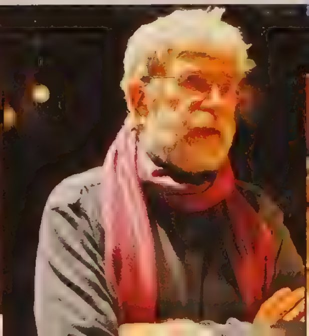
In the spring, Midshipman directors were able to produce an evening of One Act plays. With Carolyne Vu directing The Simple Life written by ENS Sierra Cox (a recently graduated Midshipman), John Tanalega directing The Worker by Walter Wykes, and Mark Pfender directing Found a Peanut by David Marguiles, the One Act plays were a hit among the brigade. The two nights of production kept audiences intrigued and rolling in their seats with laughter.

Masqueraders hopes to continue its role as a cultural outlet of the Brigade, helping to reach out into the community, and reach into the emotions and feelings of Midshipmen. They also hope to continue to entertain, intrigue, and train both actors and audiences with productions for years to come.

Crew members work long hours backstage and behind the scenes to make sure that every performance is a success.

The cast of Green Grow the Lilacs performed on stage at the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian.





Dolphin Club

The Dolphin Club one of the largest professional ECA's on the yard. Dolphin Club's mission is to provide midshipmen with as wide an exposure to the submarine force as possible. They achieve this through a variety of ways, including tours of submarines, lectures from professionals within the submarine community, and bi-monthly luncheons in Washington D.C. at the Army-Navy Country Club. A unique thing that Dolphin Club does is once each semester they visit a submarine base on the east coast. This past fall semester they took 20 Midshipman to Groton, CT. In the spring they took 12 midshipmen to Naval Submarine Base Kings Bay, GA. Members of the Dolphin Club are committed to preparing for their future serving as Naval Officers.

The National Eagle Scout Association is a group of about 400 Eagle Scout Midshipmen, who participate in community service and outreach to the Scouting community. This year, in honor of the 100th anniversary of scouting Eagle Scout Midshipmen participated in an outreach activity on the USNS Comfort in Baltimore. Hundreds of Scouts gathered and the Midshipmen spoke about their experiences and the Naval Academy. Over 25 Midshipmen participated in the Navy Football Scout Day when over 1000 Scouts visited the yard for a weekend full of Navy Football and an exciting 38-37 win over Central Michigan. Midshipmen visited Cub Scout packs in the tri-city area where they spoke about their experiences and helped inspire the Scouts to do their best.

Each year the USNA National Eagle Scout Association holds its annual Jamboree, with hundreds of Scouts coming to the Naval Academy for Martin Luther King weekend. This annual highlight includes merit badge instruction, a show full of skits, the USMC Baltimore Construction Battalion static display and much more. The event was led by MIDN 2/C Corey Theiss, who with assistance from his staff completed a flawless weekend of practical leadership experience and fun. Courses were taught that included first aid, space exploration, wilderness survival, personal fitness and much more. More than 50 Midshipmen came on the cold Saturday morning in January and gave their time in order to provide the best possible experience for the Scouts to experience aspects of both the Navy and Marine Corps.

Semper Fi Society

During the past year, the Semper Fi Society went to great measures in working towards its mission of training, educating, and exposing Midshipmen to the lifestyle of the Marine Corps. In order to offer these experiences, the Semper Fi Society conducted multiple SMTs, Tailgates, Tactical Decision Making Games, and Range Days. The Range Days proved to be a particular favorite of Midshipmen, many of whom where were given their first opportunity to become familiar with the M4, Binelli Shotgun, and even the M240B Machine gun.

Throughout the year the Semper Fi Society also conducted events such as a Battle Site Study trip to Manassas, VA, a trip to the Marine Corps Museum, and Marine Corps movie nights to help inform Midshipmen on the history of the Marine Corps. The Semper Fi Society takes pride in being a part of the Marine Corps's representation at the Academy and is looking forward to another year of supporting the Brigade in every way possible.

International Clubs

One of the major factors contributing to the uniqueness of Bancroft Hall is that it is home to people from all regions of the world. This mixture of backgrounds creates a diverse environment perfect for anyone open to learning about different cultures. There are multiple foreign clubs which provide Midshipmen the opportunity to share and learn about a wide variety of customs and traditions.

The German Club, offers Midshipmen the opportunity to expand their cultural knowledge and language abilities through German conversation hours, movie nights, and outings. Club members enjoy discussing German traditions, geography, and politics, as well as club members' past experiences abroad. This past year, club members have been working towards the German Proficiency Badge, a decoration of the German military.

The task of keeping the French language and culture alive and well in Annapolis falls on the shoulders of the USNA French Club. Composed of both French and American cadets and midshipmen, Le Club Français provides opportunities for midshipmen to participate in various French related events, from attending French film festivals to bilingual social hours over cidre et frommage.

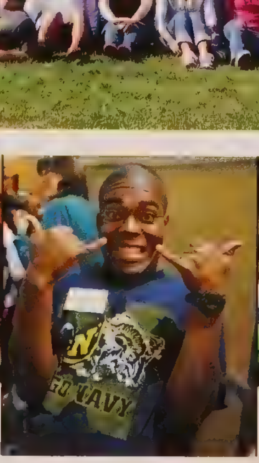
CRU

Campus Crusade for Christ

There are two things we're all about: Jesus and community.

We love Jesus. Plain and simple. We think he's the most awesome person to ever walk the face of the earth. And we think that our relationship with him is more fulfilling than anything else on earth. In fact, we love and enjoy him so much that we want everyone else to have the opportunity to know him too. That's the main reason that we're around. In fact, that's even what our mission statement says. CRU is a community where the gospel captures hearts, transforms lives, and launches men and women into a lifelong adventure with Jesus Christ.



OCF

Officers' Christian Fellowship

Officers' Christian Fellowship seeks to grow Midshipmen in their Christian faith and connect them to other believers to allow them to grow through fellowship and accountability. In addition to weekly meetings, members travel on retreats in the fall and spring. During Spring Break 2011, many Midshipmen were sent to Jamaica and to White Sulphur Springs, PA on service trips to interact and discuss the gospel with local communities. Retreats not only provide these Midshipmen with the chance to worship and discuss the gospel with others, but they also have the opportunity to do other fun things like horseback riding, hiking, dancing, and water tubing!

Jewish Midshipman Club

The Jewish Midshipmen Club (JMC) is proud to provide a community setting for all Midshipmen, regardless of religion or belief. Every Tuesday evening you can find a sizable group of Midshipmen enjoying some plain or pineapple pizza in the Levy Center, usually learning more about Jewish life, culture, and history through games, films, and real-life experiences. They also spend time learning about the different foods and cultures of the Middle East, especially Israel. Every year the JMC sponsors an Academy wide spring break trip to Israel, as well as helping organize other trips to the region. This past year saw many trips to Hillel groups at local universities, picnics at the beautiful homes of local Jewish families, Jewish Warrior Weekend at West Point; we also hosted our own Jewish Warrior Weekend here in Annapolis and journeyed to multiple cultural events such as a Friends of the IDF Banquet and a Jewish Cultural Evening held in DTA. The JMC is happy to have anyone interested in learning more about other cultures.

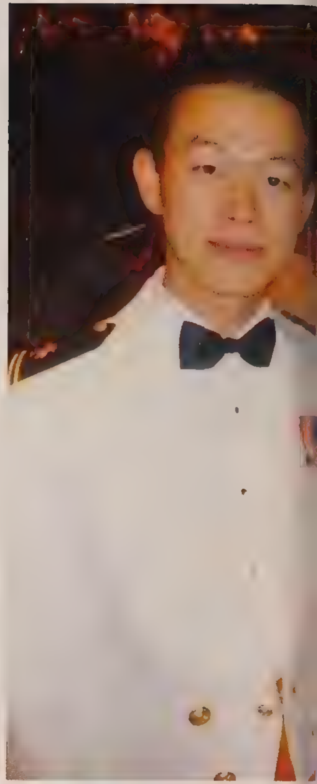
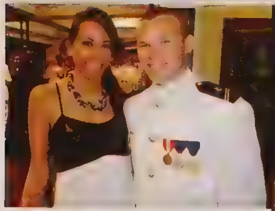
International Midshipmen Club



Every year, a handful of foreign military students enter the Naval Academy. Though 69 members seems like just a speck among the 1,200 American midshipmen, they are a distinctive group. After significantly improving their English skills during Plebe Summer, they are ready to face the academic year. After graduation, each international midshipmen has a 6 to 20 year service commitment depending on their country of citizenship.

Currently, there over 35 foreign countries represented in the Brigade. Most of them have some kind of prior military experience, either in regular forces or service academies. They are equally dispersed throughout the 30 companies, with a mission both to learn and to raise awareness about the international community within the Brigade.



International Midshipmen celebrate their heritage and traditions through performances at the 2011 International Fair and International Ball.

The core element of the foreign affairs conference is the roundtable, which provides delegates the opportunity to engage in probing analysis of a particular issue and to present their research in the subject area. Each roundtable is comprised of ten to twelve delegates, a hand-picked midshipmen moderator, and two field experts, who offer an in-depth specificity to discussions.

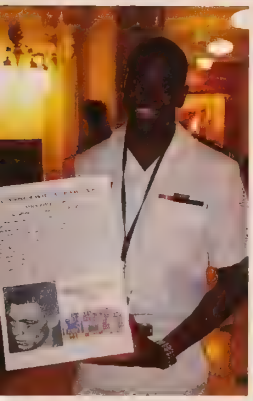
Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference

Since 1961, the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference (NAFAC) has provided an annual forum for outstanding undergraduates to meet and discuss major contemporary issues. The Conference has become a way of bringing together the nation's future Navy and Marine Corps officers with their peers from other colleges and universities, both civilian and military, from across the country and around the world.

The Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference attracts distinguished speakers each year. Recent guests include: President George H. W. Bush, Condoleezza Rice, Stephen Hadley, General Wesley Clark, Vice President Joseph Biden, and Henry Kissinger.

2011 will mark the 51st year of the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference. Past years have focused on topics such as PEOPLE POWER POLITICS and the effects of Social Media in a Global World.

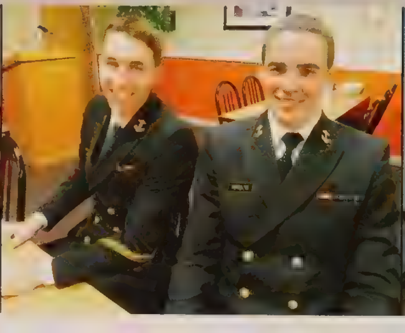
2011 Roundtable Topics included Censorship, "PEOPLE, POWER, POLITICS"



NAVY ETHICS TEAM

Every Midshipman faces a semester filled with ethical theories and philosophy, but the members of the Ethics Team encounter them year-round. Together as a team, they read, discuss, argue, and decide on a moral decision in a difficult situation. Fifteen of these situations, or cases, arrive in a case packet at the beginning of each semester. Armed with the teachings of philosophers such as Kant and Plato, the Midshipmen compete with other universities first at the local and regional levels. For the past two years the team has dominated the competition and secured a place in the national tournament. The team traveled to Arizona, Florida, Ohio among other places to show off the ethical face of the Navy.

Navy competed at Maryland and in Ohio giving each competition a tough go around.



Navy got 3rd place in the Florida competition out of 30 plus schools.

WRNV

WRNV provides musical support for the Brigade. They support all events, as small as dining outs and tailgates to large events such as the I-Ball and pep rallies. They hold recording sessions and practices in the recording room which is open for Midshipmen to utilize. They also have a fully functional broadcast studio. It is safe to say that if an event had music or a PA system, there were WRNV members working behind the scenes to make the event a success!

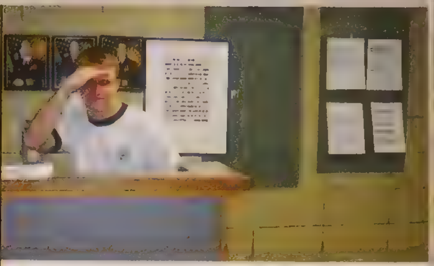
OFFICE OF THE COMMANDANT

Our major accomplishments this year have been publishing a little magazine every once in a while that no one reads, and being extremely good looking. We'll let you decide which one we're better at.

These are some of The LOG staffers. They are very sneaky. And cool.



The LOG

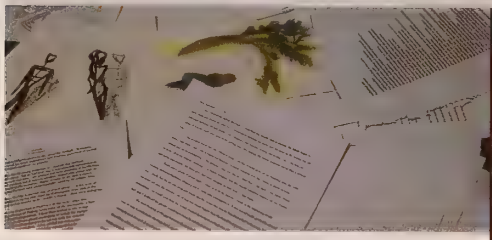
Another year, another eight issues. Well, actually seven that other one never existed I don't know what you're talking about shut up! Surviving a year as the Brigade's official aboveground underground humor magazine is tough. Can you say red tape? "Sir, it's just a joke I swear!" But we laughed, we cried, the artists doodled, the writers joked, we stayed up late, and every once in a while we actually managed to publish a magazine. And usually only two weeks late! And we didn't even get LT Kendris fired! And people even liked it! We never tried to take ourselves too seriously and neither should you; it's just the best magazine ever to grace good ole' Canoe U. Hope you enjoyed The LOG!

One can never know what the LOG will produce. They are sneaky, crazy, and will do almost anything to get the greatest stories.

Labyrinth

The Labyrinth is the Brigade's distinguished Literary Magazine, featuring works of art, poetry, short stories, and so much more. Each year, their staff of midshipmen works hard to publicize, edit, and lay out the entirety of the Labyrinth's annual publication. With support from Professor Beckman and LCDR Bushnell of the English Department, these midshipmen have the unique opportunity of taking part in and contributing to the year long process of publishing a credible literary magazine. This year's Labyrinth takes on the theme of Lewis Carroll's Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

Midshipmen travel from far and wide to experience the many talents Labyrinth's monthly Open Mic Nights have to offer.



In addition to the annual publication, the Labyrinth is also in charge of hosting Open Mic Nights that feature the musical, artistic, and overall creative talents of the Brigade. From Hula dancing to magic shows, original song writing to poetry reading, Open Mic Night gives the Brigade a chance to strut their stuff in front of an audience of peers. We are an organization dedicated to giving a creative outlet to the sometimes surprising and always remarkable talent the whole. Brigade has to offer.

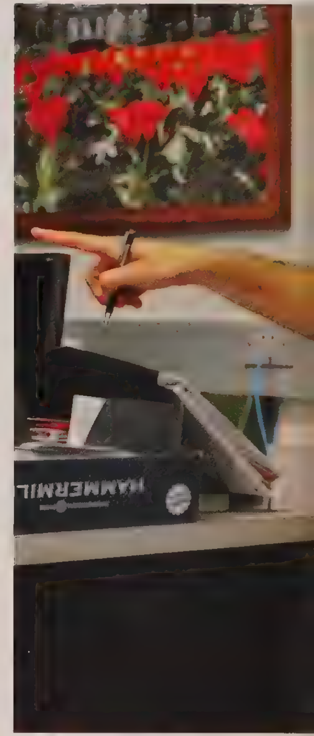
Lucky Bag

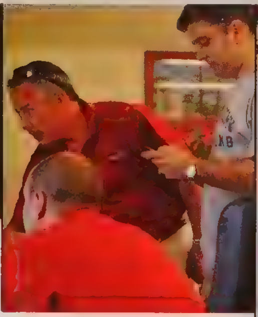


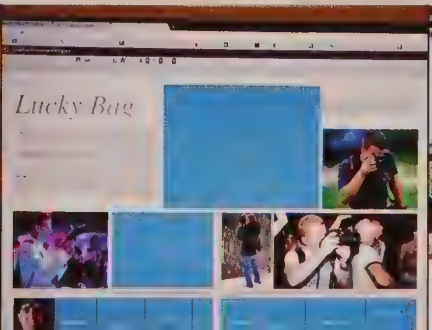
Have you ever wondered who the creative bunch of Midshipmen is who work behind the scenes to make a memorable yearbook for the entire Brigade? Well here is a rare opportunity for you to see who is normally hiding behind the cameras and computers working on your Lucky Bag!

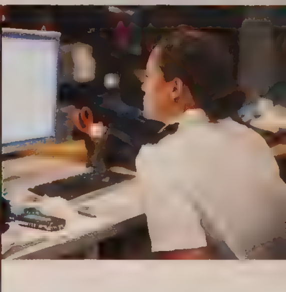
Not only are the members of Lucky Bag familiar with the stresses and time crunches which Midshipmen face every day in the Hall, but they also have the added pressure of completing a book which fully encompasses the Brigade's activity for an entire academic year… and then some!

The Lucky Bag staff is present at every event on the yard; and capturing all of the action on film. They also work tirelessly by collecting information from involved Midshipmen and writing captions to make sure everyone and every group on the yard is represented for their efforts and accomplishments. This book could not have been completed without the help of everyone on the yard, the faculty, staff, and the entire Brigade of Midshipmen. We thank you and hope that you enjoy the Class of 2011's Lucky Bag!

Here's a look behind the scenes at what this spread looked like before it got finished. Now multiply that by 848 pages!







It is safe to say that members of the Lucky Bag staff will be taking the summer off from eating pizza for it was a large incentive to get them up in the Lucky Bag room for long hours every night while working on the book. It might also be safe to say that the 4/C will be happy they no longer have to organize and reorganize every Lucky Bag from 1894 to present.

The photographers are so focused on getting the perfect shot that they seldom notice when they are on the other side of the lens.

SCUBA

The Midshipman Diving/SCUBA Unit promotes recreational diving and communities involving Navy diving in the Brigade. They provide gear and certification training at low costs, fun movement orders to excellent dive sites, Saturday Morning Training sessions for companies, and guest lecturers from military and civilian divers. The Unit itself operates effectively through a chain of command of highly trained Midshipmen in various roles from OIC and XO to Training and Public Affairs. They even have a website at www.usnascuba.com that is frequently updated so check it out to join their next dive!

Parachute Team

Why would anyone jump out of a perfectly good airplane? What if the door was open? The USNA Parachute Team doesn't second-guess itself when it comes to skydiving from 13,000 ft. No experience required, but overcoming your fears is absolute. These motivated Midshipmen skydivers have participated in events all over the country such as Collegiate Nationals, jumping with the Navy Leap Frogs, and skydiving with the West Point Black Knights in a co-academy event.

The charge for the creation of a Naval Academy Parachute Team has been a long and arduous process for a host of people. No one is more understanding of this challenge than the alumni who came before the charter group of midshipmen and officers. Initially, it was only a vision which midshipmen strived to bring to life; but now the Parachute Team is working hard towards reaching its end goal of being a fully funded organization of technically skilled, motivated, and professional midshipmen ready to take the reigns of leadership in the service of their nation.

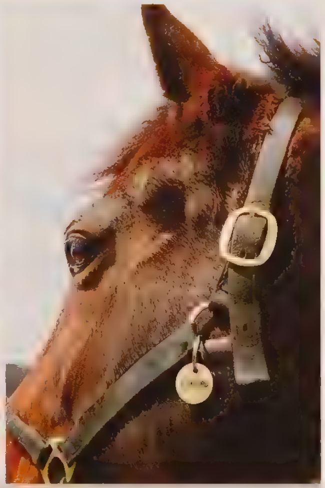
Equestrian Club

This year, the Equestrian Club began competing in Zone 4 Region 1 of IHSA, against fifteen other colleges in the local area, including Goucher College, Christopher-Newport University, and University of Maryland. The club had 16 competing members who took lessons with Coach Rob Burk to prepare for shows. The club has 50 members total who together this year spent over 150 man hours renovating our barn at MD Sunrise Farms, and have welcomed three new horses to our club for a total of six horses.

In the future, the Equestrian Club is looking forward to volunteering at Maryland Therapeutic Riding Center and being part of the Wounded Warriors program. In the fall, the club will be moving to compete in Zone 4 Region 4 which will allow them to compete in Western style riding as well as Hunt Seat.



Below: Members of the Equestrian Club show off their show clothes and horse sense.

Paintball

The Navy Paintball team has 3 core competencies in developing both its players and midshipmen: communication, composure, and critical thinking. They travel up and down the East Coast competing in National Collegiate Paintball Association (NCPA) tournaments against teams such as UMD, UConn, Penn State, UF, Towson, George Mason, and West Point. Last year, Navy was ranked 13th out of over 80 teams in the nation and is looking to place even higher this year. The team won PSP Collegiate World Cup this season which was the culminating tournament of the fall season.

Mountaineering Club

The United States Naval Academy Mountaineering Club takes Midshipmen hiking, climbing, and camping along the eastern coast of the United States. These trips to various locations have seen a wide range of weather conditions. These Midshipmen hike the Appalachian Trail in Maryland on hot autumn days, snowy January nights, and spring days that hit them with sleet, hail, rain, and snow from all directions. They have also gone climbing in Virginia on cliffs overlooking the Potomac River while it overflowed with muddy runoff water after a fierce storm the day before. Some members have also ventured all the way to the summit of Mount Washington on President's Day weekend where freezing temperatures and gale-force winds nearly blew an unexpected plebe off the top of the mountain. This group strives to provide Midshipmen with opportunities to push themselves physically, to develop outdoor and survival skills, and to lead their fellow Midshipmen on multi-day trips into the wild.

Timothy J. Baker

Naval Flight Officer

Born Timothy Jared Baker and commonly known as Tim, Baker is a mutant, possessing animal-keen senses, enhanced physical capabilities, retracting bone claws, and a healing factor that allows him to quickly recover from virtually any wound, disease or toxin, enabling him to live beyond a normal human lifespan. This healing ability enabled the super soldier program Weapon X to bond the near indestructible metal alloy adamantiam to his skeleton and claws. His willingness to use deadly force and his brooding nature became standard characteristics for comic book anti-heroes by the end of the 1980s.

Jake R. Barreiro

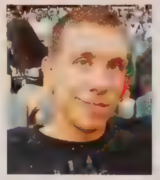
Surface Warfare Officer

Jake Barreiro aka Juggs aka Juggernaut aka Guido rains from the Dirty Dirty. Jake did not get accepted into USNA because of his smarts, but because the Boppity Wops were underrepresented at USNA. Aspiring to one day have a body like Mike "The Situation", Jake can be found working hard in his rack while eating a variety of fatty foods so he can work on his SWO body. Jake's accomplishments include being a member of the Ultimate Frisbee team, Judo team (because he secretly likes grabbing other dudes), and being a member of the 2% club (mainly because he has the only girl who will ever want to be with a hairy guido).

Lionel R. Becenti

Naval Flight Officer

Lionel "Ben"centi can be described as the character that is emulated in the South Park episode, World or Warcraft…lazy, greasy, and sits in front of his computer all day. At least he has his $3500 Alienware laptop, which he named "Shelia," to put in some quality man hours in the gaming world with the plebes. When Ben is not with Sheila, he can be guaranteed to be found in one of two places: clogging one of the 3-0 heads or in his rack. Lastly, Ben has carried on the Karen Smith legacy in so many ways: picking a fight with a painted bed sheet and loosing his dignity after being fire-man carried through Gate 1. Good luck Ben! LG



Jonathan D. Bottler

Submarines

Alaska Johnny is a kind, caring individual who anyone would feel comfortable approaching. We regularly enjoy stories from his long and fruitful life which has so far included the invention of fire, the Civil War and one swimming pool related death. Mr. President had the biggest staff in the history of submarines, and he knows more about Chesty Puller and USMC practicum than any yut yut. Unfortunately, he believes this entitles him to being ridiculously stubborn whenever he wants. Because of this child-like behavior, all of his friends refuse to be seen with him in public. I want to say that we'll miss him, but I'm out of space. Yut.

Matthew J. Bova

Julius G. Bratton

Navy Pilot

Julius hails from Woodlawn, Tennessee where he grew up on a farm. Julius graduated from Northwest High School in Clarksville, Tennessee, and always had a desire to attend a service academy and serve in the military. Many late nights and the culmination of 4 years of hard work at the Academy has brought him to this point. He would like to thank his parents for their love, support, and guidance throughout his life, and all those who have helped make him who he is and guide him to the point he's at. Next stop, flight school...after that, the sky's the limit! He wishes continued success to the Class of 2011, and would like to leave them with a quote from the Dos Equis guy. "It's never too early to start beefing up your obituary." Congratulations Class of 2011!

Ashley I. Bucholz

USMC Ground

Porter-Lott is up, Robinson is on deck, and BOOTHOLE is on hold! Wait, who? Oh, BUCHOLZ. Just call her Ashley. Whatever, it's not like you came out of your room all four years anyways, who knew you were so fun. Here's an idea, let's go run around DTA in heels. Remember Vanilla Bean? There's a throwback. Don't forget that creepy guy at the pool. Always the motivator after a bad track performance--Wait for me Ash, I'm on my last set of hurdles. I guess that scar is just a way to remember you by. I will always cherish our moments at the pit, and basically every other physical event we ever did. 0530 runs in the snow? I'm down. Four years of Division I track and we still can't run a mile and a half to save our lives, so why not three? Guess what, we made it. So what's next…Vegas '11. -ANR

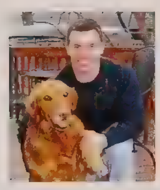
Robert W. Burdon

Navy Intelligence

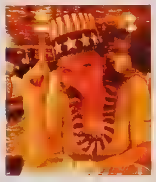
Mr. Robert William Burdon, A.K.A. the "Glass Man." Rob was known for always being broken. Blue and Golds were Rob's uniform of the day. He was the only person I've ever known to run through six cell phones in less than a year. He slept on his chair more than he slept on his bed. Like Nick would always say, "If his head wasn't attached to him, he would probably lose that too." Despite being broken, clumsy, and forgetful, Rob is one of the best companions a person could ever ask for. He is fun to be around, throws one hell of a party, and knows how to have a good time. But, Rob always puts other first. Best of all, he is a good friend.

Samuel C. Carlson

USMC Ground



Sam "Sir Conrad" Carlson hails from somewhere in Minnesota. He was the captain of Navy Hockey his firstie year and often reminds me of a spider monkey because of his small stature. Sam would be the next Wayne Gretzki if it wasn't for his unconditional love for the USA. His greatest achievements while at the Academy were winning a giant crab pot trophy and landing Carlea Sandberg as his Ring Dance date. Sam is a family man and a true patriot. He loves the outdoors, his dog Huck, hockey, watching movies until 3 a.m., and his roommates. I'll sleep soundly at night knowing this Swedish pretty-boy is defending our country as a US Marine.



Sarah E. Duffy

Dental Corps

Sarah Duffy, also know as "Duffle Bags," "Duff Dog," "Duffle Balls," "Dufster," was an innocent plebe that enjoyed long walks around hospital point, trips to the observatory, and long nights in quiet rooms in the basement of Chauvenet during study period. Innocent Sarah got through plebe year with great grades, a perfect on the PRT, and no hiccups in her performance…until youngster cruise happened. Now, a 1/C about to graduate, she finally got into "one of those big named schools" she always talked about as a kid (PENN) and upon graduating will promise free dental cleanings for anyone in First Company. GET SOME DUFFY! GP

Emily A. Frost

Surface Warfare Officer

For 4 years you haven't let me brag about you, so now you get what's coming. Snarky you say? Psh. So you don't want me to talk about both of your honors majors? Oh well. No, Thomas, I'm still not on the sailing team, but little Emmy Lou sure is. And NAFAC. And UKSP. And Glee Team. From Brazil to Bermuda, your "noises" echo to everyone who has had the chance to meet you. SWO Mama 4 life, the fleet, the graduate school community (and maybe even the Kiwis) won't know what to do with the little blue eyed belle from Severna Park. You were there for me always, even in my "blue" days! Gros bisous ma belle! K

Peter Gibbons-Neff Jr.

USMC Ground

From Rosemont, Pennsylvania he sailed with VOST all four years and loved every moment of it. Sailing is his life, enough said. Thank you to everyone who helped me get through here and for all the great times!

Nicole M. Gomes

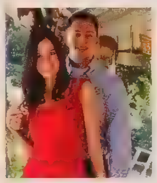
Surface Warfare Officer

"Do you guys have any chocolate?" If I said this person is loud, big butt and funny hair, it could mean anyone but I know it's Gomes, code name: Veronica. Nicole has a life typical of the rich and famous: breakfast, running, eating, leaving restaurants w/o ordering, drinking, spilling drinks, throwing out ID's in clubs, stealing ornaments, tailgates, vomiting on her best friend, vacationing in Ft. Lauderdale, 100 calorie packs (okay, 400 cal packs), crashing cars, tight pants, more running, therapy sessions in B&N, more drinking. At least Ben is only addicted to chocolate now. The bestest friend ever, love you to death.

Jennifer E. Gross

Surface Warfare Officer

Jen Goss is HUGE! Coxswain to rower back to coxswain and finally landing on the IC Sailing team, she is a jack of all trades. Jen may be tiny, but don't let her size fool you, what she lacks in size she makes-up for in personality! Fun loving and silly Jen can make anyone laugh (pillow for protection during plebe summer rack races). An English major with her own library growing from her room - it might be hard to bring all your books with you as you travel the seven seas. Princess Jen loves the outdoors be it the mountains of NH or the beaches of CA. Bon Voyage my friend, the best of luck to you in your many journeys to come!



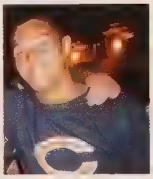
Armando D. Guerrero Jr.

USMC Ground

Armando David Guerrero is an extraverted individual that is always quick to say hello and question others as of how there day is going. He found love with Elizabeth McCauley and is a part of the USNA 2% club. Though he admits he is not a scholarly individual he is a hard worker and very tenacious. His greatest attributes is he aims to make the right decision every time and extend his hand to the aid of others when in need. He is an exciting individual and has a great sense of humor. Overall, Armando David Guerrero is a loyal person who is going to do his best to lighten others' day and put his best foot forward in times of challenge.

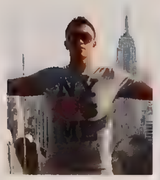
James D. Han

USMC Ground



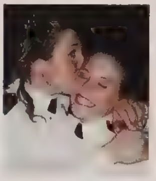
James Han, often confused with 1/C Lee, is a proud son of Munster, South Korea. A patriotic American, his allegiance to the USA is only trumped by his love for Glee and Justin Bieber. As the brains of the defensive backfield for Sprint Football, he was charged with reminding his concussed teammates of their responsibilities. His best defense was preventing Cartwright Hall's admittance into the NAAA. Remembered by: fondness for stuffed animal beds, arguments with Evan, urination habits in SD, Twilight, the legacy, Vo's replacement, another dollar another day, enjoying the high life, and one of the best senses of humor and work ethic.

Dave V. Henson



Submarines

The Naval Academy's quest to become diversified came to an abrupt halt when it came upon Dave "Jesus" Velasquez Henson. Just the pinky finger of this Spanish-speaking, salsa dancing, Filipino American from the streets of Queens, New York makes the Academy the most diversified place in the ENTIRE WORLD. Add on to this his amazing work out schedule (1hr/week in the gym, followed by 1hr of complimenting himself in front of the mirror, "I'm losing weight..Man I'm gettin big"), and you have the ultimate midshipman. If you ask Dave what it is like to be the most interesting man on campus, his sole response to you would be "Word."



Kristin M. Lein

Navy Pilot

Allo! Je m'appelle Kristiiin! J'ADORE Pareee! Right, you speak English now...sometimes anyway. French YPs better than American, eh? You just loved the two spring breaks...wait, we don't do that here? From lady lax days (VS didn't know what they were missing!) to an epic MCM, all the way to Boston, you ran way too much, way too far, way too often, way too happily...thank goodness you saw the light, although you may get some weird looks down in P-cola instead of Quantico. And from PRT...to PRT...to PRT...well, you get the idea...to dining-out, to alpha, you let me lean on you again and again. To graduation, and beyond! xoxoEAFxoxo

Thomas W. Mansfield

Submarines

As a young Chaminade man, Tommy had the Ivy League knocking at the door for his tenacious defense. Four years later, the only thing fresher than #42's turf dogs and gorgeous flow is his lyrical flow. From the streets of Hawaii to 1032 studios, "T Mayne" has been known to drop a beat with the best of them, though he always remained the second best freestyler (and napper) in our room. It might be his boyish blue eyes that make him so popular with the ladies, but not quite as popular as if he actually looked like James Franco. A fierce competitor, loyal teammate, and even better friend, our country's lucky to have Tom in its service.

Kyle J. McGhie

Naval Flight Officer

If you don't know Kyle, you are wrong, very wrong. If you don't think Kyle's car is damn sexy, you are wrong. Did you hear about his weekend? No? He got 12 phone numbers from the sexiest girls on the Eastern seaboard. Anyways, Kyle Joseph McGhie is one of the best friends I've ever had even though he prefers Pad Thai from a place other than Pad Thai.

Grant T. Miller

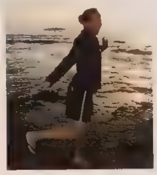
Nuclear Surface Warfare

Grant Miller has done it all. This quantitative economics major has had a hand in nearly every aspect of 1st company from plebe summer to the ac year. He boasts an exceptional QPR and an active social life in the virtual world. Recruited for cross country, Grant Miller now uses his exceptional endurance on the ultimate Frisbee field. Unfortunately, as a Nuke SWO there will be little opportunity for Grant to show off his athletic prowess. Yet Grant has also proven skill with standard commands; expertise that will make him an equally valuable officer to his future division as he was to 1st Company's own YP. Should you ever be in Hawaii, you may just catch a glimpse of this once epic midshipman sailing off into the sunset next to his beautiful fiancée Amy Cory.

Evan M. Mlynarek

USMC Ground

Evan Mlynarek is known by few as the "Italian Stallion" and known by many as the "Queen of Gossip." Ever since Evan was a little girl he has always been a great patriot and republican. He will buy anything red, white and blue or having to do with George W. Bush, including a 300 dollar signed copy of Bush's autobiography. Although Evan is going Marines, you wouldn't think it when you first meet him. He is balding prematurely, he is slightly pear shaped, and he has a smile that will make you want to cuddle with him. Despite this, Evan is a natural born leader and will do the United States Marine Corps proud.

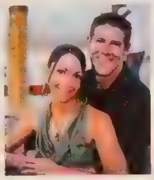


Ashley M. Myers

USMC Pilot

Rah! Yut! Kill! When Ashley was not spending her time on the erg she was busy conquering the O Course and injuring people in the bear pit. This girl is the most mentally and physically tough girl that I know, having won the NWC annual "BAMFathon," and completing the EOD screener "for kicks." When she's not busy being a motivated Marine select, Ashley likes doing mission work at an orphanage in Uganda, skiing with friends, and take trips to the Sandwich Creamery and Potholes in New Hampshire. A loyal friend, teammate, and member of "the Family," she will excel in her career as a Marine Corps Pilot. Good luck friend...MOTIVATE!

Nicholas R. Oberkrom



Navy Pilot

1stCo.'s OLDEST & sleepiest shipmate Nick snoozes his alarm as if there is no tomorrow, MQF, or class for that matter. When given the opportunity to nap, whether 5 minutes or 5 hours, our old guy gets it in. When not asleep, he is the epitome of dedication! Have you ever seen someone find everything in "Fallout 3" & "New Vegas" while prestige-ing in "Black-Ops" on the side…watch 5 TV series at the same time & not miss a single episode? A member of the 2% Club, fiancée to the most witty woman alive, brother to his roommate, & major shareholder of Mountain Dew stock; Nick's unique attributes will serve him well as a Navy Pilot!

Michael E. Orzetti

USMC Ground

A pioneer and innovator - as a plebe, young Michael queried about a weekend at a Forrestal, the CNO said yes, and a revolution was born. The Class President, NAFAC director, 6'4" left wing, and now Georgetown Hoya will be remembered with his Team USA "stars and stripes" hockey stick raised in celebration after a shootout goal in downtown Philly. Big O, Orz, and Michael "Armageddon" Orzetti knew the importance of swag, flow, good style, dangles, going bar down, throwing sauce, and being a member of the Orange Crush. A great friend to all and who always seemed to know everyone, anywhere we went. A true American gentleman.

Taylor H. Paul

USMC Ground

Taylor Paul found his home at the Naval Academy and the Library. For someone who loves to talk, it was an interesting choice. After a year of weekend golfing and weird awakenings, he reached his dream, training sergeant. Finally someone who would listen to him talk (only cuz they had to). After a successful ring dance date with a girl, only referenced by her physical features and actions later that night by our sponsors, he assumed command of 1st Company, and coined his slogan "Be the Best." Winning soccer, selecting USMC ground and winning Color Company capped his career…I guess he figured it out after all.

Tanner J. Powell

Navy Pilot

Few people were caught jumping the wall and have been let go; only one man could do it in a Santa Suit after a night of debauchery: Tanner Powell. His hard work reaped early benefits, culminating in his 2/C title as the brigade recycling sergeant major- one of the more prestigious BS jobs. He is of many refined tastes such as 3rd grade teachers, DTA nights, and showing half of VA beach his birthday suit. Tanner's wit and good humor are renowned. A veteran of academy funded junkets, he is a loyal traveling companion and no stranger to a good time. Tanner will be missed as a drinking buddy by many and a model of virtue to few.

Greg H. Prioleau

Seabees

I was born in Ohio but, raised in Southern California. I wrestled for a long time but, I'm glad it's over now. I'm off to serve the United States as a Seabee. I have the best mom anyone could ask for and, even though I rarely show it I've been told I have one of the best smiles in the world. Endless thanks to the Naval Academy staff, the Navy wrestling coaches, NWE, my friends, my mom and God bless all!

Michael J. Shea

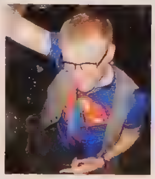
Submarines

Michael Shea made a deal with the devil his Plebe year. USNA was not enough for Michael so he spent his weekends "volunteering" at Goodwill. A member of the O-Club, Michael was a regular at both Prime Rib Night and the 0530 muster for tours. Looking towards a career in finance, Michael once opened the NYSE, danced the Mexican dance and started his own company all in one day. He's like a traveling salesman, traversing the East coast never afraid to talk to anybody and never failing to mark his territory within a few short minutes. He somehow managed to survive spring break '08... and '09 and sped down to spring break '10. Sons of the Severn.

Charles B. Shepperd

Civil Engineer Corps

Charles Barrington Shepperd hales from Santa Rosa, California. He firmly believes that it is the best state in America; ask him about it if you want to kill 30 minutes. Charlie's proudest moment occurred when he caught B. Bonds seven-forty-"nobody cares" homerun; save yourself 30 minutes. Charlie's melanin-free skin and wealthy middle name bring up memories of the Antebellum South. Charles would never fit it; he is so unprejudiced some would call him colorblind. And they'd be right, he literally is. Thus Charlie will enter the CEC right after graduation. Seriously, his dedication while at the USNA will make him a great officer.



Jordan A. Spector

Naval Special Warfare

Jordan Spector, known more affectionately by his friends as "meat," is an integral member of the First Company. His nickname suits him, built more like a bodybuilder than a swimmer, though Jordan did swim four years on the Men's team. However, his skills are not limited to the athletic arena, as he boasts a strong QPR as an Honors English major with Russian minor. Jordan is a perfect fit for the Special Warfare community, motivated and physically fit, though his instigating and joking demeanor might make him a favorite for the BUD/S detailers. Always seeking to better himself, Jordan will make a fine addition to the Navy.

Ryan M. Stumpf

Submarines

He answers to many names including: Ryan, Jerry, Gerry and Stumpf. Perhaps a highlight from his time at the academy was when he managed to offend half the population of Wellington, New Zealand at 2 am with his attempt at a kiwi accent. People might describe Ryan as "simple," however, Stumpf's loyalty and character cannot be called into question (he trained for the screener in PCB on SBX10). A BHK original, one might go so far as to say he is cooler than his little brother, but we know that's not true. If one were in search of a volleyball partner, keep looking. However, if one were in search of a true friend, stop with Stumpf.

Louis R. Troisi

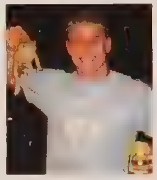
Submarines

Called Bancroft's Martha Stewart for his fastidious cleaning habits, this MIT-caliber wrestler sought the USNA to provide him with the tools to become a career submarine officer. Although his sleeping habits resemble a bat, he found time to memorize Wikipedia for no apparent reason. This 4'6" hunk of man knows how to maintain a conversation well beyond the attention span of his roommates. His professors always know his name, as they enter him tardy each day. You can tell he's an accomplished CS major as Websense has never won. His contagious positive mental attitude and inspecting what he expects make him a top-notch compadre.

William C. Vahey

Surface Warfare Officer

Born in the Virgin Islands Chris' love for the water started at an early age when he swam to Florida. He made his living there as a street performer until he was accepted to the U.S Naval Academy. At the Academy Chris was a member of the Varsity Water Polo team until his Firstie year when he was called up to the big leagues of Navy Club Polo. He service assigned SWO and will head to San Diego with the ladies eagerly awaiting this mans arrival. Chris will go far in life excelling in the Surface Warfare community. He aspires to someday be the governor of his homeland, the U.S. Virgin Islands.



Ryan P. Veatch

Submarines

Number 2 in life, but number 1 in our hearts, Ryan "Peaches" Veatch is a man of many random noises. Hailing from the great state of North Carolina, this bear-pawed, baby-faced man would often spend his days at the Academy in a deep slumber. After attempting nearly every sport offered at the Naval Academy, Ryan has left a legacy of never-ending perseverance in the face of continuous defeat. Here's to quitting dip, hoarding Gatorade, finding the "love of your life," cowboy boots, and wrestling in the snow. The submarine community should be "as happy as a puppy with two peters" to have him as a naval officer.

Kathleen M. Andrews

Navy Pilot

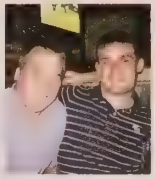
Affectionately named "Chunks" plebe year, Katie got in more trouble for smiling then for her feeble attempts at sounding off. Her passion for her beliefs and her never ceasing concern for others has made her a role model in company and on the Rugby field, the only place where she doesn't smile. Even though her "Dear Santa's" always claimed that she didn't have friends and her boyfriend was a cover, Katie took it with a smile and paid Momo his fifty cents. Here is a toast to new friends, weekend liberty, Count Chocula, venting, and two man rooms. Good Luck Katie!

Matthew J. Arnsberger

Navy Pilot

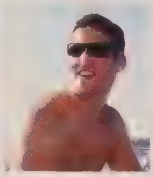
This aspiring pilot, who's call sign "Nessie" is attributed to his ancestry near the Loch Ness. He is an avid sportsman as president of the Rugby Team and Team Bill. He splits his weekend time at Canoe U between shredding the gnar, tearing it up on the pitch, and living it up downtown and in College Park. A great friend, mentor and colleague, it has been a pleasure spending time with him in the Party Mansion, sick bro.

Lincoln T. Barber



Submarines

Yo Sonnn! Throwing jellyfish. Hailing from the great state of Alabama, Lincoln always knows how to have a good time. We'll never forget the great times at his sponsors and late nights in DTA. Those of us fortunate enough to go to his condo In Gulf Shores will never forget driving to mobile and bocce ball. Not to mention late night 4th of July on the beach. Everybody loves it when his mom sends food because it's always the best stuff. Coming from probably the most hospitable family in the South, Lincoln is truly a great friend who we'll keep in touch with over the years.



Benjamin C. Bennett

USMC Pilot

Ben somehow is the luckiest, barrel-chested, overly ambitious entrepreneur who is always ready to go for an adventure, especially to Toon Town. His raspy cigar voice and ability to import cases of Rum from extravagant places around the world by contacting "people he knows," has made him better known as 1942, Smokestack Jack, and Easy Buckets. Ben's infinite wisdom on every subject ever talked about, especially scheming, can never steer you wrong. We know we'll all be working for him one day. Nothing says USNA like queso and natty, a sexy princess, coke-new and the boat. Jarvy-on, and 2PI for life.

Joseph A. Berrios

Surface Warfare Officer

Joseph Alexander Berrios, Defender of the Realm, Champion of the Frozen Wastes, has a distinct appreciation of this institution and its bureaucracy. A staunch supporter of the chain of command and its reasonable policies, this Floridian is never afraid to voice his opinions, stand his ground, and top off his already-scathing comments with a cold, hard gaze that can pierce the soul. Courage knows no bounds with Joseph, who was willing to undergo days of restriction and loss of leave in order to enjoy a delicious lunch in proper civilian attire in the middle of the day…as a Third-Class.

Donald B. Bowers III

USMC Ground

Coming out of the womb 15 pounds 7 ounces Donnie Bowers was a force to be reckoned with since day one. Hunting in the backwoods of Kentucky, he was born to be a Marine Corps Officer. His time at the Academy wasn't an easy time, many obstacles to overcome but Bowers would overcome becoming a founding member of the goon squad and a legend with the scout team Bowers will forever be remembered no only for his unmarriageable height but for his ability to handle any situations, be they sticky or wet. While he is known to many as the giant, it's the friendly giant, the giant loved by men, women, and especially me… cause LLTD.

Nathaniel T. Brady

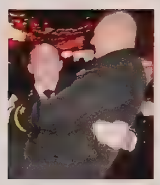
Jeffrey C. Brauser

Naval Flight Officer

Jeff Brauser. The man. The myth. The Hebrew. 2/C Goodtimes. The Israelite with no height. You had a few more than eight crazy nights here at the Academy, and more than your fair share of back alley rendezvous. Don't feed this gremlin after 2 AM. Goon Squad 'til I die. You and Slash are more alike than we'll ever know (both pronounced dead, and quite possibly Eskimo Bros). We all thought you were going to be grounded for life, if not by the Navy, then by your Mom for sure. You have a black N and two stars, and are now the master of the conduct system. The almighty dark one stole our gold chain. Where are we headed? TO THE TOP!

Ryan P. Brenner

Navy Pilot



In accordance with 2nd Company tradition, Ryan "B-Wags" Brenner valiantly held the position of 2nd Company's Spring Company Commander. Working steadily over the years to progress from "Ry-Pup" all the way to "Ry-Wolf," he proved his ability to be confused by the simplest everyday situations. Hailing from the great state of North Carolina, this impeccable Midshipman was notorious for achieving stellar grades despite his habit of split-screening multiple Bobcats and Terps games while "studying." Here's hoping that Ryan doesn't get "skipped" at flight school. DANGER ZONE!

Chase A. Burge

Surface Warfare Officer

The tale of awesomeness that is Chase Burge begins in a small dwelling in Columbus, Ohio. It is here where Chase began to mold himself into the unstoppable force that stands before you today. Do not take his humble origin lightly. Many unfortunate souls have perished before him. Chase grew tired of dominating high school football and decided to come to Navy where he could impose his will as the starting Nose Tackle. Chase does, however, enjoy the simple things life. He is currently counting down the days until he'll be "broing-out" with his roommate in San Diego. In conclusion, Chase Burge is a beast.

Jordan R. Carter

SEALs

Carter: No! Smash Heads. I want us to be warriors together. Conan grip. In 'n Out trying to find the straw. Demon mode. Jessica the hippo. Salty crab. Head deadlift. There is no reason for that. Barge. Let's battle. Van brawls. Battle. Destiny. Fulfillment. Sunday fun-day.

Eric S. Chang

Submarines

Having relocated from Angeles to Annapolis, "SEAL Team" would best anyone in a sitting height contest and swim in the Severn in February as he was used to yearlong summers in Cali. As the runt of us all, he's always down for a good timeeven if it means waiting in Pusser's for six hours. He spent three and a half years facing the wrong direction until Georgetown freed him from balls and chains. Early retirement, some would say, but always pullin' for Navy. Armed with Confucian wisdom, he'll lose anyone in conversation and wander solo through foreign lands. Oh Dale…Look for "SEAL Team" in next month's issue of GQ. Sons of the Severn.

Brandon T. Dell

USMC Pilot

Nothing says space cadet like a kid that reads books on dragons, goblins, and elves. As 2nd Company's resident LARPer, Brandon always has a vivid imagination. With his work ethic, his meticulous organizational habits, and OCD, you would never believe that he's a Mexican. Did someone use my shaving cream? Or my pencil? Or my stapler? Or my shoes? Or my…? Wait what are you guys talking about?

Benjamin L. English

USMC Pilot

Benjamin "Panhandle Slim" English was an eccentric fellow to say the least. His favorite pastime was the collecting of diminishing return investments, such as not-so-speedy speedboats and sports cars. For what sport they were used we may never know, but driving was definitely not one of them. Ben was leaps and bounds ahead of most physically and academically, but a rendezvous with his partner in crime, Jose, was apt to end in some of his less auspicious moments. Are rumors of offroading adventures in the Canadian tundra with his GMC Super Sport Suburban true? We'll never tell. All in all, the Marines got pretty lucky with this one.

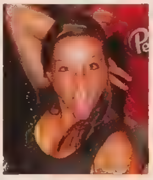
Robert J. Guilfoyle

USMC Pilot

Aka CDR Salamander. Twisties. Thick, red, bone. Knows the words to every song ever made. Future Ambassador to France. Late night ethics debates, Bob's opinion eventually becomes truth. Bob was best friends with the Cobbler, MIDPERS, and the Intramural equipment guy. Bob lives where normal people pay to go for vacation. With all the time he spent on PNJ, Bob could have graduated two years early. Master of communications, he really knows how to beat Army. Bob could have bought that truck he wanted, but Southwest provides a better ride. We hope he does not get stationed in a big city because he hates traffic.

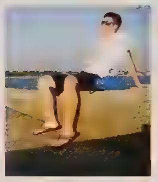
Jamie L. Ireland

USMC Ground



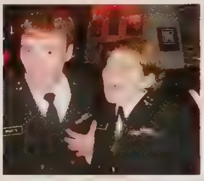
A crazy girl from dirty Jersey, Jaime is always someone you want to be around to have fun. She's adventurous, fun loving, and always up for activities be it crew, making valentines, bungee jumping or marathon running. DTA nightlife would not be complete without her and you can always find her on the dance floor. Her love for exploring has not only led her to places on the yard like the boiler room, the roof of Nimitz and the tower of Mahan, but also around the world to places like Costa Rica, Ireland, Bahrain, Alaska and Tremblant. No matter where Jaime is you're sure to have fun and you'll never forget the times you have with her.

Spencer A. Jurkiewicz



Submarines

Spencer spent most of his childhood in Baton Rouge, Louisiana living next to LSU. As a midshipman, he always kept himself busy as a manager for the Men's Swim Team and a photographer for the Lucky Bag Yearbook. He loved running long distances and finished 4 marathons while attending USNA. His academic performance was mediocre at first but improved substantially as an upperclass so much so that he service-selected Submarines. He loved road trips and traveling, putting tens of thousands of miles on his car. He was known was being soft-spoken and a hard-worker.



Rebecca E. King

Submarines

Rebecca "I'm REBA" Queen-King is perhaps best known as the only physics major from 2011 to consistently give a entropy+hbar+current+time (a little inside, we know). Also the only female (unrelated statistic). We asked Heisenberg to write this bio, telling him exactly how much we wanted and where we wanted to go with it. Who knows when it'll turn up? She is the only one in the room doing homework as we write this. She came here to be a submariner, BEFORE it was allowed. One day she will fulfill her dream of becoming a submariner astronaut doctor, and the first of her kind to leave the light cone. Here's to you, group two major-ette.

Heather Klein

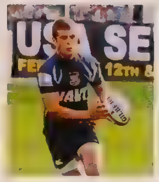
USMC Pilot

From a young age Heather knew she would go to a service academy—although it's debatable who wanted to go to Navy first, we all know she followed her big sister here. After learning squad tactics in Plebe Summer (I'm up, they see me, I'm down) she decided she would be a Marine—like her big sister. She spent most of her time at Navy in the pool, but she was at least two upperclassmen's favorite plebe so she had that going for her. Unfortunately, the rest of her time at USNA is undocumented due to a PROTRAMID incident including a bonfire and her camera. USMC is lucky to have this young devil dog.

Jason E. Kremers

USMC Ground

Jason arrived with all the knowledge to graduate. Late night library visits to rendezvous with mysterious girlfriend(s). When the party starts Jason leaves, unannounced. Half as good looking as his 2 sisters, he still has all of the women chasing him. Always the devil's advocate, he'd argue that the world was flat if you said it was round. Pointless documentaries. Playing the computer in chess. Assembling magnetic balls. Oreo Challenge = Physical specimen. Even though we were invaded by France in 2010 so that he could pursue his visions of glory, our annual ski trips to his lake house more than made up for the smell.



Jacob M. Leete

Surface Warfare Officer

His body transition from slight cross country runner to collegiate rugby player over the past four years was interesting to witness. His mindset, however, never changed about his home mountain and the fresh "gnar pow" he was missing while sitting in his room. It will be interesting to see if the break in sunny San Diego will win a place in his heart. Although he is not going there in the preferred manner, it is hard to imagine that with his drive and determination that he will not make his way into that career path. In the mean time I am sure he will enjoy his time as a Surfing Warfare Officer not far from his roommate who he first met in kindergarten. Congratulations and good luck to him and his fiancé Ashli Melcher in the future!

Samuel B. Lepley

Naval Flight Officer

The Jefe. RUI! Lepley the lion prowls the cornfields of Iowa like a true king of the jungle. The party doesn't start until Lep-dog has his shirt off. Long-neck bottle dancing. Captain of the soccer team, and closet baller, count on him to always bring his game. Big Z, Using the boat as a conversation starter. We can't wait for great times in Pensacola and the rest of the world!

Natalie A. Logan

Surface Warfare Officer

Natalie Logan, the first of three Logans to attend the Naval Academy. She is the best roommate anyone can ask for as a NAPSTER. Always willing to help with web assassin and chemistry, you'd never have a late assignment. Though chemistry was a butt kicker for her, she never showed it! After living in Colorado for nearly her entire life, Natalie never became accustomed to the weather. So why did she come halfway across the country? To be a future SWO, Duhh!

Bradley B. Maa

USMC Aviation

When not on a 14 mile ruck run, Brad could usually be found lounging in his rack accompanied by a traffic cone. His vast cultural knowledge often left him eating raw cans of SPAM, as well as peanut butter (with chopsticks of course). His extreme awkwardness could only be overwhelmed by his expertly choreographed warrior stances. While noted as being attractive (as long as he doesn't move or talk), his surfer dude mentality can only be countered by the higher calling of the few, the proud, the Hasians!

Victor C. Miranda

Naval Flight Officer

Victor Miranda was an exemplary midshipman; his spotless conduct record is the result of a respect for rules and discipline…never mind sheer luck. He spent countless hours completing the physical mission, often running long before the sun would rise (not by choice) and finishing his day by pumping enough iron to make the Governator proud. He was also a strong supporter of all women's athletics at the Academy. He also has a philanthropic side, keeping the bars in Annapolis in business alongside an elite group of midshipmen despite the suffering economy. Victor enjoys the simple things in life: chillin', dabbling in all things "bro," hangin' with the boys, and working on his flow. He is headed to Flight School to fulfill his lifelong dream of becoming Goose.

Matthew C. Molloy

Surface Warfare Officer

Matthew "Marine Corps" Molloy, a true blessing to the SWO community, cannot wait to join his role model on the USS Crommelin. In addition to his illustrious football career that he barely remembers, he enjoys doing mo boards, making it rain, and balling. His most remarkable achievement is the 20 consecutive national championships he's won on NCAA 2011. A true Party Mansion warrior at heart, he has memorized all 8 seasons of One Tree Hill. Good luck my little sailor, Mahalo, sick bro.

John P. Murphy

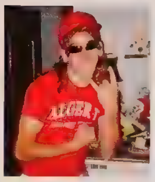
Naval Flight Officer

J.P. "Danger" has raged since the beginning. He was a true innovator side burns, black combo covers, and good mornings. Has he ever done homework, its doubtful? When not outrunning the police in Atlanta he was not running the hill on HP. He stumbled across a mentor, BFD! Ask for SWO get FO! Rager's Anonymous, Elegant Violence, first and third person shooters, Its broken! I heard a pop! Come Across, Supplements, the Union, 2 for 1 Dillo's, lower back pain, finishing the final PRT with a "bang," Beating Army, JMU, Team Bill, HAVOC and anger issues, vomiting closet, and EAFD! You are a great friend and brother.

Joy R. Nameth

Navy Pilot

Known for her ginger hair and jacked arms, Joy Nameth was given the nickname "Diesel." Despite her strength and soullessness, Joy has a great attitude and ability to make friends wherever she goes. Always the face of optimism, her bright outlook inspires those around her. While undergoing the N*OT COLLEGE experience, Joy made many discoveries including: her twin brother Momo, the trouble with tequila, and the drama of boys, (no wonder she picked a female rugby player as her roommate). Good luck in the future, and cheers to the days of hiding behind cars, trips to Ireland, roommate secrets, and finding true friends.



Mark T. Nichelson

Navy Pilot

Pulling off moves that even MC Hammer wouldn't dare attempt, Mark was once noted as being "middle of the dance floor material." Hailing from the great state of Ohio, he continued to return there even after Joakim Noah protested his hatred for the state. For four years 2nd Company was graced with Mark's majestic voice making even Ke$ha songs sound good. That skill in combination with his bulbous ears will undoubtedly serve him well in flight school. Gotta get that purple drank… SMILEY FACE

Nathaniel L. Sabatt

SEALs

Tiny girl or big calves? 70s big. Cookiesssss. Hangman. Scientist. I need a vessel. Things don't always straighten out for Nat like he'd wish, but he got a lot of street cred after he died in Little Creek. Why do you need a passport? Deployments to CENTCOM and SOUTHCOM. Richard! I did my best! Bagels, but only when Ben's not at breakfast. While Nat wants to get married more than any of us, we're still looking for a girl to propose. His perfect afternoon is class, followed by sailing in February with 40 knots & 40 degree water. We'll have to change our phone numbers after we graduate so that Nat can't stay in constant contact.

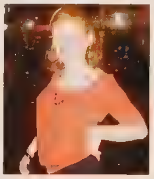
Rishi R. Shah

USMC Ground

Rishi has a way with words. Usually, if you are lucky you will understand 25% of a sentence at any given time. Asking him to repeat what he said is frequently necessary. What you are able to understand usually has something to do with Wikipedia or the Lakers but upon the third or fourth required time, you realize it had nothing to do with the Lakers but was about the menu for noon meal or the enormous amount of chocolate hidden in his desk— pinky finger up, index finger down.

Maryanna L. Sheck

USMC Ground



Once a Marine, always a Marine. Lil Miss Red traded in her days of wearing three chevrons with crossed rifles in the center "Sergeant" temporarily for khakis and anchors determined she would return to the Marine Corps as a 2nd Lieutenant. Being apart of the "Fewer the Prouder" enlisted Marines to graduate from the NAPS Class of 2007, she could tell you a thing or two about perseverance. From the beaches of Hollywood, Florida to the sand pits of Parris Island, South Carolina and now as graduate of the United States Naval Academy her passion to lead Marines will continue to grow and thrive as she upholds the Marine Corps three core values of Honor, Courage, and Commitment. So when you see Lil Miss Red strutting your way, watch out! Semper Fidelis.

Benjamin Smith

USMC Pilot

A hopeless romantic, Ben can usually be found watching romantic comedies and imagining himself as Matthew McConaughey. Through his veins flow massive amounts of Superpump. Big Daddy's only flaw is that he can't find a rope to save his life. Our favorite memories with Ben include exotic trips overseas when he was known to fall off cliffs and pick up Spanish Women. Hagen Daz! Parties at Ben's were numerous, legendary, and memorable for all. Cinderella kegs. While Smithacus adheres to a rigid diet, sometimes you just can't tell Nat. Condo shopping. We sell you good product!

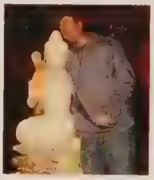
Kristen M. Steinbach

Surface Warfare Officer

When you need a friend, 'who ya gonna call?' Kristen is the 2nd co. sweetheart. On the weekends she likes to play croquet with her good friend Jack D. She once enjoyed sharing a coke with Ben, and she'll never forget her DMB experience. That's 3 on your list, right Kris? On her protraparty she learned that empty rooms on busy ships could lead to destiny. This SoCal girl makes an occasional appearance at the BOOM BOOM ROOM with her boo AT. If you don't find them there, check the shuffleboard table. If you still haven't found her, she's most likely still sleeping. LOVE YOU KRIS!

Maurice D. Taylor

USMC Ground



Maurice DeVon Taylor is an innovator and a thinker. He has been known to think so far outside the box that you'd think he didn't even know there was a box most people think in. During his time at the Academy he has mastered FPS's, 3PS's, all virtual/fantasy sports, unrelenting support of mediocre sit-coms, and a deep seeded love for all carry out food items. During an average day you can probably find him pretending to be good at basketball or in his room not cleaning or bitching about how the Redskins lost or drowning or ignoring the XO or pouring drinks on people's heads or just being a good shipmate and eventually a good marine.

John J. Arball

Navy Pilot

ENS (Sel) J.J. Arball hails from Gaylord, MI. Known for his selective listening skills, he asks a question and then tunes out, completely missing the answer. Think carefully before disrupting his daily routine of downing supplements/Facebook creeping/napping or else meet the wrath of Jarballs. If you are not careful you maybe consumed by his ball of crap that lives in the bottom of his closet. Many a shirt, shoe, mouse, and even small dogs have been eaten by the ball never to see the light of day again. He is an accomplished song writer, his latest hits are "I Love Bimbos," and "Bravo This." Long live the Q-Train. Stay thirsty.

Alexander J. Buck

Navy Pilot

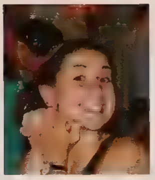
The guy that room 1416 adds to its list of things to do: "Make fun of Alex Buck." Most days is quoted in famous quotes by famous people and sometimes multiple times a day. The only man who can watch The Big Bang Theory and understand all the equations and then correct them when they are wrong. He looks at someone else's homework and says "That's interesting" and as soon as he sees math he understands it… He can play WoW while helping someone with physics all the while satisfying his fupa's insatiable hunger. Would the room have it any other way? Of course not, the fupa gives us hours of entertainment to make fun of…

Christine A. Calderon

USMC Ground

Although the youngest senior on the soccer team, Christie quickly caught up her 21 experiences on the Boomerang Bus. We had many memories from winning Patriot League, Spring Break, pasta on Friday nights, spring running, and best of all, pre-season with no days off. Christie would give her big smile every time she stepped into the locker room (unless she was Detailer Christie, in which the plebes were petrified). Her 5 foot 2 inches holds a big voice in which she likes to let out a proud "Yut" and "Oorah" with fellow team member, Traci. If you don't know Christie, the best way to describe her is as a "Boss" so recognize.

Jacob H. Corbin

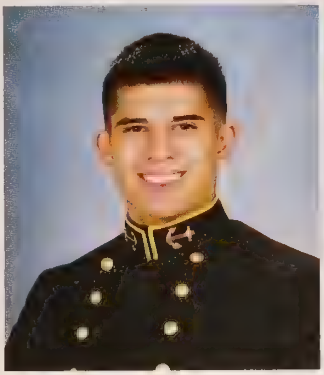


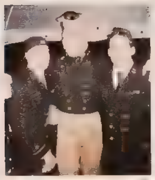
Jennifer C. De Loach

Surface Warfare Officer

Following the list "*%$@ that needs to go in Lucky Bag," here are a few facts about Jen: She has a twin named Lauren who has been her roommate since I-day. Frequently seen together, Gunny Carawell used to ask, "Where's yo lil sister?" when Jen was alone. She has the most impressive i-tunes collection in the Brigade. Her talents include finding embarrassing info about others on Facebook, discovering Youtube videos, nicknames, and British accents. She enjoys exam week mischief, watching TV every day, Face in the Corner, Tuesdates, talking to Momma Deloach/Carol, ice cream, cupcakes, and SWO. Usually with her roommate-twin.

Maxwell A. Desens





Kevin P. Doyle Jr.

SEALs

Kevin was voted most likely to take his wife's last name and least likely to tolerate a day in the sun. A life long fan of the Baltimore Ravens, he tried his hardest to be like his role model Ray Lewis. Even if it meant by having a go with the law. His talents include reading, pooping, and "watching TV" in the bedroom. What's best about Kevin is his ability to party. You never know what you're going to get with him. It could be lights out after 4 and two-thirds during a Ravens game, or an aggressive night of YES with Kiki. A Navy Lax bro, an Arnolds bro, Kevin will forever be known for his "loyalty and honor."

Sean Q. Dzierzanowski

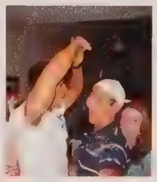
USMC Pilot

Sean Quigley Dzierz…..uhh how do you spell it again? Just kidding D-z-i-e-r-z-a-n-o-w-s-k-i. His classmates were all shocked on service selection when instead of selecting walking encyclopedia he joined the elite ranks of Marine Aviation. When he was not scheming for how to lower the age required to run for president from 35 to 27, DZ could be found on the streets of Annapolis putting more miles on his go fasters than his car. A true ladies man, Sean may not have found his future first lady just yet, but we all know that somewhere among the world's billion Catholics is one very lucky girl.

Jonathan P. Erwert

Submarines

All Jon Erwert ever wanted to do was roam the desert wilderness of New Mexico, yet somehow he ended up at the Naval Academy. But don't be fooledthis hippie is ready to kill some terrorists as a proud member (draftee?) of the (Sub)marine Corps. As a midshipman, he always had something nice to say about everyone (literally everyone), which complemented his eternally optimistic attitude in the face of even the worst Naval Academy days. After countless adventures in DTA, New York, Buenos Aires and elsewhere, he never did find that perfect hippie coffee shop girl; however, he knows that all Submariners seem to land hot wives in the end.

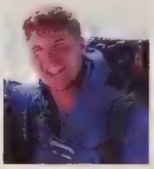


Kevin A. Foskett

Submarines

Mr. Lucky himself. All the rabbit's feet and heads up pennies on the sidewalk couldn't help you. And yes, you would pick up every single penny you stumbled upon. But the Academy has made you hard. 366 days hard. Two tours in Panama City Beach hard. A bag of bile hard. Hard enough that you will work for those 30$, even if they are already in your wallet. A pitching wedge in one hand, a bottle of Sailor Jerry in the other, and a double degree in EE and Xbox, you are ready to take on this cruel world with your sidekick MIDN Sepren. Good luck and stay thirsty, Mr. Lucky.

Nicholas G.L. Green



Surface Warfare Officer

It takes 28 days to form a habit, but for Nico it takes 3. This addictive personality wasn't too addicted to school, but always knew something about everything; something to do with his featured swollen wisdom teeth portrait. A true philosopher, optimist, and Renaissance Man, ever the gentleman he's a sure bet to have in your ring, even for the most obscure adventure. With many contacts around the world: Bermuda, Amsterdam, Tel Aviv, Prague, Paris, Valencia, quite the world traveler. He'll probably be found wandering the Earth into his old age with his boots, which isn't so far away for him. A wonderful man and even better friend.

Kyle A. Haith

Navy Pilot

"Kyle Haith is in da BUILDING!" The Califloridian, also known as Mr. GQ himself. A ladies man, the only woman in Annapolis able to seduce him was a hot blond by the name of Stella Artois. He made a valiant effort to share his secrets of love and ladies with Drop Zone… but that didn't work out too well. Always there to protect the weak and innocent, he was never afraid to stand up and speak his mind because he didn't have much to lose. Was the only member of Thirsty Third to go undefeated against Senior's "Stache". He was also the only idiot to go surfing during Hurricane Earl, ironically he never passed swimming. Unfortunately his poor grades were rewarded with having to suffer every summer training block in Hawaii. "Appearance is everything." He's admired for his ability to fit in with ANY crowd, and his ability to make money grow on trees. He proved to us that beer bottles can be used as microphones, and that anything is possible with enough Top Gun and rack time.

Genevieve A. Harmon

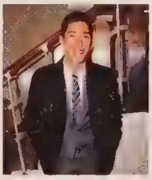
USMC Ground

Gen came to the Academy after multiple times being told "no" by admissions. She is on the five year program, an initial year of college at Marion Military Institute, but that was no deterrence at all. She can be found in one of three places on the yard at any given time; her room, the gym (most likely), or the deep recesses of Michelson where the Chemistry department hides all of the MIDN in that major. I think she still questions her sanity at choosing chem. for a major. And a trip to Ireland with Theresa and Robyn will forever be in memory…ALABAMA! You would really have to know this dynamic group of three to understand, enough said.

Joshua J. Helms

Naval Flight Officer

GJ.J. "Hide yo' kids" Helms enjoys playing jump rope with the legal age limit, considers speed limits the minimum requirement (in everyway imaginable), and compensates with obnoxiously big guns. Raised in the so called "God's Country," J.J. was thrown in the water by his father from day one as an experiment. He has continued swimming ever since, until being forced into retirement by Bill Roberts. After failing out of the Physics department, JJ decided he would major in graduation and so chose Oceanography. Despite his elderly looks, JJ knows how to have a good time which has earned him the nickname "Big Daddy Broadsword."



Gustavo A. Hernandez

Submarines

Gustavo Hernandez. What can we say about someone who has accomplished so much? You know roughly 25 languages, all self-taught of course. You have spent enough time in China to make us nervous, but not enough to make us forget your smiling face (or sleeping face if at briefs). We'll always remember the crazy exam week dance parties to Toy Box, your love for President Obama/ any other non-conformist cause, and your ability to make us laugh. It took you 2 seconds to become the most proud didn't-quite-want-to-be-one submariner, but that is more proof of your positive attitude. Good luck Gus, our "best friend best of all best friend!"

Brett F. Libby

Navy Pilot

From the Halls of Montezuma to the shores of Washington? Idaho? Or was it Florida? No one ever figured out where he was really from, but if you couldn't find him on Facebook you were sure to find him either killing zombies or teaching Kyle Haith everything he knows about life. If he wasn't chasing cougars in the mountains, he was chasing cougars in DTA. He taught Swifty how to get washboard abs. His Toyota Tacoma puts Optimus Prime to shame. He could cut through a hot knife with butter, and before PRK he could put a hole in any target from any range. He never did figure out that I played a practical joke on him by switching his service selection from Marine Ground to Navy Pilot. I never did figure out how to change it back. Oh well, have fun in Pensacola. Rah.

Jedediah C. Lomax

Civil Engineer Corps

Jed Lomax was born in Clifton, TX in 1985 only three days after a total solar eclipse occurred over Antarctica. Coincidence? Probably not. After being turned down by pretty much everyone, he decided to enlist in the Navy in September '04. Two deployments and one midget fight later, CM2 Lomax decided to give up pay, freedom, and responsibility in order to pursue a commission at the Naval Academy. Most experts agree that his acceptance was due to a clerical error but nevertheless, he has managed to thrive as a Midshipman. He hopes to engineer cars one day, but for now he'll stick to building bridges – hammers and nails! -DTR

Sean F. Menezes

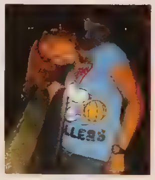
Special Warfare

Narcissus (English: Sean F. Menezes), possibly derived from "menenzes" meaning "man-flesh," in Naval Academy mythology was a true athlete from the city of Garnerville, New York who was renowned for his beauty, uniquely deep voice, and love of training. He was exceptionally proud. As divine punishment he fell in love with his own reflection in a pool. Even realizing that it was merely an image, he wasted away, not being able to leave the beauty of his own reflection until he saw himself wearing flippers, a SCUBA mask, and a speedo. He jumped into the water chasing that image and by all accounts is still swimming.

Andrew S. Nesburg

Naval Flight Officer

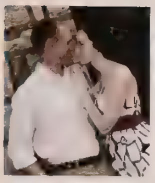
"Derp!" Who said dat? "Herpaderp!" WTF! That would be…Andrew Neeesburg aka The Nes Express, aka The Burg, aka The Nesburger(from high school). Andrew the warlord of Warhammer 40 Billion has a speed of 10,000 and an attack power of "poots" Shut up! As I was saying an attack power of…WTF is that smell?! 20 Trillion damage, incapacitates all living things in vicinity! You rolled a 20…Well you're dead anyways. "Why?" cuz it's teh Burg. He can haz cheezeberger. He made you a cookie…but then he eats'd it…NOM NOM NOM! This fun loving Texan is known in room 1416 for 2 things: Famous quotes from famous people and…Making fun of Alex Buc



Latasha A.R. Prater

Surface Warfare Officer

The easiest word to describe Tasha is beautiful. She has a beautiful mind, a beautiful soul, beautiful body, beautiful smile. Beautiful all around. She has done wonders at the Naval Academy. She tried NUMEROUS ECA's and clubs to include: National Society of Black Engineers, Midshipmen Black Studies Club, Dance Club, Rugby, Equestrian Club, and Latin American Studies Club before she settled down in, surprise, surprise, Gospel Choir. She has been a great mentor and will excel in the fleet! Annnd, she is the #1 fan of the 2010-2011 Navy Women's Basketball team!



Brian D. Quinn

USMC Ground

BQ is loyalty and dedication, he does more than motivate, he inspires. His struggles at USNA have been beautiful! He has mastered Electrical Engineering, beaten the MRFA, and lead his gymnastics team and Company. His dedication has shown through his ability to compete on a broken wrist, complete two marathons and one grueling Ironman. His better half, Nicole, has supported him all four years, and together, they made the 2% club.

David T. Ritchey

Navy Pilot

D-Ritch, Ritchey, Dave, Creeper… Known for creeping, never doing homework, never working out, yet doing much better than most in all areas. He was a motivated Marine wannabe Plebe year, but quickly grew out of that stage and a noticeable increase in sleep and hair length followed. Once the high-and-tight grew out, he focused on sailing and keeping in touch with the Third Company Tango dropouts (there's still a few more out there). There was never a dull birthday, but he managed to stay out of trouble for the most part. Thirsty Third will miss his hard work and witty personality. Pensacola awaits! - JBS

Steven A. Rivers

USMC Ground

Once he accepted his place into USNA he learned had he waited two weeks he could have just gone to OCS. But no, he's a man up for anything, including parking violations. If there is a race, and adventure, or an adventure race he's there. A sagacious man he earned the title as the company's conscience, if it was against the rules but past his test it was good to go. Cab rides in Cairo, Juan the Senile in Spain, Demon woman from Minoa or was she a Mohican, Christmas with the Hunchback… if it's an adventure he's there. A great friend and an even better man.

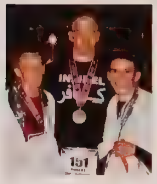
Alexander L. Segler

Submarines

Segs' loyalty to friends and country (Texas) comes in all regards, even down to his willingness to perform even the most idiotic task—but only once he is deemed "not Texan enough" to do it. After long nights of wandering the streets of DTA before taps, you may catch a glimpse of burnt orange blur running in the direction of the nearest collection of Mids. Running isn't an option? Look for a longboard or borrowed bicycle. Regardless, if there were strangers to befriend, Segs would find a way to get there. Typical Segs. Keep running, avoid MIA, & know that if you were truly Texan you would streak through your base upon reading this!

Robert E. Sharp

USMC Ground



"Sure I am this day we are masters of our fate, that the task which has been set before us is not above our strength; that its pangs and toils are not beyond our endurance. As long as we have faith in our own cause and an unconquerable will to win, victory will not be denied us."
- Sir Winston Churchill

Lauren M. Smith

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Over the last four years, Jen De Loach…oh wait I mean Lauren Smith, who can tell the difference anyway? I'll tell you who, their parents…nope even they can't. June 27, 2007, the twins were born, the two were never seen apart for four years. The US vs. THEM posters, back of the door/con locker posters, nonstop Youtube quoting, the British/Irish accents, the pictures from exam week or the Jen and Lauren roommate experience pictures, hanger hats, Snooki poofs, the Real Real World 1431/1230/1427/1327, exam week dance parties and countless other jokes kept the twins entertained. One more thing, Lauren wants everybody to…SUBMIT TO WOMEN!

Jeremiah B. Stampfler

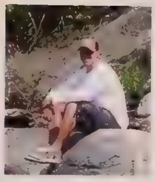
Navy Pilot

The Stampf hails from the great city of Kalamazoo. It became clear at a young age that Stampf had contracted Gingervitis. His medical condition and proximity to the losingest sports city in America (Detroit) left young Stampf malnourished and grumpy. His parents shipped him off to FSU to cope with Gingervitis and learn the meaning of victory. With renewed vigor, the Stampf set his sights on USNA. Thanks to his exceptional roommates, Stampf learned how to be tolerant, open minded, and outgoing. After getting some flight time, Stampf plans to become a Doctor and rise to the coveted position of Head MD for Johnson & Johnson. -Lo

Casey K. Swift

Navy Pilot

Casey Swift is known to the world simply as "Swifty," though his many nicknames are plentiful. Swifty is a man that can set the tone for any room, and trust me, you don't want to catch him in full on Swifty-Mode. Swifty is dedicated to the weight room and personal fitness ever since the Swift-Rivers duo became a Stagnant-Pond during morning PEP plebe summer. Too smart for his aero major, Swifty made the switch to general engineering to expand his horizons. Highlights of his four years by the bay include being the 3rd company 'cigah' aficionado', weekly runs to Mason's towing, and purchasing vehicles from felons. After many flights out of Bay Bridge and fueling his love for aviation, and becoming a true leader through his USNA years, it is with no doubt that Swifty will fulfill the old stereotype: the best pilots in the world come from the U.S. Navy. Lastly, the entire Brigade has been blessed by Swifty's diligence and leadership in protecting the Brigade as AT/FP officer, though, when emergency strikes, one knows they can always find the man at McGarvey's taking advantage of 2 for 1.



Casey R. Talbot

Navy Pilot

They say that Naval Academy graduates leave this institution with a bachelor of science degree. Casey has gone above and beyond the call of duty though and managed to obtain his PhD in navigation. In fact, he loved the class so much, he took multiple times. It was no surprise that he took his passion for navigating the seas to the skies though. No, Casey's eyes were always to the sky. After he hung up the baseball cleats, he tried his hand at squash. After a long career on the court lasting 3 months, he finally set his sights fully on aviation. His 21st birthday youngster invited many future nights in town with Brett Libby—who joined Casey in setting a USNA world record: getting LT Chapman to let youngsters free on a Friday, and gate one to first wing in 2 minutes with all the shenanigans in between. Highlights with friends include unforgettable flights through the New York skyline, and trips to Virginia and Michigan. This suave and dashing young man was no doubt a motivation for other midshipmen to have a snazzy hair do each day and look no less than 10 times in the mirror before exiting the room…for uniform standard purposes of course. Casey Talbot. A man among men.

Evan R. Williams

USMC Ground

Evan, Ev, Evbot, Married Guy. Looking for Ev? He is either in his own private room in the back of the frat house, in Houston for the weekend, or in Annapolis for his 3rd (or is it 4th) set of engagement pictures. All of these weekend trips led to his earning more frequent flyer miles than any other mid in the brigade. However, if he is in Annapolis you could always go to Ev and find a true friend ready to help you in any way he could. You couldn't find a better buddy to lounge around on Sunday and watch football with (as a Buffalo Bills fan his team never won anyway). A loyal friend and my brother, good luck Ev!

Steven C. Yee

Civil Engineer Corps

Steven Yee, who in his own words is "too boring to write about," has actually accomplished many great things since coming to the USNA. His intense ways have a tendency to break things/people, but this motivator was destined to impose his will on 3rd Company early on. He sets and enforces the standard—emphasis on the enforcing part. He disappeared for a while sometime between Plebe and Firstie year…he may have been on foreign exchange or in the depths of Rickover somewhere. Who knows? We do know that Steven never sleeps and never compromises. Now get back to workze.

Gabriela L. Beasley

USMC Ground

The Beas Knees came to the academy after NAPS, although whether Annapolis was ready for her no one knows. Wandering downtown only to end up at the hospital, exploring chemistry as a major, and getting her last name confused for that of one of her male classmate's did not stop this Brazilian princess. Countless hours of Jeopardy and crazy accents have characterized her time here – "Wat's dat gov'nah? Vat is it, grandpapa? Oh ja, vere going to Fwankfurt!" The Marine Corps doesn't know what it's really gotten itself into with this girl, whose passion for the Corps is only exceeded by her excessive use of looney Britishisms. Nevermind the joint, luv, pass the fag.

Joshua R. Benally

Alexander D. Burkardt

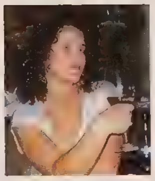
Navy Pilot

Four years at navy taught Alex the secret to organizing, prioritizing, procrastinating, and free time maximization. More importantly, he finally learned how to really spell his own last name. After being raised spelling it "Burkardt" he finally understood through the diligent teachings of others that he had been doing it wrong his entire life. It is a good thing that he will continue to wear a name tag just in case someone needs to remind him.

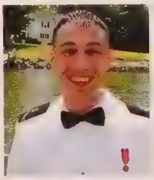
Gavin C.E. Callies

Rachel M. Clapp

Navy Pilot



"The Clapp" Hippie and free spirit of the Fab 5. You can always find her fluttering around with ankle bracelets and eccentric earrings or rocking out to 80's music. But don't let her style fool you; she's a brute in the ring. Well known as undefeated in ground fighting, wrestling, & sharks and minnows. Her dolphin-like moves can be found in the pool and on the dance floor. She's aggressive like a shark, and loyal like a dog. She might hip check you one minute, but the next she'll lend an ear to chat about anything. Truly a best friend if anyone could ever ask for one, but watch out; after 1 LIT, she'll dance with just about anyone



James R. Davin

USMC Air

Commonly remembered as a chit surfer while at the Academy, (Broken arm during plebe summer, yeah right! Dental surgery, please someone hit him in the face, o wait, thanks Shroy!) 1/C Davin could always be seen around the hall unless he was web chatting with the girl he met on chat roulette. The second of four Davins coming through USNA, he lives up to their short, hard charging reputation. Being tired in the morning never stopped him from going to Marine PT, and when it comes to preparedness, the Marine Corps has nothing to worry about because he never forgot his cleats for Marine PT football. In one word, joe.

Kris E. Estabrook

Naval Aviation

Who is Kris Estabrook? What does he do? Where does he go on weekends? Many of you have pondered these questions for the last four years. The proud offspring of Mr. and Mrs. Jack "The Warhorse" Estabrook, Kris grew from humble beginnings in Syracuse, New York. His past-times include hunting, chopping wood, drinking substantial quantities of beer, and keeping all other details about his life completely secret from everyone. According to legend, he maintains close ties with the black market, possesses a contact named "Mad Dawg" within Baltimore's Police Department, and has mastered everything that has ever existed in the world. Whether you're changing your oil, learning a new sport, in the midst of a bar-fight, or in need of a bounty hunter, you want "The Brook" backing you up. His services range from $200-$5,000 depending on the job.

Geoffrey E. Fastabend

Submarines

As the most senior member of the brigade, he has lived with people from the classes of 05-14. He always had a story to tell from "Back in his day." Thanks to the divine inspiration of Fritz Tolle he will be forever known in 4th company as Fastabenduuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuu.

Daniel L. Furbush

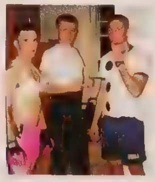
Submarines

Daniel Furbush was born and raised on the mean streets of Clive, Iowa. He attended the Naval Academy in order to increase his street cred back home. Youngster year he discovered his inner fatty when he moved in with his current roommates. Seldom seen around plebes or sunlight, Daniel is usually simply known as "that paintball guy" or "the Joe's roommate". After attending Leatherneck, he discovered his true love: Making money in the Corps… The SUBmarine Corps. That is correct, after first class summer one of many things less reg than his comfortable mattress pad became his desire to keep his hair long and avoid the phrase "Yut."

Bryan M. Gentz

Naval Flight Officer

When 4th Company lacked swagger, Bryan Gentz stepped in to improve its image. Not knowing what he was doing, his wardrobe was stocked with nothing but purple hoodles (Brooks Brothers of course). Sadly, he caught a bad case of Bieber Fever, causing him to miss every PRT Firstie year. He has been romantically linked to: Joe Mauer, Adrian Peterson, Brett Favre (via picture message), and is thought to be the last of Tiger Wood's many mistresses. Notorious for spilling 'water' on his laptops, Bryan managed to spend his entire 2/C loan on Patrón shots though he ensured that he had a little left over for hotel rooms.



Paul W. Hollwedel

USMC Ground

Paulwedel, the guido-boxer from Strong Island made his debut as 4th platoon's Motivation Officer. Always the optimist, he never had a problem starting a competition for the best abs over leave, or finding the route back with the most traffic on Sunday nights. Actually, we're surprised he even found his way back from liberty at all, given his land nav history. He is the epitome of an officer and a gentleman-to-a-fault, with an opinion about everything. Thus, let it be known, color company has too many parking spots; he's counted. This four-time Brigade Boxing Champ/Princess will strike fear into the hearts of America's enemies.

Daniel J. Hunziker

Navy Pilot

With the blowout fade similar to DJ Pauly D, D.J. Hunziker is most known for being stopped and questioned by every SEL in the Brigade about the proper length of his flow. Dan's family had dreams of him following in their footsteps in the civilian aviation world, but he had other aspirations. Only a few elite men could save him from falling into the deep abyss of the civilian world, Maverick, Goose, and Iceman. His teachers are never sure if he's sleeping in class, since his eyes may or may not always be closed, no one has yet been able to tell. The highlight of his Academy career was defeating Mr. Miyagi himself in martial arts 2.

Christopher M. Jasperson

USMC Aviation

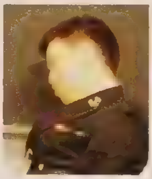
Christopher Jasperson hails from the fundamentalist colony of Big Bear Lake. He enlisted in the cub scouts and made his way up the ranks until he reached Midshipman. This indoctrination process has left him undeniably awkward, influencing his decision to fall in love with another Big Bear hometowner. His selfless dedication to duty is exemplified by following every rule, training for the PRT by eating peanut M&Ms, video logging everything including ironing a bacon sandwich, spending every weekend on duty, and taking care of the Princess for 4 years. Here is to you, Mr. My-Tent-Leaks-But-I'm-Too-Cheap-To-Buy-A-New-One-or-Fix-it.

Alexandra J. Knese

Interservice Commission Army

Armed with sarcasm & a round house kick, this grounded, classy New Yorker always made you see the practical solution in any dilemma. Fiercely faithful to friends, she'd have your back through anything; will never forget Pow-wows, "marmellows," trips to NYC, introducing us to martinis, wine & quality pizza, Hunter, "Happy Friday," LN, your 1st trip to Europe, the Cronins, bedtime at 2300, the Jersey Shore & service selection. Through the good & the bad, you were steady & unfaltering. Whatever your future holds, you will face it with grace & that incomparable wisdom that has made you a cherished & adored friend. Love you Alexandra.

Jae Ung Lee

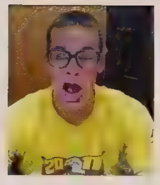


Surface Warfare Officer

John is a man of great conviction, courage and honor. He's an inspiration to those with a good heart. Nobody could ask for a better partner when playing guitar on the roof of the FRC. More dudes, less space! MAGTF! There's only one man that can ever make Racquetball look so easy! 3am smoking philosophical discussions. One of the few men I trust with my life to make the right decision when everyone else is doing the wrong thing. God made your blood from honor and courage, and compassion, my brother. Follow him through the darkest of times and you will never go wrong.

Lewis H. Martin

USMC Aviation



Like his dinosaur cousins from the Badlands, Lewis crawled out of Montana's primordial pit and aspired to greatness. He entered the Naval Academy alone and unafraid, and began life as a Mech-E. Unfortunately, the only thing he gained from this course of study was a Miata and a thirst for motorcycles. His illustrious days as a Floyd Landis admirer and diplomat landed him in the most unlikely of positions: a future yut with a wonderful girlfriend. From cardboard rifles to Nerf guns, from losing the vote to 'listening to 72 hours straight of Hanson', the room wouldn't have been the same without him if he hadn't did what he done. Don't let his muscles fool you, folks, he's as a big a softie as anyone out there, only he spends more time watching Top Gear.

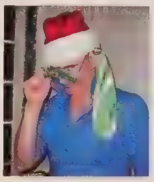
Craig S. Moore

Nuclear Surface Warfare

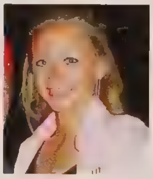
Affectionately known as "Big Red" or "Big Brother," this small town ginger hails from Wellsville, Kansas. A Jayhawk fan until the very end, big Craig is known for his contagious smile and his love for basketball. Standing tall at 6'6", Craig towers over everyone not only with his height but his big heart. Among the elite few chosen to be a nuclear surface warrior, he is headed to Yokosuka, Japan in the hopes that he will find someone to believe him when he says he does indeed have a soul. Judging from all the MATLAB probability simulations he has run thus far, his odds are pretty good!

David M. Nartker

Surface Warfare Officer



Some say reach for the stars; David Nartker took this phrase to heart, pursuing a Bachelor of Science in Astronautical Engineering , Naval Special Warface, and a social life. Though practically, Astro has not help Nartker, aka "Narkdog", in the basics of hygiene…its not like its rocket science. Dave, aka "packer", also was excited to get sub-drafted, citing his appriciation for being able to go directly out to the fleet and be a giant tool over blowing things up. But at least Dave, aka "Nark the Dog", has had great success with the ladies: the taken ones. Without fail, He has risen to the occasion, met his failure, and drank a lot.



Nicole A. Nester

USMC Ground

"Mama Nest" came to the Academy with high hopes and aspirations. With her natural charisma and real life experience she offered encouragement and guidance to her fellow classmates and helped them to become more than they thought they could be. While she came to the Academy as part of the Navy she is leaving it as a Devil Dog ready to kick ass and take names. With her perfect organizational skills and cleanliness both Al qaeda and germs don't stand a chance. With her fearlessness and dedication to duty she is a leader anyone would be proud to follow.

Katrina S. Nietsch

Navy Pilot

Katrina Nietsch (aka KatrEMO aka Katrina Beiber) joined the ranks of the Academy from New Canaan, CT. She spent the first 3 years here working harder than everyone else as a highly motivated midshipman and was a standout inside the classroom and out on the field. Her hard(er) work and passion for Top Gun led her into the Aviation Community (Go Maverick!), where the skies will be graced with her presence. She spent her last year here actually making friends, perfecting the role of CDO, and being narcoleptic. If you don't see her in the library or at practice, you may find her singing karaoke or dancing awkwardly in the locker room. Good Luck in P-Cola, K$!

Patrick J. O'Brien

USMC Ground

Pat O'Brien is the best person who ever lived. His stature, prowess, and conquest are the stuff of Norwegian Viking folklore. With a 20" neck and a 30" waist, he is proportioned like a Greek god. Unfortunately, Pat's supremely athletic body is perpetually riddled with injuries to not only his shoulders and his legs and his knees and his neck and his head. Not to mention being born with an acute form of congenital heel spurs. At times Pat suffers from mild to severe depression and battles fits of severe rage which can only be overcome by the indomitable love of his best friend/half-sister Lucy "Beast" O'Brien. That being said, he has never known a person who was not his friend or a sister he didn't like.

James R. Parreira

Naval Aviation

Parreira (n) (Pah-rare-rah) –
a large, well defined jaw-line which produces a trance-like effect on women of all ages.
Don't let his slow pigeon-toed walk fool you, The Pigeon embodies suave, cool, and all other adjectives pertaining to a future pilot with the flow of a Greek God. Despite his uncanny coolness and popularity, The Pigeon has some very strange habits. These habits include "fixing" basketball hoops and Chat-Rouletting until the dawn's early light. Truly one of the most humble people at the academy, he'll never begin to understand the true power which rests within his well-defined facial features.

Ryan D.P. Rabe

USMC Ground

Ryan Rabe hails from an extremely long and distinguished lineage of Joes. His Grandfather, who himself was a Naval Academy graduate had the nickname "regs Rabe," and His father was a salty submariner who ate littler joes for breakfast, but even though this ubber joe appears small, he stands amongst the giant joes at the United States Naval Academy. Upholding the standard is what this future Marine loves doing and will continue his joe lineage into the fighting green machine, a frontier not yet explored by the Joe Rabes of Spokane Washington.

William B. Rose

USMC Ground

Son of the self-proclaimed oil man Bill Rose, William "DB" Rose has grown up to enjoy only the finer things in life. DB's estate houses authentic Persian rugs, Chinese silk curtains, a real ivory piano from his childhood in Nigeria, and of course his favorite golden shower which he uses on a regular basis. Will answers to only one Master, his girlfriend Beth. Together they enjoy many fine activities, such as Scuba diving, cake tasting, and talking about how smart and fun Beth's cat Olive is.

Lawrence A. Seiler III

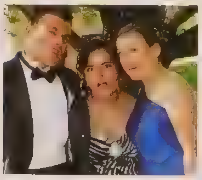
USMC Ground

Larry "Buckshot" Seiler. Larry could best be described as a tough, hardworking, Pittsburgh blue collar, but also from the country kind of guy who does man stuff and shaves his chest. Larry graduates with the highest approval rating of any midshipman in his four year term at the Academy, having offended absolutely nobody, despite his notorious reputation as "a guy who says whatever he wants." There is much we can all learn from Larry but if there is one lesson we should all take to heart it is this - Keep your friends close, but random people that will have little to no bearing on your life closer. Guido, Scholar, Caveman.

Chadwick G. Shroy

Naval Intelligence

Chad made his debut in life in the quaint western town of Carson City, Nevada. Ever since he could crawl, he's been a runner. When he isn't flaunting his toe shoes, or mentoring his protégé Kennedy, he's practicing his Russian (lately Georgian) in the hopes of someday stealing the heart of some old Soviet's daughter. Other things to tickle Chad's fancy are bats. He loves bats. Nobody knows why. Since he may be your intel officer: the next time you bomb the wrong palace, take the wrong hill, sail the wrong sea, or nuke the wrong country, remember that Chad Shroy's color deficiency probably caused him to read the map incorrectly.



Elaine M. Stolhammer

USMC Ground

Haling from the geographical center of Washington, this devil-dog fireball was destined to fill the combat boots of the greats like Chesty Puller. Whether it's listening to motivational cadences set to pop music or spinning rifles during sports period the "Hammer" bleeds Marine. Her persona of being undoubtedly fearless and motivated to attack a challenge runs deep within her. Stoli is a true best friend and too good a person not to know. An avid apple judger in her past, she can diagnose the growth of any apple much like a fortune teller reads a lifeline. If it's new, adventurous, and exciting she's probably the first in line

Kenna M. Vanourney

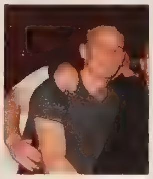
Surface Warfare Officer

In the morning you'll probably hear Kenna's alarms going off way before you see.When she's up and ready to go you can see her working on MAG stuff, or at her computer listening to country music.Proud of Kentucky, she'll identify every Kentucky MID in the Brigade and expect you to know them.Her movie selection ranges from the classics with Audrey Hepburn, to new releases.If she's short on words, a movie quote will find its way into conversation.Whenever you need to talk she's always there for you.Time to go out, this southern girl embraces her roots, the more volume the better.Out in town BL Kenna will be living it up, ready to dance

Nathan T. Wallace

Navy Pilot

Known across the brigade as the man who has skinnier jeans than your sister, and a fohawk so fly you would assume he has been a Californian all his life. He once brought Patches O'Houlihan to tears by his ability to dodge, duck, dip, dive, dodge the sub draft. Nate Wallace or Ken as he is sometimes called will use his Oceanography degree to inform his fellow pilots if it is safe to fly through the fabled double rainbow. His dominance on the triathlon team left him wondering the answer his favorite question. "Yo, I got one question man, tell me who next?" When no one responded he came back with, "See I'm the best maaayne, I did it."



Zachary S. Wilson

USMC Ground

Zach "Lil Buddy" Wilson was born in a small town in Louisiana, a true man of the bayou. When not raising his pet alligators or crafting their hides into fashionable yet functional clothing, Zach can be found not drinking with his friends, or researching the most recent political trends on the internet. Zach is the proud founder and discoverer of the "study weekend." Once thought to be mere legend, and considered by many to be impossible, this is a weekend during which a Midshipman dedicates himself to nothing but studying. Remember Austin. Never Forget!

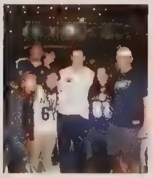
Shawn is a spirited midshipman who can always be found at mandatory briefs and events, or singing Blue and Gold before he goes to sleep. Sean is not only a man of school spirit however; he is also the President of the Race, Religion and Gender Equality Club, USNA chapter. His favorite activities include swimming, engineering homework and taking lovely female midshipman out on dates. As leader of RESGRU 3456, he did hard time for sneaking away to Mexico to try and become a Reggaeton sensation. After failing, Shaun began pursuing his dream of becoming a pro soccer player just like his idol, Ali Dia. RESGRU 3456 4-Life.



Jeffrey M. Battipaglia

USMC Ground

Jeff is a Penn State local who thoroughly enjoyed his Burger @ "Thon" for 2 straight days…with his flip video. Jeff also has the best "body" shot. He comes from a long line of businessmen and Italian chefs. Dahmer enjoys to go skiing when he is drinking, no matter what the season. Name's on the lease, but bed's always open. "Jeff, you wanna come?" sigh…"Can Donnie come, too?" Is the Marine Corps ready for the running raptor? Coach Culton's life is better b/c of you. Shepard's pie?...Semper Fi! Yes, Jeff, we were having a great time, until you kicked us out. ….I'm sorry.

Thomas J. Baxter

USMC Ground

Tom Baxter is always on the prowl for cultural experiences that will add new flavors to the palate of his life, especially if these flavors are experienced on the black sand beaches of Ecuador on a moonlit night. He never gives up the opportunity to travel or to study a new language. He perhaps derives the most enjoyment in life, however, from wrestling small Vietnamese men half his size for the amusement of his roommates. But in the end, the excitement of Annapolis, Maryland has stolen his heart; there is truly no adventure more exhilarating than jumping the wall in choker whites after your brother's wedding reception in DTA.

Joseph N. Beach

Submarines

From the dawn of time, or at least since the last Starcraft came out, Joe has dominated the study hour gaming frontier. This physically minded student even amazes himself by pulling A's out of thin air. An avid fencer, Joe wouldn't miss an opportunity to stab himself a meal. The Architect of distractions, Joe always finds time for tea and Batman, and does so at the peril of sleep. Though sleep was never a challenge, waking up was not a strong point. Just ask his 3 alarms and MIDS. Active in every band on this side of the Severn, Joe had a knack for a tune and always loves to jam. Oh wait, there's another mando event! FUUUUUUUU…

Connor F. Bench

Surface Warfare Officer

PFS. Connor has always been the roommate who takes out the trash. In more ways than one. I always forget, and he's there to do it. But it's weird because he's always there for me when I needed him. I could always count on him to put a smile on my face and as soon as I was able to get passed his thick wall of sarcasm, he's like a cuddly little teddy bear on the inside. He takes care of me, he apparently tried to collapse my lung (hooyah LT Lieb!), he's "wicked smart", and he is infinitely unreadable. But the biggest thing he is to me, is one of my best friends. Ginger or not, this guy has feelings and he'll never miss a beat to tell me when I'm jacked up. That's alright, because I realized that over the years, he is just looking out for me and always will be. I'm so glad I met him and we became friends. Smooth sailing Connor, and know that I'll always be here for you, you sad sad piece. P.S.—YTFM Love, the Roomie.

James A. Berg

Surface Warfare Officer

Jimmy Berg, rising from the caves of Bear, Delaware, quickly mastered the ability to make all civilians and construction workers feel welcome with his daily greeting over plebe summer. Into the Ac-Year, Jimmy validated his entire major..twice.. and spent the rest of his Academy career developing a new universe completely written in math code. Despite being nocturnal and the best xylophone player on the planet, he is the only person known who can literally fall asleep while walking. Unwillingly taking IW over Marine Corps, Jimmy has come a long way since learning to spell his name over plebe summer. B-E-R-G Berg sir!

Samuel J. Calaway

Navy Pilot

The Florida boy who claims Texas lineage, this fishbowl headed beach bum made his presence known at the Academy over plebe summer with an unforgettable appearance with true claims to an extraterrestrial-sized head and his inability to maintain consciousness at the firing range. The inner sea lawyer came out plebe year with a correspondence to the Brigade Train O. His competitive nature made him marginally successful at intramurals where he earned the title, CPF. He can never repay his roommates for commissioning a female mid to appear in public as his girlfriend. We hope his flight helmet, size XXL, shall never damage the flow.

Robert A. Calloway

USMC Ground

Never has the academy seen a man of such abilities. Whether it was destroying the SEAL or EOD Screener or just plain old destroying his floor 15 minutes prior to an alpha inspection, the nation is forever indebted to him for his service. Conquering Charlottesville takes but a weekend, taking on Ecuador took a week. Known in some circles as Burt, he will forever possess an ample supply of PERT. How many Ecuadorian pipes does a 2ndLt need? The world may never know. His lack of bearing is appalling. Arigato Gozaimasu for being such a good friend, and don't forget that I will serve you 'til the end. Buena Suerte in the Marine Corps.

Aaron M. Carr

Submarines

After spending the better part of his childhood working on the nineteen-seventy-something Dodge Charger skeleton in his garage, Aaron decided it would be better to buy a nineteen -seventy-something Dodge Charger in mostly one piece, and then spend years working on that instead. When not working on his immobile Charger, Aaron could be found working on the equally undrivable capstone formula car. Thanks for making us park on Hospital Point so your barely drivable car could sit under a tarp on Dewey. Seriously Aaron, or Matthew, whatever your name is, that long walk was a lot of fun.

CALI bound! San Diego better prepare itself for this feisty little one. Don't let the Reese's Queen fool you not only can she run circles around you, but she can answer the phone in Russian (zing zing) and is a lifetime VIP member at Zanzabar. Croquet matches are overrated, but were the start of a friendship and sushi mate for life! Top-down and wisdom-teeth-chipmunk-cheeks. Always ready for the joys of life over a piece of cake, cone of ice-cream, or a good cup of coffee. Most importantly though, she loves her Jesus! With a heart so lost in God, anyone lucky enough to be a part of her life will have to go through Him to find her.

Cody D. Chenoweth

USMC Ground

The Don, responsible for stalling the bandwidth of all first batt with his millionth viewing of Katy Perry's Teenage Dream, never misses a respite of chair narcolepsy. Don't ask him about systems, but he sure can quote Star Wars. The Cougar has been unofficially awarded the Purple Heart from a ball and chain fork-to-chest injury for talking back at a local Annapolis residence. Shredding in Gnarnia on weekends, Darth continues on the run from his stalkers, notably his plebe summer sweetheart, you guessed it, a blonde. If you're thinking about pursuing this debonair reputation, check his plebe picture for a gut check.

Devin S. Colligan

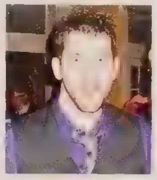
Jacob M. Corl

USMC Pilot

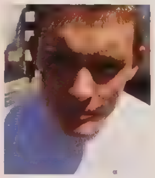
This former mechanic would have you think he's a Marine. Storming boulder beach in Cancun or prepping to go to sea, Corl snake would not give up until he got his way or got bored. This WoW guru wouldn't go to bed if the raid depended on it. When old man wasn't napping through every possible formation or comatose in classes, he dominated the digital battlefield donned with a boonie-cover and no pants, death metal blasting the room. With retard or old man strength this geezer still shows up the young'uns in the occasional 1am MCMAP sessions. 4 years in DTA and still watering the p-ways. The score will forever remain, Tree 1, Jake 0.

Peter J. Craner

Submarine Corps



Thought by many to be quite flamboyant, PJ's taste for appletinis and pink and purple shirts has a tendency to attract the wrong kind of attention that he seems to enjoy. PJ's love for the outdoor adventures of skiing, biking, golfing, and rock climbing almost make up for his tastes in drinks and dress. This outdoorsman naturally chose the submarine corps to get out and see the world. When asked about his 3/C and 2/C years, PJ proudly responds, "I don't know, I was in the rumpus room." This academically SAT Company Commander led the 2011 rocks to the finish line, for which we are eternally grateful.



Joel G. Cuda

SEALs

Cuda Platoon has been taking to strain since June of 2007. Although he spent much of plebe year being sad, through determination and working with his roommate he has fixed his self-defeating attitude. He has made many friends through his interactions on the water polo and triathlon teams; however, the challenges of the classroom have done the most to form his character, and what a character he his. A man of humor and grit, if he can just manage to keep his back straight, Joel Cuda will go on to accomplish great things.

Tyler W. Davenport

Marine Pilot

Our idyllic country boy obsessed with huntin' der, drinkin' ber and…well. Dirka Der will forever be remembered for the little time we got to spend time with him when he wasn't sleeping, watching movies (for his minor in film) or fiddling with his toy airplane. An avid fan of the rambox, Batman barraged us with so many truck quotes over three months that he may have a future in used CAR sales. Good thing the Marine Corps doesn't swim much, because Tyler here is a fan of the late night type. Not to much luck on his first Caribbean adventure, he managed to find a civilian with enough patience to endure an eternity of Bass Pro trips.

Lupita S. Dodge

Surface Warfare Officer

Anyone who knows Lupita knows she is truly a blessing from above. Lupita has the biggest heart and the warmest smile with a determination that will lead her to success no matter where life takes her. She lives her life with true sincerity and earnest will to walk with Christ. Her kindness and strength make her an excellent friend and leader, destined to do great things for the Navy and beyond!

Elle M. Ekman

USMC Ground

Elle Ekman…book connoisseur, Nano's VIP, T-shirt designer, fast walker, and motivator. We would have liked to take you to downtown Quito, but you got caught up pre-gaming and didn't make it past the drain. While your talents at the Academy include dancing, fencing, and shooting cannons, your ability to ride horses led some to believe that they too were horse whisperers, and we were lucky that the Ecuadorian decapitation of a certain company-mate was diverted. Your motherly care of impaired shipmates was also often needed and rarely appreciated. You are a beautiful gem of a friend and the wiliest temptress of them all.

Samuel W. Hall

Naval Flight Officer

Samuel Walter Hall, native of the infamous Stearns County, Minnesota, heir apparent to the Mathew Hall lumber company, was accepted to the Naval Academy as a form of asylum in order to escape persecution resulting from a gambling debt. Although, he was originally denied entry because of a medical complication named ingentis nasus; he was later cleared with a waiver. As a midshipman he was known for his huge smile, his flow, and his poor bearing. His interests included Jimmy Hendrix imitations, bathroom discussions, antiques, Chris Sharma, and mathematical proofs. He is ready to hit the fleet and will be an asset wherever alcohol is served.

Taylor C. Hamilton

Surface Warfare Officer

Hamilton runs the show. He hails from the great state of California, or was it Kansas.. Know for his very choice dress, including a fair amount of leather and tight jeans. No weekend was spent outside DC scouring the streets looking for a worthy woman, he found many. The world traveler later developed a more refined pallet leading him to the shores of the Orient. Yellow Fever might be an overstatement, oh wait no it wouldn't. Some people only dream of being "Big in Japan" this man truly is. The bro of flow whose hair was second only to mine will make admiral hahaha Varcity for life baby.

Matthew P. Hammons

Marine Pilot

Matt "The Header" Hammons left his mark on the academy by being the sickliest mid ever with the most trips to the hospital by anyone in history. Matt's last minute arrival to the Academy almost cost him all his stuff when this jittery fellow almost didn't show. Despite being an overly active person from the hours of 10:00 pm to 2:00 am, Matt still managed to squeeze in a nap in every chance he got. After being highly disappointed in his service selection of marine pilot, Matt, the ever intellectual putz, drowned his sorrows with snow boarding and College Park while failing miserably on figuring out how to calm down.

Blaine A. Lander

Navy Pilot

The Joe, whose kryptonites are unshined shoes and decaffeinated beverages, excelled in grafting his way to the top through ice cream gifts, WOW guild alliances, and BodyBuilder.com. Affectionately known as BOB, Blaine never misses out on a BL (sometimes drinking them twice), drinking at such lightning speeds, one would think he mistakes them for the million Diet Mountain Dews he drinks weekly (keeping USNA recycling on par with the State of Maryland). Note to CNATRA, if he flies like he drives, make sure he's in a P-3, without Jaeger or darts. After puking at a hospital, he gave up med corps to throw up in the cockpit instead.

Steven Mendez Jr.

Navy Pilot

Ever humble, Steve hardly ever boasted about commanding his high school's JROTC unit though his chest full of ribbons merited its fair share of bragging. He would go on to spend most of the next four years looking at himself in the mirror and spending held pay on questionable dietary supplements. After a lengthy battle against steroid allegations which ultimately proved inconclusive, Steve moved out of the limelight and settled down with a good Christian girl. He followed close behind her on the path to righteousness. With 2011 finally upon us, Annapolis says goodbye to the skinniest meathead it has ever known.

Duc M. Pham

USMC Ground

It is impossible for most grown men to be seriously described as "cute and cuddly," but Duc "The Puke" Pham is the exception. A more loyal friend cannot be found on 3-4. This pint-sized pipsqueak packs quite a powerful punch; he is fearless and will fight much bigger men than him at the drop of a hat. While most people stay loyal to a few hobbies, Duc does it all. Boxing, snowboarding, and rock climbing are no problem for this superman. Drinking, on the other hand, is a different story. His tolerance is slightly worse than that of a 16 year old girl who sneaks vodka from her parent's liquor cabinet before her homecoming dance.

Brian A. Pinter

Submarines

Hailing from the great or not so great Strong Island, somehow this kid went all of plebe summer without BCG's but when he got them it was nothing short of epic, six eyes is an understatement. This FLID, that might be harsh...uhh no its not, somehow managed to get into the submarine community despite a 1.25 semester QPR, impressive I know. All the while with the hottest girlfriend/second cousin I have ever seen. The man with the family the size of Delaware, brought most of them to ring dance much to the dismay of Connor Bench. All in all Brian was lucky not to graduate the anchor man, and he sucks at skiing!

Michael D. Ramsey

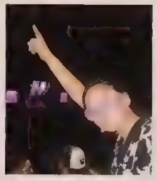
Surface Warfare Officer

Dearest Mike, we have known you by many names; BMR, FEMR, SLAMR, and Crazy. But perhaps your best name was roommate. Your legendary courage (stupidity) under the tyranny of Brandenburg will remain a story for the ages. Your trumpet skills are trumped only by your merciless dominance in keyboard DDR. A connoisseur of all things fine, Mike would rather drink his own urine than stoop to the level of King Hall coffee; his dedication to brewing the perfect cup every morning was the first step in his training to become a SWO. This Orange County Cali boy is ready to take on the world. Watch out, Japan: you thought Godzilla was bad.

Samuel P. Rose

Navy Pilot

Taking all four years, Sam has finally conquered the Fangorn Forest to become the real Samwise Gamgee, Executive Officer of the NOT JACKED douches. Relax in the fleet, make your rack calmly and don't throw your BCGs when times get tough. When you wear a tux to your wedding, don't wear your Elmo hat. At our 5th class reunion we expect an update on your jailbird sweetheart; we know you're still secretly in love and that Erin is just a front, oh and Jimmy still needs the time. How prepositions and propellers fit together I don't know, but hopefully this Jersey boy will figure out when he moves to P-Cola that Florida owns Ohio (State).



Katherine M. Ruffin

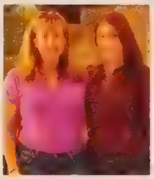
METOC

KT, Killer, Kate - Queen of motivating quotes & outrageous clothing, known for witty status updates, fresh pink LAGear light-up kicks, lending her foam-roller to all in need, & CDO emails crafted expertly as poems an English major could appreciate. Yoga Mondays, Marcel the Shell & being downright ridiculous with you have gotten me through this place. A beautiful young lass with a heart bigger than a canoe. Her charm, wit & sarcasm could easily get her a job as a greeting card writer. I couldn't ask for a better friend-always listening, honest, & a quirky, beautiful woman. Katie doesn't just bring life to the party, she is the party.

Alexander P. Shaw

Naval Flight Officer

A man, who has never been wrong in his life, survived USNA. And without doing something to get kicked out of that institution. Stuck in the Hall he planned his escape. On more than one occasion he planned circumnavigations of the globe, on the cheap. A man who has had an impressive career as a lawyer on the high seas, his intimate knowledge of the REGs got him on the wrong side of the law. While not arguing, Alex could undoubtedly be found celebrating life with the gospel of House Music. The beat of House could make his man purr like a kitten, pair that with a girl and a drink and his life would be complete (if only for one night).



Erica A. Sizemore

Navy Pilot

From a photo shoot on the shore of a deserted island to seeking both the perfect tan and guy, we discussed life over coffee dates, sushi & compulsive shopping sprees. You're a marathon runner minus the marathon, and eyebrow expert and an avid Fiber One consumer. The proud owner of a gorgeous "B" face, you are determined to make the world more polite, one crude person at a time, all while opening your own boutique and doing it before bedtime at 9pm. Wearing comfy clothes ½ the time, stylish Vogue the other half, I cherish our friendship and sex talks more than you know and will never let too long a time go before calling to say hi. Give in to the gel! Love, Katie

If Chipper didn't have the sickest 1960's flow, you'd think he was going Cyber Warfare with all the hours he has racked up playing Zelda. Known for throwing a baseball fast as F, Chip left what would have certainly led him to a multimillion dollar MLB contract and endorsements in order to pursue a game worthy of his noble birth, golf. This soon to be Navy NFO was bred for life amongst the Gods, and will soon take his throne behind the biggest, baddest, most relaxed bird in the sky, the P-3. Love you Guady, Varcity.

"Three passions, simple but overwhelmingly strong have governed my life: the thirst for knowledge, the longing for love and the unbearable pity for the suffering of mankind."
-Bertrand Russell. Congrats Class of 2011! We made it!

Christine L. Tyndall

Surface Warfare Officer

The moments before Christine took command of a deckplate were easily the most tense of the day. They were like the last seconds of a lion pride's stalk. The gazelles sense that something isn't exactly right, but they can't quite put a hoof on it. Oh, how I pity the poor midshipman, officer, or SEL who blindly turned around a corner and was immediately smitten by one of Christine's powerful chow calls! At least one member of the class of 2011 spent 2.5 years on chit as a result of repeated unprotected exposure to Christine's thunderous wails. Even now, vultures are seen circling overhead whenever she lingers near a deckplate.

Christopher C. Welty

Submarines

When the 2nd Age began, a man was forged from the fiery depths of Irvine, CA. This veritable wildman jumps out of planes, scales rockwalls, and breaks records for most emails sent while at USNA. A man's man, Chris has wooed countless females with his operatic baritone voice, defined farmer's tan, and swashbuckling expertise, 2nd only to Inigo Montoya. While not at work he enjoys the simpler pleasures of life like organizing his Magic card collection by color and memorizing all 900 hours of Lord of the Rings special features. His meticulous OCD will forever ensure a secure Mother B along with his perfectly folded blue rims.

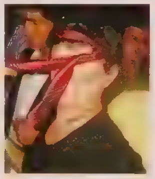
Design, Build, Fly-can someone please explain to me why I thought a two semester capstone would be a good idea? Ice hockey or crew, simple choice-both. From one practice to the next, it is obvious that sleep is nonessential. Team Erg to Head of the Charles, Mimi has clearly earned her keep. Sipping Juicy Juice while driving can prove to be difficult, which one's the registration? Always the best dressed, cow patterned or neon green spandex, she can pull it all off. The best friend a person could have, Mimi is destined for great things in her future as a Marine Pilot! Get some devil dog!

Christopher W. Anderson

Submarines

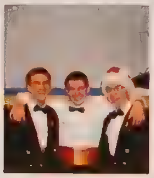
This FIFA phenom hails from Colorado, and his soccer skills are put to good use as our favorite club soccer star. The remix master is known for his Afro and Polo collection. Our neighbors are the biggest fans of his sub bumping out the latest #1 hit on iTunes. He rarely misses an argument… probably because he instigated it. Even though his glasses are so thick he should be able to see into the future, he wasn't able to foresee the little gift he left in his chair Plebe year. Chris will be adding grape jelly to the sub fleet after graduation. We're sure Chris and Amanda will be together forever, cuz if he ever left her she'd find him!



Marco A. Arroyo

Surface Warfare Officer

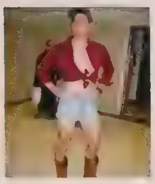
This fiery Spaniard hails from far south of the border. A prominent frequenter of the District of Columbia, this man has left his footprints all over the 32 mile radius—inside and out. Forever he will be one of the pigeon sisters of 5121. His fashion style is matched only by his choice of bedding. As an AT&T valued customer he has kept the telecommunications giant in business through the recession. He is a black belt in martial arts and in changing any unsuspecting roommates' background. An honorary tropical storm chaser this man laughs every time he watches Twister. Watch out Fleet, Marco is coming for you.



John A. Bice

Naval Aviation

John is a very mysterious person, which is strange due to his inordinate girth. John usually spends the weekends with his fiancé forcing her to retrieve pizza for him from Gate 1 or surreptitiously trying to hide obvious make-out sessions from one or more of his five roommates. John's sense of humor is very interesting, mainly due to the fact that it chiefly involves his inability to comprehend any joke told around him for at least 5 seconds after everyone else has already gotten it. You can count on John's optimism to coerce him to perform the worst jobs around just long enough for him to realize what a horrible mistake he has made.



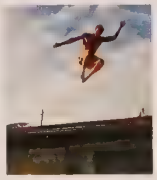
William C. Blalock

Surface Warfare Officer

Well technically…Chickenfoot Alabama isn't a real town but it is where the hero of our story, Carson Blalock, calls home. The true embodiment of a Southern gentleman, Carson was loved by many illustrious women…one night at a time. His bookshelf was adorned with volumes of Plato, and Milton Friedman, all in pristine condition. He waged an epic war against Spanish class, sleep paralysis, and all things military, and though at times his fate looked bleak, he emerged the victor. Whenever in doubt, Carson could be found seeking wisdom from one of the wise men of the South, Johnny, Jim, or Jack. Roll Tide!! Whatever that means…

William W. Bochner

Special Warfare



This radical soul searcher hails from the foggy hills of Marin and begins his story with a 40 and an upper deck. Originally traveling to A-town in search of exotic parties and Au pairs, he found an oasis for adventure, friendship, music, and logging. USNA provided him with a ripe environment, and exploited it. Sewing seeds early in his career he has been able to harvest a demerit free education, a cut balance oriented physique, a promising musical calling, and plenty of good times. No matter what obstacles have been thrown in his way he always lands on his feet, unless that obstacle is a curb and his feet is his head. Wes's searching will lead to great things, but if not, he can be a handicapped banjo player.

Kerry K. Brady

Navy Pilot

This bubbly Wisconsinite started her academy career by loosing her boot bag on I-day; continued to break, lose, misplace, and run over a few phones and wallets here and there. She loves to greet everyone with a big smile, "Hello!" and a great big wave to go with. Sometimes Kerry enjoys stepping through the ceiling of her sponsor's house. She is always a great friend to everyone, studious, locked on and motivated. She will make a great Navy pilot and serve the United States well. Kerry, everyone loves you. 1, 2, 3… WORLD PEACE!

Zachary S. Bunting

Submarines

Zach (or is it Shane?) Bunting, king of the GPA, intramural warrior, avid feedback reader, and largest contributor to USNA's Sporcle power ranking. This mild mannered Mormon from Auburn, WA served a two year mission in Romania and can often be found breaking hearts at YSA's from sea to shining sea. But don't let those shiny stars and 'All-American' charm fool you, this international man of mystery has service selected the Submarine Corps, and has carried the torch of Dave Garcia as Trainer Extraordinaire! Always pennywise and thrifty his favorite quote is "How much of this can I put away and never touch again?" Fair tides and following sound barriers oh warrior of the deep. Watch out for those B's!

Ian J. Carter-Condon

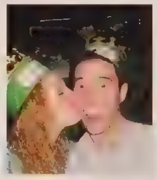
USMC Ground

Ian is the greatest thing to come of Virginia since anything to have ever come out of Virginia. Just ask him, or not, he'll be sure to mention it anyway. Ian's chief desire is to be a Marine Corps officer raging in a club full of Asian women while repetitive techno remixes of Lady GaGa blasting at a ridiculous level cause irreparable hearing damage. Disgusted with the mediocrity of being a mechanical engineer, Ian decided to become the general of all engineering and an expert on pretty much whatever you happen to be talking about at the moment.

David A. Chucoski

Submarines

An avid guitarist, Dirty David has the most extensive collection of unread books in the brigade. From sharing beds with Filthy Phil to picking fights with Navy's D-line, David never had a lack of complaint material…besides the effectiveness of Rogaine. Coach Chuck somehow managed a stellar GPA while studying less than Joe. Proud owner of the hottest whip on the Yard, he'll be representing his class until the Honda's bumper falls completely off. When he's not busy building his nest, he can be found saving for his nest egg on Scotttrade. Tyler's golden child is sure to make Bruce Bruce and Sharon proud while he blazes those trails.



David B. Connell

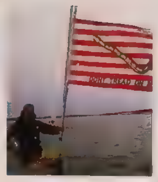
Navy Pilot

No one started his Naval Academy experience earlier than "Old Man" Connell, who first walked into Indoc at NAPS in the summer of '04. "In those days we had to dial someone's number if we wanted to get them a message," recalls Connell. "None of this texting nonsense!" Where his age really shows is in his choice of music, as Peter, Paul and Mary vinyl frequently spin on the turntable on his desk. 'Take it to the bank' applies not only to his financial savvy, as the first midshipman to ever understand an LES, but also to his mad skills on the ultimate frisbee pitch. His penchant for all things Irish has landed him as king of the skirt-wearing, D&B- rivaling pipes and drums band. This pilot-selectee will marry his sweetheart Ashley not 24 hours after he dons Ensign shoulderboards. We wish them all the best!

Morgan A. Dahl

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Hide your moms and older sisters because Morgan is getting all their numbers. The Dahly Lama can be found carousing in the streets of downtown Annapolis often wearing his trademark American flag attire. When not charming your mothers into paying for his cab fare back into town, Morgan can be found in one of the various pools playing underwater hockey or club water polo. Morgan is one of those natural-born leaders we read about in the news and his main mode of travel is a pair of bald eagles whose names are George Washington and Ronald Regan. He readily awaits the challenges ahead of him as he enters the very prestigious EOD community.



Theodore K. Dempsey

Navy Pilot

First I want thank everyone who got me through this place with special thanks to my brother Greg for always giving me a challenge, my parents for always believing in me and my brother Andrew for his long and inspiration telephone calls. I also want to thank all my other family and friends that has been a constant source of support. At the Academy the Varsity Offshore Sailing team was my home away. From the first escape sailing Colgate 26s during plebe summer to the 2011 MAC Cup winning crew I have met some great people and had some great times both on and off the water. The Naval Academy has taken me to places that I never expected to go: training in Japan, sailing through storms with hurricane force winds, to Bermuda and back on a Navy 44, and countless other places. I hope to look back on this place and cherish the lessons that I learned. But from now on the only direction to go is onwards and upwards. Fly Navy

Zishan Hameed

Surface Warfare Officer

If there ever was a "smooth criminal," our buddy Z would be just that. This Norfolk native is the life of the party but never underestimate his ability to clear the room at the same time. He's known throughout the brigade for his speaking skills…or maybe just forgetting his shoes (which he probably sold). We'll never understand how a man who's traveled the world can still get lost going to class, but also find his way to Richmond and back all in one night. Don't be fooled by this man's size, after all he could challenge Kobayashi in a (un-timed) eating contest. But all else aside you'd be hard pressed to find a better friend.

Donald O. Hampton

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Whether Donny "GoldenPhoenix" Hampton is sporting jorts and a bowtie, or American flag boxers, he is always the life of the party. His jacked and toned body makes him a real winner with the ladies at Penn State. During the week he can be found punishing steel in the gym, being hungry, or battling his friends and vampires. On the weekends he likes displaying extreme spirit at sporting events, sleeping on porches, or eating fruit pizza at home with Nora. His love for 2 for 20s, bacon, and America are second to none. Its boring, but its his life.

Joseph C.G. Lerro

USMC Pilot

A true fiscal conservative Joe really knows how to pinch every penny out of a dollar. When not getting ready to join the Corps he can be found working on his whip. We're glad he decided to never Tango, but he could of at least learned how to better store beer bottles. As a scholar of history Joe ironically lets the past repeat itself all too often. This yut pup loves whale watching, a good afternoon nap, and riding the pine. Joe would rather lay in his rack with mono than miss a good party. With a bloodstream that is largely composed of Monster, he is ready to rage at the drop of a hat. GTL is about to be brought to the USMC.

Colin A. Looby

Navy Pilot

Colin Looby enjoys athletics and arguing his beliefs to absolutely no end with absolutely anyone. During the weekdays, this strapping young Naval Architect can be found with his nose in a book, studying hard for his next exam or working diligently to assist 6th Company in some way. However, on the weekends he dusts off his flat brim, breaks out his lax penny, and hits the road in an effort to try on female clothing in its various forms. Ladies, if you're into that he'll be in Pensacola, Fl for the next several years. Congrats Colin!

Solomon C. Lu

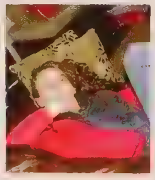
Surface Warfare Officer

Mr. Lu has inspected more rooms than the rest of 6th company combined. He has recently taken room inspections to a ho novfa leva by implementing a new chit which has quintuple carbon copies and three hits which can be made up on the spot. While balancing a difficult chemistry major with crashing million dollar sailboats, getting speeding tickets on squad outings, and 72 hour long gaming sessions consuming only soy milk, Solomon has proven he has the mettle to weather the difficult demands of a SWO; including consuming his own bodyweight in coffee, staring at gauges for hours on end, and donning and doffing firefighting equipment.

Rebecca J. O'Brien

Surface Warfare Officer

Becky is one of the fiercest friends anyone could ask for. She is willing to go to any lengths to help a friend, be it giving advice for a tough situation, making you cookies and coffee, just listening with an available shoulder, or helping to motivate your socks. As a Systems major, she is the hardest worker ever and always willing to teach those who need help. She is kind, compassionate, and honest and will always find a way to tough it out, even if it earns a few bruises, takes lots of gauze, and almost kills a cactus. Stand by Surface Fleet...



Rachel E. Peeler

Naval Flight Officer

Rachel "Ducky" Peeler is a true Kentucky Queen with the style and pizzazz of any big city girl. Her quick wit and distinct voice can be recognized throughout the halls of Mother B. Whether she is running like the wind, playing Scrabble like it is her day job, or catching some ZZs, Rachel is a model midshipman and citizen. Like any other girl, she enjoys painting her nails, cuddly animals, and shopping but her love for the rugged outdoors and honky-tonk music allows her to shine as a true American.

Phil A. Perillo

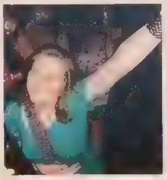
Surface Warfare Officer

Born and raised in LaGrange, New York. I majored in Aeronautical Engineering and service selected Surface Warfare. I owe an invaluable amount of thanks to my parents, Manny and Marie, and my close friends from home for keeping me going to the finish. I love America.

Nicholas J. Porter

Naval Flight Officer

Nicholas Joe Porter, known affectionately by all as "Big P" for as of yet unknown reasons. However to some, he was known only as the "The Night Rider" for his gallant moped banditry down the 5-0 mainshaft. Hailing from a small town in Indiana, Nic grew to be man of stature in all dimensions. Despite his intimidating prowess, even a brief encounter with Nic left no doubt about his lovable and caring demeanor. Comfortably aloof and mild mannered, Nic could be found peacefully observing NASCAR races in his rack while the world around seemed to be in total chaos. In short, Nic could be described by his own choice quote, "Ya never know!"



Lily K. Powers

Surface Warfare Officer

Lily (Taquito) Kristina Powers is a native of the Sunshine State, where she first developed her mastery of the Spanish language. If she is not traveling to a foreign country or singing her heart out on stage, she is probably painting the town red with her closest amigas, AC and MR. Her voice and her gait can be recognized all the way from the long halls of Rickover to the streets of DTA. Years from now, her friends will remember her for of all her wit and the laughs she brought us all. She wants everyone to know that she loves her family and friends. Besos. <3MRR.

Alejandro D. Ravelo

Navy Pilot

Alejandro Ravelo- whether waging war against the French sailing team, or a crab pretzel and some beers at Davis's Pub in Eastport…Al is always ready to throw down…sometimes against a J80, or even a small Chevy pick-up in Virginia Beach…good thing he didn't t-bone anybody on his Vespa while racing through Bancroft Hall after a day of staying well hydrated. Al is always there for his friends, and he can always be counted on if you need a favor. He is a great guy, and he will make an awesome Navy pilot.

Chase B. Rogalski

Navy Pilot

The infamous Casanova of 6th company, Chase has broken hearts all across this great nation…and especially Bancroft Hall. His sweaty palms have tried their hand at almost every activity a mid can attempt…from special birthday gestures to racking up points as a member of the field hockey team. A peacock when it comes to dressing for nights out in DTA, Chase refuses to fly under the radar. Chase never looked to Rip Van Winkle as a role model as he could rarely be found asleep, whether he was doing homework, watching youtube, or hanging out with the pistol team. We know he'll make Doc and Karen proud when he travels through space.

Richard C. Rybolt

USMC Ground

Craig Rybolt is a man of few pleasures. He is the kind of man who enjoys an ice cold Coca-Cola and burrito more than the company of… anyone. He is completely content spending time in the store buying TV dinners and listening to music that is twice his age. Overall the people who like Craig the most are hat-makers who on average save about 20% on material costs for their products. On the weekends, Craig can be seen being cynical at the mall, the gas station, at a movie, or pretty much anywhere. His vast knowledge of oceanography will no doubt serve him well in his Marine Corps ground billet which is a testament to his stellar work ethic.

Paul A. Schauppner

Submarines

Paul is the spawn of pure sunshine, positive energy, and a grizzly bear. You may be asking yourself how this is possible, seeing as the first two things are not capable of reproducing, but just believe me on this one. Paul is literally the nicest person to have ever lived, in fact, if he were to ask me to give him all of my material possessions and jump of a cliff I would find it difficult to say no, due to the fact that I feel obligated to hang around to see if he can get any more selfless. I bet you are all wondering where the grizzly bear comes in, and if you are wondering that you have obviously not seen Paul without a shirt on.

Joseph S. Siragusa II

USMC Ground

In 2006 I decided to settle down and retire from a lucrative wrestling career in Eastern Europe, leaving behind all the cars, money, and women. I set my sights towards a new goalas a Midshipman at the United States Naval Academy where I willone day attempt to become the Commandant of the Marine Corps. My time here has opened the door to many opportunities including daily naps, Preakness, NASCAR, sorority houses, NYC in uniform, Shiner Bock, the Dojo, Hulu, and WebSense…oh and maybe a EE degree and CC of 6th Company. "You can't rush epicness."

Kyle R. Spiritus

USMC Pilot

A bro-propping legend hailing from the Dojos of Japan, Tus always knew how to bring the ruckus. A god among men on the basketball court, he put his company mates to shame with his killer two-handed rainbows. Instead of homework, he loved to spend his time on Nike-talk, which kept him more up-to-date on current events than Joe Siragusa. A great roommate, the Corps will be lucky to have this real American.

Ryan F. Szymaniak

Navy Pilot

Reigning supreme over all of the land of Azeroth, Ryan quickly became known as the most relentless and powerful warlock blood elf in the entire kingdom. But that is just one of many of his alternate lives. His time spent playing video games is comparable only to the amount of money he blew on the most beautiful way to loose your second class loan: a brand new Camaro. When he isn't playing video games he can be found enjoying a burrito with Craig and Paul, going to the movies with Craig and Paul, or waiting for Craig and Paul to get off duty so he has someone to hang out with…or correcting Paul on how to correctly spell "lose."

Tyler E. Whitmore

Submarines

The Rajin' Cajun from Saint Amant puts Roger Ebert to shame. Tyler is much like his favorite candy, a little sour at first, but oh so sweet on the inside. The #1 Navy basketball fan, he is passionate about his athletics. Tyler loves to ride the train almost as much as he likes pulling the ejector handle. A man of few words yet full of hand-to-hand defensive tactics. As an Olympian lifter Tyler is a force to be reckoned with. His home away from home has been the campus of UVA. Subject of enumerate song remixes, Tyler will be able to live off of royalties into retirement. Let us all show our love saying together, "YEAH TY!"

Jiatian Yue

Surface Warfare Officer

Jiatian "Grandma" Yue made her mark in 6th Company from the beginning, sporting a cane for several weeks during Plebe Summer after a nasty encounter with a speed bump during a regimental run. Following a brief stint in the Navy delivering babies, Yue was able to bring her medical knowledge to light as a detailer when she was officially put in charge of nursing the tender feet of the sad, blistered plebes back to health. Her contagious laugh, cheery disposition, and mother-like qualities will always reserve for her a soft spot in all of our hearts.

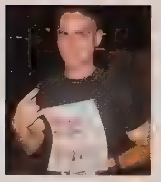
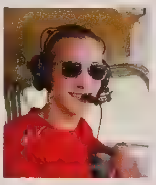
David M. Allen



Submarines

Mike, aka Blue, has been the prior to admire who knows how to navigate his way around "The Fleet." He can give a phenomenal pep talk with no preparation, romance his lady until the end of the universe, and take care of business all in a day's time. He finds it difficult to suppress his inner leprechaun as he's having a good time at the ole' FRC. Mike lives each day with no regrets and is willing to do the right thing when everyone else is doing the wrong thing. He's a man of his word. Follow the convictions of your heart and allow God to lead you in your decisions. May the Truth of the Lord guide you through turbulence and High Seas.



David J. Ash

Navy Pilot

Never will there be another pilot who loves his job as much as Dave. When he wasn't conducting post-flight debriefs of his real and virtual flights, Dash kept busy destroying his competition in track, video games, and coffee drinking. His remaining free time was spent upgrading his Jeep to survive the zombie apocalypse. Dance parties, both sober and inebriated…long talks over cigars…wrestling matches…"simpler terms"...scheisse…set gret…tickle monster…HALO running riots…Dave, we survived 4 years of hell, but we made it. You're gonna be the best damn pilot the world has ever seen. Creen.

Zachary J. Bauer

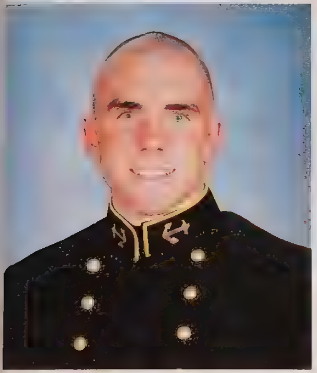
Naval Aviation

Since recently gaining confidence after 21 years, his personality is all you need by your side. Whether it be sprinklin' girls on the dance floor or contributing to the conversation, this zoomie reject stealth plebe talks the big game always willing to do whatever. But this Navy pilot to be will make history marrying his chatroulette tamagachi. Virtual fantasy, screen minimizing and late night "talks" honestly surprise me considering that hot thing he dated plebe year. Hey there bluetooth bathroom boy, no one can hear you, just stop and play for me. Isn't that right Bauer? Oh yea…go blackout my son. Just keep that couch dry toddler.

Devin M. Bezold

Navy Pilot

Devin Bezold grew up in San Diego County going to airshows at what was then NAS Mirrimar and watching the movie Top Gun; nuff said. His drive to be the best fighter pilot in the Navy ("Sir!") led him to a mythical place far away called the Naval Academy. Although quite different from his high school on the beach in Southern California with a girl to guy ratio of about 2 to 1, he managed to get by. In all seriousness, he has grown in many areas of his life during his time at USNA and is very thankful to God for the path He has led him on thus far and is excited for his future as a Naval Aviator.



Ryan C. Bresson

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

From waking up less than dressed for the occasion on a stranger's couch to politely refilling girls' glasses at Pusser's, Blackout Bresson did work… homework, that is. Bressonian's Friday nights consisted of BOWLSUHCEREAL, thousands of e-mails, and a 2100 bedtime. What happened to the fun Ryan? He truly loved his subordinates and it showed. His likable personality made him a crew favorite onboard the Majesty of the Seas. The first and only guy to cry in my arms... two years in a row. With dance moves more appropriate for the weight room and biceps that end miles before the elbow, no wonder he captured the hearts of so many.

Sara L. Burke

Navy Pilot

If Sara Burke is not traveling with the Inter-Collegiate Sailing Team, she is reading the latest Lilly magazine, practicing her yoga, singing 504 Boys, or dreaming of the warm sun. Cheers to "All the Above" Commissioning Week '09, "Typical" Spring Break '09, "Raise your white flag" France '10, Drydock gossip sessions, Yoga with Holly, NOOD parties, Newport, GONADS!, Gerogetown Shopping, Mendelblatt Valentine's Day with the Burkes, Easter Brunch, Saraline, and four great years! Through it all, Sara is the amazing, classy, beautiful, outgoing person everybody wants to be around and who always puts her friends and family first.

Jason B. Carey

William J. Chauncey

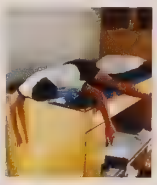
USMC Ground

William "Papa Bear" Chauncey is truly a man amongst men. He spent most of his time on the banks of the Severn successfully preparing for life's true calling, war. The master of ultimate target practice – run, shoot, roll … shoot some more- and taking down challengers on the mat, Will embodies the warrior ethos. While an intimidating character, Will maintains a never-ending FB love saga with the love of his life. Those who were lucky to be close to Will knew him as a loyal and caring friend, but everyone who met him benefitted from his example. A Georgian to the core, Will is living proof that the South will rise again!

Michael A. Cofsky

Navy Pilot

Bru. Brohan. Mike, we wonder why you came to the Naval Academy instead of moving to Colorado, growing a beard and skiing everyday. You were the chillest one of the room, but also the angriest, especially when the Broncos sucked. You were gifted at most sports, and were the king of Frisbee. You scared us with your SARB board, but you managed to dodge that bullet. Ski trips… mountain biking…offroading…Spain…"You're so much drunker than me"…"dude, just let me go punch him"…Pilot is the perfect fit for you, and we know you'll love it. We'll miss you, all 7 feet of you. We do wonder if you'll ever get that motorcycle you always wanted…



Christopher P. Coombs

USMC Ground

hey…hi. It's Chrispy/Chrees/No Credibility/John/Phil…many names, but the same animal-loving Coombs. He drives the Coombsmobile, makes no plans, never pays anyone back, and is a helpless little creature. If he's not on Oovoo all night whispering sweet nothings, he's desked out like a narcoleptic dog. After 3.5 years of being caged and kept in the doghouse by Julia, he broke free, pirated CAPT Ahab's whaling ship, and went raw-doggin' hog-wild. Once rode a bike from gate 8 to Bancroft in SDBs at 0100. Gave his gf a tactical cover for their 2-year anniversary. Get back in your cage Coombs!! The USMC won't find a better ground-pounder.

Alexander T. Craven

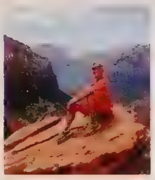
USMC Ground

We called him "reen." He claimed he wasn't Asian yet made better grades than his roommates while still being the master of all video games. "How many pages did you write?" He never lost a Starcraft match, and he cooked meals(mainly rice) daily in order to avoid King Hall. Kitchen appliances aren't against MIDREGS, right? (MC Howe loved his cooking-even took pictures to prove it). Between his loud eating habits(especially while eating dried mangos), his breast-holding tendency, and his ability to sleep at any time during the day except when it was night, we'll still miss you. Now go play in the mud "reen."

Matthew P. Eady

USMC Ground

I mean…yeah, when this Kentucky boy wasn't dreaming about that BU girl or tugging on the Chairman's jacket, he was using his special goggles to search for REALLY HOT girls. With his curious hands and 1,000-yard stare, the Meatman always knew when to stop and had a booming sense of confidence…until service selection. Despite having a not so solid time in China, this shameless intramural superstar did anything to keep a conversation going even if it meant pulling a few hairs. Although Matt may never fly in the Corps, his presence on the ground will be strong, especially after he shows everyone those gloves he found at Four Brothers.



Tracy M. Fridye

Navy Pilot

Hailing from Missouri City, Texas and yes she is a TRUE Texas fan much to her roommate's dislike, "T-Flop" as some may call her, ok maybe just one person, you know who you are, has really covered some ground while in Annapolis. She was a member of the Crew Team, Varsity Swim Team and her final two years a proud Triathlete. When she is not running, swimming or biking, you can find "tgifri11" cooking, making an espresso or taking a casual nap. She enjoys long runs in 15 degree snowy weather and swimming at 0500 in the mornings. Knock em' dead roomy!

Joseph A. Gehrz

Medical Corps

Joooey DOMEPIECE Guuurrritz has grown from a JROTC TOOL to a quivering plebe embarrassing Cadre with "Sir Gehrz, sir" to taking fellow D&B TOOLS on mystery weekend dates to 1stSGT-CC teambuilding to broken english spring breaks and all the way to the highest levels of command, citizenship, and CC on BC in DC. "See, the funny thing about that is" he'll surely be SNOOZING OUT no matter how many caffeine pills he takes once he graduates to the career of student. Again. At least he'll have the Batmobile. Somehow, despite the Amish upbringing and girls and alcohol being no fun at all, Joe became the model caustic Midshipman for us all.

Eric T. Hegg

USMC Ground

Mistegg hails from Fahrgoooo, Noooorth Dahkooootah. From bad gf's to Helen and Emma, he did not exactly have the greatest luck with women, but that's okay because he recovered quickly with all the great connections he made while spending time with his incredibly hospitable sponsor family. And if not at their house, one usually finds Eric photo-bombing, people-watching, or fanaticizing over Mother B's ceiling critters. Though not exactly the greatest "Would you rather?" player, Eric will take the social skills he learned becoming 7th Company's Most Popular Mid to the Corps, where he will surely win people over with his great laugh.

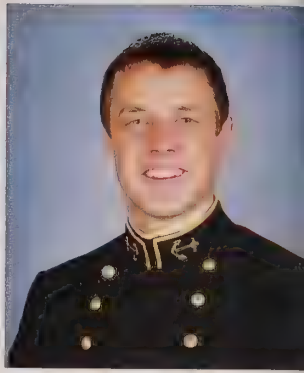
Christopher L. Janowicz

Surface Warfare Officer

This kid is ridiculous. AKA El Jano, Louis, Choad. Hailing from Princeton, NJ, residing in Nashville, TN, but representing everything Cleveland. Always on the offensive, looking to prove that he is right and the rest of the world is wrong. But sometimes, facts just can't be refuted, no matter how loudly you disagree. i.e. the US standard measurements system. Ward's taller. Grenade Free America is not in this guido's dictionary. He fancies himself an economist but on any given day can be found online pissing away every dime he makes on supplements, clothes and tanning oils to further inflate both his biceps and his vanity.

Gregory Jones

Surface Warfare Officer



Smartest guy on the team; Alright Greg, I would rather just not hear the story; Greg glad you stayed, you made us all dumber; Orioles + Soco and Lime = GREAT TIME!; Greg you can't fake the conversations in person; Oh my gosh, are you serious, Tyler come look at this; Has the hardest 90 pound woman to feed; Great run Vince, look out for Schupp; Stop with the faces, I am being serious; Yes Greg, you have to go into the military

Jeffrey C. Knollmeyer

Nuclear Surface Warfare

After getting kicked out of UNC, Knoll-mah continued his extravagant lifestyle at USNA: racking out 10 hours a day, eating Fritos and pasta bowls, and getting lots of work done on Sundays. Luckily, this wannabe pilot had a positive attitude and took EVERYTHING on board, even after getting hit by an 18-wheeler 2/C year. A master of civil disobedience, Jeffy pioneered the Subway Peel-Off of '09 and the Great Hush of 2010. After adopting 5 CATs, he learned to always be up for a good time, despite having to sleep with a gas mask on. Some people think he's NOT THAT GREAT, but the Jabawockeez would agree that he's destined for greatness.

Jacob C. Laird

Surface Warfare Officer

Jake Laird loves his country and loves the Open Road.

Leslie M. Landry

Subs

Leslie Landry may seem intimidating at first glance. Although she plays shortstop on the Navy Softball team, she really knows how to throw you a curveball full of surprises. She is actually a genuine Louisianian with the brains of a philosopher. She knows how to work hard and to play hard. She enjoys a nice, strong cup of coffee with her roommate every morning to conquer the day.

Evan L. Levesque

Seth J. Lloyd

Naval Flight Officer

One man, a rogue warrior, betrayed by the country he loved, raised by wolves, he is Seth James Lloyd. The only person to graduate from the Naval Academy after being separated from NAPS and let back in 5 minutes later, Seth lives the Rock Star status. In 15 years you're gonna find him in the Senate or on the beach in St Thomas, VI where he works as a Cabana Boy. Incredible Dancer? Check. Fantastic hair? Check. He might crash on your couch or live in your house for months at a time but it's gonna be a blast. He's gonna be the biggest NFBro this Navy has ever seen, so look out world here comes JV Charlie Sheen.

Thomas P. MacNeil

Talmadge M. Melton

USMC Ground

Well Tater hails from ole Carolina of the south…He knows 'er aint none better. Plebe summer baseball ole Mitchell was a shy ole cat. Traveled near and far with Navy baseball…most committed player of 2011 by far. Seen Stormi at'er best and at'er worst…freaks out about not getting the Corps, even though he did. Fratastic with Brody and the Dinster…Tell it like it is Mitchell…aka Uncle Meecsh…don't beat a round the bush. Mrs. V favorite sponsor son, BY far….obviously you haven't met LR3…Ill dance with you but Id never date you. A seahawk legend…Best good friend ah ever had. Go get'em Mitchell. Ooo-rah.

Ashley R. Montgomery

USMC Ground

Hey Ash, remember service selection night? Yeah don't worry, neither do we. Smashley Montgomery can not only party harder than you, she is also smarter than you, AND can probably kick your ass. However, this Georgia laxer is a true southern sweetheart, just don't start making fun of her truck. Ash is known by most and loved by all; she'll always have your back. No one works harder, and for that reason the Marines are lucky to have her. We'll miss you dearly, but not half as much as the bartenders of Annapolis. YUT!

Jacqueline H. Muslin

Surface Warfare Officer

Hailing from somewhere along the indiscriminate border of PA and OH and WV, this adorable little flirt can be seen coming to tackle you from across the hall, if she only had stilts or was being carried by anyone over five feet tall. Our lovable "Portable Plebe" fits comfortably in seabags, drum cases, and most overhead compartments; high ones are recommended – she bites and there are scars to prove it. From coast to coast, from Plebe to Firstie, and from dragging our classmates back from wherever they passed out at, the fleet had better be ready for us. Musketeers for life.

Jonathan R. Ponce

Krysta L. Porter Lott

USMC Ground

Krysta Parking Lot, a cherished friend. It all began with that uneven hair chop at NAPS, and now you are all grown up. Always singing a song, we could never get you to just SHUT UP and now that we are all going our separate ways I know that will be the thing I miss the most about you. Never a dull moment let us go back in time: The Complex. That is all. I'm not even going to get into that relationship of yours with who? We'll just call him "Gary". Five years in this place, we might as well rename it the trail of tears because Lord knows we had our share of those. But through thick and thin you have made it, and you never left me behind. You are my right hand woman, and the first true girl-friend I have ever had. So from me to you, always follow your heart and never stop smiling. I heart you! -ANR

Clint E. Ramsden III

Navy Pilot

Between being "a really sweet boyfriend" and drinking only fruity alcohol, Reserved Ramsden made a name for himself on the dance floor, where he showed us what real abs and true love for playing g chicken look like. Clint's been toughened by a near-loss to a D&B warrior in groundfighting and the humiliation of STILL paying for his ex-girlfriend's flowers months later. Luckily, Clint always had that 25 y/o around to be the final authority on everything. Besides saving us from meningitis via a floor-bleaching contest, and making sure he was present so we could actually have fun, he was a source of laughter and companionship for all.

Jenny Rudewicz

Navy Pilot

Jenny Juicy White Chocolate No Middle Initial Rudewicz! It's her real name because of her uncanny basketball skills and her ability to ALWAYS repeat the fish joke. Her pre-game parties in the locker room will never be forgotten. NWVB! Hey Jenny set me up! Jenny learned a lot of fashion lessons in her 4 years and played her role well as the room mediator. "Hey guys, we're running a half marathon!" Somehow between teaching us how to step and destroying us on the volleyball court, she still found time to watch hours of Teen Mom and I Used To Be Fat. NAPS oh7 KILL! RIP Charles WeavBurkeWicz, the best fish you could ever ask for. KMD6

Daniel P. Strittmater

Naval Aviation

He spent most of his days in his rack or in the magical world of Guild Wars. Stitches, surgery, and sprains limited the STRITT to only the lowest intensity activities and TWO PRT failures. Whether he was frattin on 8th company plebes or in company 2/C, Strizz always knew when the game was up. On the weekends, Stritt could be found "slappin the bag," and dealing with his relationship problems on the upholstery of Eady's truck. Firstie year, his weekends were spent being dragged around DC on Tina's leash and crying in public. You like that? A good roommate and a better friend, any weekend is sure to be eventful if Stritt is there.

Emily M. Weaver

Naval Flight Officer

Emily, a daisy girl born in the wrong decade disappears for weeks only to emerge for a cup of coffee or 5 If it weren't for society she would probably never take off pajamas Hey Emily Light me up! Halim J. Adeimy

Surface Warfare Officer

(Raphael) This IST Warrior will NEVER GO SWO! He found comfort in the arms of a companymate from years 2011-2014 (still taking signups from 2013). If you knew him, he hated you, whether you knew it or not. Proud member of Circle of Trust Deemerz, S'alim, slimey a-dimey, Cinnamon bear…The only name we never knew him by was "Jay," the one he insists upon… What's the matter, can't fall asleep? Confides in Jack Daniels when times are bad, good, or just Sundays. Deemerz is drunk? Freeze some reeses cups and lock the door. The only thing to make him happier than frat is Dave Matthews and UFC in the nude. I SAID NO HITS.

Timothy C. Berry

USMC

Timothy "Chocolate Dream" Berry is a bull among mice. His powerful haunches and bulging pectorals intimidate the bravest of men while his exotic appearance and length of character entice the most beautiful of women. He's been known to drink the great jerry ross himself under the table, with still enough stamina to close down pusser's. He aspires to eventually finish a novel, that has not a single picture, although his chosen profession does not support such lofty intellectual ambitions. He is a man that embraces vices, and lives without regrets. Stay thirsty my friend.

Jeffrey R. Bland

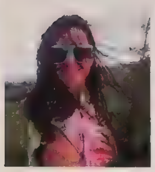
Navy Supply

(Michelangelo) Heff "Slappy" "the bean bag" Bland. One of the greasiest things to come out of NJ. His inner-Guid and routine of GTL made him a star on the diamond. If he's not lookin' up a sick beat he's makin' one. Trey's back-to-back swim buddy. Not impressed, he's been doin' it since 9th grade. Took him 4 years but he finally got ranked better than all of you. Famous last words "SICK DUDE," before he proved he has the weakest chin in 8. He spent 5 weeks snorlaxing with skull trauma (always leadin' with the chin!). Button pushing and perpetually under your skin with a grin. Burns thru tissues like a forest fire.

Stuart M. Bryson

USMC Pilot

Stu takes life head on at full speed. The rest of us can't keep up as he takes off… and then breaks his wrist in front of a crowded ski lift. A true romantic, Stu easily finds himself in and out of love, especially with those who have a few screws loose. As a result, he runs through minutes like water while on the phone with either Pierce's favorite mother or one of his damsels in distress.Stu has been a great friend these four years and will continue to positively impact the lives of everyone he meets. He has an awesome future ahead of him… so long as he doesn't make further attempts at human flight before earning his wings.



Anna C. Carpenter

Navy Pilot

Never was there a more unforgettable California girl. Always up for a trek, even in sky-high heels. A dedicated erging partner to a loyal wing-woman in the alleys of Miami against HIV-positive ex-convicts, soon in the skies high above Pensacola. Squirrel!! Always remembering those forgotten nights along the Cajun shore or under the neon lights. In San Diego, it's not HERmosa, it's just Last Friday Night with baby Fuzznuts and Rupert. Through Halloweens and walks of shame, putting up with crazy antics and outbursts of good friends; we can't wait to hear the next time she says "I've been thinking about my outfits all week…" Oh, Anna.

Christopher W. Clark

Eric N. Clow

Andrew C. Constantino

Naval Aviation

Andrew Constantino, that's constant with INO at the end, was one of the few who could truly appreciate that things always get better with age (Women, Jameson, etc). What exactly do cancer victims, NOLS, optometry and girls with boyfriends have in common: see-Tino. When you're not staying up all night listening to Screamo or Punk-POP, you're waking up early to brew a pot of your finest freshly ground, perfectly measure coffee (noted, no bananas). Your ability to escalate a conversation to a pointless argument never ceases to amuse. To the great leg-wrestling, fedora-wearing, hummus addict, Alex worshiping man, this ones for you.

Aubrey E. Cubilo

Surface Warfare Officer

NorCal girl at heart but don't forget Texas '09 at the Alamo: "That's it?" White, country, rah! Last Friday night the pretty girl rocks at Dillo's! Weekend story time? Duh! Her "Mexican" cravings satisfied with trips to Chile's. Molten chocolate cake, queso, homemade Dr. Pepper gave delicious entertainment with the ogre. You calling me an ogre too?! Yes Donkey, I have layers! Bringing that SWOtivated attitude to the YPs. Wait, why is my swim suit still in San Diego?! MYmosa not HERmosa. 2 Squirrels! Oh those long months at summer school... but with the AAA, Lil Bro, and the law firm it's insanely easy, you just have to be insane.

Meaghan E. DeLong

Kenneth M. Evans

Naval Flight Officer

Hi my name is Kenny, and I make fun of my friends using a high-pitched, girly voice. As the most senior mid on the yard, I have earned the right to chill hard. I know how this joint is run—after all, who else got FO-drafted from the SWO pool? This makes me a big deal. My desk, when visible, smells of rich mahogany. I have a large magnet collection, a music library that is Sublime, and a giant bottle of Jergens to keep me company. To all my friends, what happens in Delaware stays in Delaware…but Pittsburg may have gotten the better of Kenny. To the Circle of Trust, keep living the dream.

David A. Flannery

Surface Warfare Officer

Look to this day! For it is life, the very life of life. In its brief course Lie all the verities and realities of your existence: The bliss of growth The glory of action The splendor of beauty For yesterday is but a dream And tomorrow only a vision But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness And every tomorrow a vision of hope. Look well, therefore to this day! Such is the salutation to the dawn.

Samantha E. Gonzales

Surface Warfare Officer

Giggling, laughing, crying, smiling, studying, sleeping, raging, partying, shopping (spend$spend $spend), picture taking, dancing, caring, loving. Out of control! Hard to handle. Impatient. Bad influence? Boots or heals? Hair and make-up! Vegetables were definitely a no go..Always bringing it back home.. California girl..Always living it up..For the weekends! Strong. Loyalty. My girls <3..My boys <3..crazy, insane, calm, collected….If you don't know..now you know!

John M. Grace

Submarines

Hailing from Pasadena, CA, John Grace's career at USNA is marked by a deep-rooted love of the institution. A firm believer in the virtue of frugality, John Grace truly appreciates the value of time, and he also truly appreciates his plebe issue boat shoes, which are an invariable component to his civilian wardrobe, even during blizzards (without socks). Besides being naturally ripped and ridiculously fast, he has many other gifts: he works hard towards his goals, he is a talented writer/ poet and a clear thinker, despite his claim that he has "moments of ambiguity", as opposed to moments of clarity. Good luck beneath the waves!

Billy M. Grissom III

USMC

(Leonardo) The ONLY man to ever leave pit-stains in his Ike Jacket. I don't know if you know where he comes from, but "HE is a MAN." Loved to back-to-back w/ Heff (with video proof). Always led the charge on Spec Teams. Never once wore USNA's the right side out. God forbid you walk in on a night when he's got "work." Known for Snorlaxin'. It's a hot ham n cheese, NOT A PANINI! Trey Grissom: the TRUE American Marine Joe (except for that one week he wanted to go subs). Jeff may be the Guido, but it's TREY that goes tanning (lobster butt of '09).

Pierce C. Guthrie

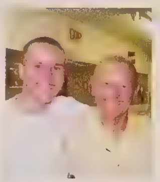
USMC Ground

Pierce is a scholar, maintaining a very high GPA and permanently residing on the Superintendant's List. Subject matter expert on counter insurgency, history of the Middle East or anything else he reads in a blog, GP (Gullible Pierce, etc.) thinks Jamie Foxx hands out music contracts to random Midshipmen. Pierce is an athlete, participating in women's rugby, women's swimming and women's crew, just to name a few of his conquests, while ever in search of the elusive Commander in Chief's trophy. Despite all of his physical and academic commitments, Pierce remains a loyal and steadfast friend who truly cares about his people. Following in the footsteps of his father and grandfather, it wouldn't surprise us to see Pierce wearing silver eagles someday. There's so much more that we could say about Pierce, but we are just going to keep that Betwinis err… between us.

Michael W. Hampton

Special Warfare

A natural frontiersman, more bull elk than a man, you repelled trolls well by rubbing your musk on the walls as you "stretched." Never single, we were sad to hear you came down with the yellowest of fevers. You practiced your sneakiness regularly only to be foiled by your own clicking shoulders. You were the cleanest man in 8th company gathering whatever you could forage for your nest only to catch every infection your pale skin could garner. You could give MacGyver a run for his money with your uses of empty containers. The fleeting of your patience for the obese is matched only by that of your hairline. GINGER LOVE FOREVER!



Carl E. Helfrich II

Surface Warfare Officer

Teddy "twinkle toes" Helfrich, a real southern gentleman hails from the great state of GA. A 07 Alum from WFS, Carl generously graces us with his presence here at The Academy. His optimistic outlook and uplifting spirit are always welcomed and longed for when not around. Always known for taking a southern road trip at moments notice and was there when JMU was almost burnt to the ground. Carl will succeed in whatever endeavors he encounters, most likely president or CEO of a major corporation. But he wasn't always successful as he scared a lot of ladies off with the crab hand, but no worries he reeled even more in with the PE teacher routine.

Christopher T. Ihlan

Naval Aviation

Even with his minor disability of being one of the youngest members of the Brigade, Chris has proven that he can still be useful. As our Permanent DD for the last three years he has always been there to bring us home when we were too drunk to do so ourselves. But don't let his small stature fool you, he is very smart and will go into hulk mode yelling and throwing his books if he can't figure out his homework. Whether it's attempting to sail a toy boat in ten foot swells while intoxicated or going on secret ski trips to Canada,Chris isn't afraid to enter the "Danger Zone" which will serve him well as a pilot like his Daddy.

Scott M. Keelan

Naval Aviation

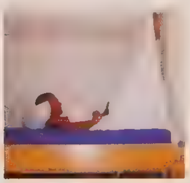
Scott Gay Keelan is the best dressed grease monkey you'll ever meet. His passion for gran-turismo and Sylvia, his real soulmate, is eclipsed only by his true calling, perfecting his g/f voice. Late night bike rides and close calls at the gate caught up with him, but he took it in stride and upgraded to an overnight bag, which some would say is presumptuous, but sometimes you have to remember ITS A TRAP! His laughter carries throughout 3209, even if it is only to himself i.e. most of the time. He enjoys the little things, like daily visits to chive and stumble. Those who say Scotty doesnt know are only the ones who don't know Scotty

Donald J. Kleman

Surface Warfare Officer

Hailing from a small town in Northwest Ohio, Donald Kleman entered the Naval Academy to escape the life he had come to known at his home. The move was given approval from his parents who just wanted him to be happy. Now he will be graduating into the Surface Warfare community and beginning a lifetime journey apart from his high school peers.

Nathan P. Liversedge



USMC Ground

The level 80 Undead Priest known as "goshdarnyou" hails from the Bluegrass state, although if you really ask him he's an African at heart. Fast on the track and with your girlfriend, this lady stealer may have finally met the Dream Girl. But not without some detours along the way—remember BCG? Lollerskates! What is this Gatorade bottle filled with golden liquid? Why is it under your desk? Beware before you enter his room—level of cleanliness aside—Mr. Touch My Body could be shaving his legs for an extra fast time around the track. Always a loyal friend, and a steadfast and competent leader, Lollernates will go far and lead from the front, whether in the Corps or as an African tribal elder.

Man C. Luc

Surface Warfare Officer

Man Luc (aka M.C. Luc, Pagoda, or Lloyd) was born in the jungles of Vietnam to Chinese parents.To this day we still don't know what ethnicity he considers himself but he is definitely not Japanese.What we do know is that his limited abilities in running and speaking English prove that he cannot be a communist spy.His passion is honing his ability to cook steamed rice which he does every night before reading manga, watching dramas, or meditating. As a SWO stationed in Japan he will fit in well with both his bad driving and his habit of talking way too loud in Chinese on the phone. As Big Bird said,"Woaini." We'll miss you Man.

Michael W. Martin

Submarines

Beep Boop Bop (we knew it would start like this) Michael Martin hails from a house of learned Doctors and it must be noted that he is overly fond of robots. He LOVES robots. Given milk and protein, he clears a room. He could be heard decks away Call of Duty WOULD NEVER HAPPEN IN REAL LIFE, ARE YOU KIDDING ME?! (Seriously Mike, they can't hear you) This kid's a genius, despite his pretending otherwise. Least we forget the times shared by the TABLE! in Hot Peppers, Prague. Or the group of females met at St Johns or DTA (the Fake Valentines date was doomed from the start) Have fun explaining that one next time you're dropping loads.

John E. McArthur

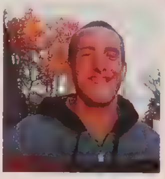
USMC Pilot

John, rightful heir to the McArthur Cowboy Empire, charitably chose to grace the ranks of the men of Annapolis with his presence for four years by the bay. Of all the Midshipmen he may be one of the most easily distinguishable, with his tight wrangler blue jeans, cowboy hat and boots, and obnoxiously large truck, everyone knows when John McArthur is around. This cowboy has chosen to trade in his old fashioned horse and spurs for one of the United States Marine Corps' new fangled flying machines. Get'r done Cowboy!

Alex L. McCoy

Special Warfare

Always known as the most talkative and outgoing member of 8th company. Women have tried to tempt him away from his workouts, but to no avail. His intricate system of ropes and pulleys were all that he ever needed to satisfy his masculine needs, besides their substandard fitness could never escape the confines of that flowing red mane he calls his chest hair. He taught us the path from rough housing to foreplay. Always on the hunt for that woman perfect for breeding, but he has yet to find a pair of shoulders broad enough. Don't wait for him, he is probably reanalyzing his system of pulleys for more leverage.



James P. McGlynn

Naval Flight Officer

James McGlynn is in the real two-percent club. It is a secret society without meetings or an official roster, but every member knows he is in it. It is easy to spot the members of the club, though. They are very tall. If you watch two of the members—though unknown to each other—greet each other, they will give an almost imperceptible nod of the head in recognition of each other's height. Sincerely, though, James is known for being personable and for his sense of humor. He makes everyone around him feel comfortable and makes friends easily. He has spent four years by the bay practicing manly virtue. His surpassing virtue will put him in a position to lead those who merely bluster; he will keep his head when all about him his peers are losing theirs.

Bryan A. Mellon

USMC Ground

Emerging from the cold, dark frozen tundra of Minnesota, pastier than the Doughboy himself, Bryan chose to test his metal at Old Canoe U. Many of his classmates can identify him from miles away by his ferocious war cries. Often, to the curious amusement of his peers, they pondered the age old conundrum of "Its not that he's out of shape, he's just funny shaped." His bearing, a shining beacon to future military leaders "I am 1/C Mellon and you will take me seriously!"

Sean M. Mock

Medical Corps

(Donatello) Showed up on our doorstep with the sign "To: 8, From: Colleen." I wish we could say more about him, but he never hung out with any of us on weekends. Always too busy with his harem. Better known as "Gary." ALWAYS finds you when you're underway. They only thing that grew more than his QPR here was Gary and his run time on the PRT. Only Med Corps select to read on the 5th grade level. You probably knew him by one of his characters. Who needs urinals when there's trashcans? Who needs bars when there's a transistors. Forcibly removed from a 5 lb bag of cheese senior year. More likely to be seen in Chauvenet than his rack.

Michael R. Pounders

Surface Warfare Officer

The future leader of the Christian Right hails from the small town of Belmont, where he learned to foster the best hair this side of the Mississippi—with a hair dryer. Nevertheless, if Old Man Pounders decides to stay in the Navy he'll follow in the "boots of a fine SWO." If he heads into the ministry, evildoers beware the Lake of Fire! Always caring, always looking out for the best for his friends, and the most morally upright person we known—Ryan, "you have all the little things we ever could have wanted."

James M. Prieto

Medical Corps

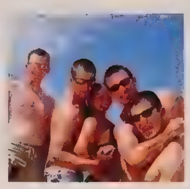
His origins trace back to the strongest of islands the Long Island, where he honed his seamanship skills in the frigid and unforgiving waters of the Atlantic. His years spent by the Severn transformed him from boy to man and gave him a sassy edge. He will be remembered by his friends as a giver, once donating a pair of Ray Ban Aviators c1970 to a Port-O-John at the Preakness Triple Crown Race. But, also a taker, for he once took the gold medal in an Olympic feat of strength against friend/foe Jeff Bland…due to forfeiture. Most of all he will be remembered as a "lover" of Jameson, American Darts, and of fine women/woman.

Hugo J. Spinoza II

Surface Warfare Officer

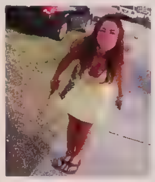
Rarely has this world seen an individual quite like Kevin Spinoza, the Noodle. His dashing smile, unique intelligence and outrageous fitness level combine to form one among many. Few doubt that his trademarked 'noodle fitness' will sweep the world as Crossfit would have wished. Chuck Norris even used it.If ever in need of his company on a weekday, Noodle can be found roaming the halls.He spends his weekends dancing between 'dillo's and O'Brien's, where the latest rumor involves a professional cheerleader. While he'll formally embark the Academy as a SWO, the waterborne navy isn't ready for such a person.Here's to you Mr. Noodle.

Susannah R. Stokes



USMC Ground

Where in the world is Susannah Rose? They love her blonde hair over there… so foreign, the internationally recognized blondie. The easiest to laugh with. Hippies, pirates, and gangstas oh my! Wait, we're jumping out of a moving plane at how many miles above the Earth?! New Years = New Orleans + Las Vegas. The five-minute delay… does she even know she just got Marines?! She had heard the call of the ocean. She is still not sure how she ended up on a sailboat to Bermuda but something about it felt right. With many more adventures to come these lines will always ring true, "I come from the ocean with songs of the sea…"



Robyn L. Wegele

Surface Warfare Officer

If surfing and diving are your thing, Robyn is your chick. But don't let the chill atmosphere fool you, she can take you down on any given night out in town. The ocean is her passion and partying is her hobby. She's a rebel and a liberator, always challenging those around her and rarely backing down without a fight. Boxing gets her excited and sea turtles make her smile. Training all week and socializing on the weekend, work hard play hard is one of the many themes that guide her life. A friend that will never flake out and is always up for an adventure, she'll travel the world with you or settle for an epic night out in town. It's hard to imagine an accomplished, hard working, and athletic engineer who knows how to party, but then there's Robyn…"Hakuna Matata!"

Jonathan P. Woolfolk

Naval Flight Officer

Born and raised in the greatest of commonwealths, Jonathan Woolfolk fought and clawed his way to the top of the mountain. He lives only by the rules of the forest, that a man's property is sacred, worth no sum. But if he had to pick a price, it would be about $500 in N.C. coinage. He tamed the mighty BAMF, who only survived 3 years in his fortress. He takes pride in his trophies under the sink, his proficiency with power tools, and his expert knowledge of smoke alarm circuitry. Tempt him to greatness and he will rise to the occasion, but deep down he longs to be left alone to his stories and his gorilla fur throne.

Robert A. Alvarado

Submarines

Pee Wee Herman, a striking resemblance. "If I was in charge of this…mumble, mumble, mumble, trail off…" He mumbles and grumbles quite often. For female midshipmen his heart sometimes softens. His hair stands always at attention. His wave hairstyle gives him some extra inches. Big bad black Toyota Tacoma truck, affectionately named "Napoleon's Chariot." A loyal member of our team and true to the values of Swordfish. Run hard, run fast.

Ojevwe Avworo

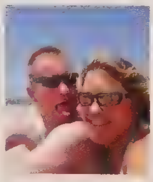
Submarines

O.J. Aworo was born in Nigeria so nobody knows where his birth certificate. He claims to be 23 years old but with no birth certificate he could be 30. O.J. is an outstanding basketball player. Despite barely reaching the height requirements for the average roller coaster, his leadership and work ethic set him apart from the rest. Navy Basketball will never find a replacement for him. Despite being a varsity athlete, O.J. stayed involved with the Brigade by attending as many morning formations as possible. He really knew how to find the inner Joe in him. O.J. will join the submarine community with the rest of the geeks.

Kenneth R. Barnes

Submarines

Ken always listened to what his mom said, And his mom said a lot of Things. he lived By her words, specifically when he entered beast mode Aka ken mode aka machine mode and fLashed that true southern hospitality; the best part is he's even more hospitable in the wee hours of the night. still, it's often harD to remember Where ken Is from. the only thing that's knowN is that his best friend jack lives by the one stop sign in his town on daniels street. those Massively enlarged calves down on hIs farm shall not be foRgotten eIther. boy, AdMiral kelso sure would be proud.



Jason W. Beasley

Marine Pilot

Widely known as the 'Oldest Man in the Brigade,' Jason always had a way with people. In fact, he would have probably been the most popular MID in our class if Dobb's would have decided to transfer. Though not a surfer, he had a way with waves. But overall Jason was good at taking care of EVERYONE..including himself, and especially his significant other (who Jason is lucky to have). Thanks for the laughs and advice OLD friend. Literally...

Nicholas A. Blevins

Surface Warfare Officer

Born the son of a poor sharecropper, Nicholas Allen Blevins gained self awareness after 0.68 seconds of life. The Grand Inquisitor Blevnoss as he is known outside of Federation space, is impossible to describe in any one language except perhaps an archaic Vulcan dialect. Those who have peered into his eyes and not instantly gone insane or reached Nirvana have said that he is an amalgam of Indiana Jones, Jean-Luc Picard, and Han Solo, minus the doctorate in archaeology, male pattern baldness, and a ship capable of making the Kessel Run in less than twelve parsecs. One of God's own prototypes, man shall come to fear Nick "F$*&ing" A. Blevins.

Josue S. Castrejon

Navy Pilot

15 minute SSCHow call, go! Time to get up. Shave? Later. Get dressed? After bicep curls. Josue will make a phenomenal pilot in the Navy, but he's got a career after his service as a chauffeur (assuming he keeps his eyes on the road and his hands on the wheel) as long as his clients don't ask to go to the water park. He may one day own the Guinness world record for number of cars owned, but rest assured each one will have a subwoofer. Speaking of records, he's also up there for longest eyelashes and lengthiest unsent love letters. By the way, Dwight could you send Josue that picture? Everyone's still waiting on the punch line.

Bryan W. Collins

Navy Pilot

As a homeschooled kid, Bryan came to the academy bursting with ideological enthusiasm about college life. Life in general however, still escapes him. Hanging out with girls, Top Gun, and baseball are concepts as confusing to Bryan as Darth Vader would be to King Arthur's Knights. A man of few specialties, unless one counts speaking Elvish, Bryan is always eager to try new things. Amateur modeling, sleeping through final exams, and leaning back in the desk chair as far as it possibly goes are some of his favorite pastimes. Above all, Bryan believes that a relaxed personality with a positive attitude makes the world go around.

Stephanie A. Cook-Wright

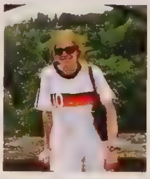
Surface Warfare Officer

Stephanie-Alex-Cook-Wright-soon-to-be-Bice. In her four years at USNA, Alex has logged on more times to theknot.com than Blackboard and MIDS combined. Hopefully the wedding cake won't taste at all like the infamous Bit O' Honey. Despite her plebe year stint with the women's crew team, she quickly realized her true passion was with J.Crew. Not one to frequent Farragut or MacD, this fiery Bree chose instead afternoons of napping and How I Met Your Mother with her own future hubby. Not afraid of being a confrontational disciplinarian, Alex will be sure to keep her future kiddos in line. A true woman of God, Alex is an inspiration to all.

Alexander M. Daie

Navy Pilot

Alex, "Zona-bro" Daie, known for his love of women in close proximity to 5-3, thrived on the circumference of his biceps. After cutting the love strings and making the Supe's list he finally began to spread his wings during his senior year. Don't be fooled by his tough exterior though, because Alex actually loves "Love Actually." As the ultimate bro, this "post aviation - select chill" dude has a bright future, because he is loved by the girls and his fellow bro's above the rest.

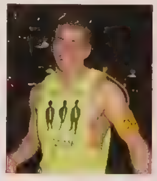


Alison S. Degan

Naval Flight Officer

Alison Degan, better known as Dingo for the better part of plebe year, became the Mother Teresa of our class always helping someone with running, swimming, papers, etc. as she finished her first Ironman and umpteenth marathon. Nothing beats the stinkbug's carbo-loading source better than bread. Dressing the six man as often as her roommates dressed her, this suitemate never missed a yoga, DH and DD session. Dating mids was never Dingo's style, as she has always preferred those she could salute. From "Good morning squad leader, sir," to "Hey honey I'm home," this O-2 and midshipman duo will soon be wed.

Matthew J. Demichiel



Surface Warfare Officer

Matthew Jonathan Demichiel, hailing from the caves of Whitesboro, New York takes pleasure in untimely Sunday morning excursions after enjoying a few too many. This conduct system survivor has endured his USNA experience through head butts and body breaks. His rocklike attitude has led to such things as closet urination and lax bro domnitude that nearly caused World War III. This great wrestler will join the fleet as a SWO. DeMikey not only leaves behind an uncanny legacy, but his two front teeth as well. What he lacks in subtleness, he gains in Eskimo brothers and don't worry, there are plenty more Fish in the sea.

Alexandra J. Fisher

Naval Flight Officer

Ali Fisher, aka Fishy, Infant, or Rat Hands, from the deep south of NC graced 9th company with her prom queen cuteness. With her focus being involved in company activities, Fishy always made sure she was at every inventory PRT, formation, and company party. Oh how she loved this place. Rarely finding time to nap, all she wanted was to spend time with her company during intramurals. What a trooper! This little hard charger will be leaving the Acme scene of DTA and will certainly be missed by all. Ali is a great friend with a sweet heart and will certainly make us proud navigating those skies like she's always dreamed. NFO for life.

Romeo Garcia III

Surface Warfare Officer

They say you should never let dulls of The Naval Academy take away your personality. And through it all, Romeo Garcia's Latino Soul never wavered. Whether it was busting the salsa to a country, rap, or pop song, or putting on his "peppe le pew" accent and proving to the ladies that his birth name was really "Romeo", he always showed his natural 'flavor'. As a teammate, he was the most dedicated. As a roommate, he was always there to listen (even the times when he was trying to sleep). As a friend, he always loved. Great times my friend. See you soon!!

George A. Harlan

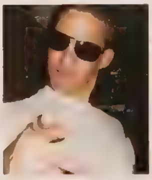
Navy Pilot

"My boy," Andy Harlan, hailing from the great state of Tennessee, is always ready to throw down at one of his epic bonfires. Have you met my buddies Lucas and Steven? 'cuz they're my boys." And now we all know what Halloween and St. Patty's Day have in common - there are Pumpkins at both… I'm sorry, I'm sorry.. So Pensacola, look out because, as Colorado Springs can attest, this tractor-driving, Sundrop drinking, narcoleptic/insomniac is a force to be reckoned with. To one of the hardest workers and nicest guys we know, good luck in flight school and be sure to tell Caroline we say "hello…"

Clark L. Hayes

Navy Pilot

Clark is a sailor through and through, and if his reform trips to Miami, winter-time sunburns, or musical tastes don't give him away, then his strong opinions, which usually end with "Whatever, man," definitely would. His choice restaurant for fine dining is Davis' Pub in Eastport, and he is probably the first mid to ever purchase a racing sailboat with his loan…from England. His extremely easygoing, however impulsive, personality makes him a joy to room with since you will somehow find yourself playing N64 on a brand new inflatable couch during finals, right when you planned on studying the most. He will certainly wow us the most.



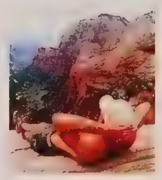
George B. Hepler

USMC Ground

George Benjamin Hepler, aka "Benny Hep," was a true believer in the "2.0 and go" philosophy. A born motivator, George single-handedly kept the barbershop in business after service selecting Marines. When not training plebes, he spent most of his days reading a dictionary so he could use big words along with his irresistible charm to win over the ladies on the weekend. Although he claims that he was never a "dark sider," Benny Hep had a few vulnerable moments during his time here. There is no doubt Ben will make a great Marine, and we wish him the best of luck in all his future endeavors.

Christopher L. Hoffmann

Navy Pilot



Known for his charismatic charm and eye-catching smile, Chris Hoffmann became a late pirate at the beginning of 2/C year. Although he fell in love to beautiful young lass from 7th Company and came to 9, he would always be a mustang at heart. He hails from the great state of Utah and is quick to point out his roots on a map or explain the questionably legality of his family lines. Don't try to outwit this one, as Chris will surely think of something funnier and cooler to say in 3 seconds than you could conjure in an hour. This whippersnapper was an inspiration to us all stuck in that cruel prison that is Bancroft Hall. Fly Navy!

Kory A. Hoppes

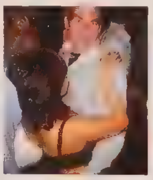
USMC Ground

Never mistaken for a cheetah, this true Oregonian has lived up to his calling as a laid back lax bro during his four years at USNA. In fact did he ever make it to a "fofo" on time… or a parade? Kohop has always been irresistible to women and midshipwomen were no different. TBS better get ready for this mice sympathizing, beautifully voiced, perfectly sculpted Hollister Model. And they might want to have some spare windows for their vans as well. For the guy who will forever eat like a Spartan (making his idol Fisher proud), enjoy that sick flow in the Marine Corps brah!

Christina M. Horny

USMC Ground

Shanay/Horndog/LatinaStina, this gung-ho senorita hailing from the streets of Saginaw, MI couldn't be found without a shopping bag in one hand, and a trumpet in the other. An avid member of D&B and the SemperFi Society, this dancing diva divvied up her Academy time cooing her cat Booney through the phone, finding new cabinets for her shoes, searching for the latest sequin-laden accessory, soaking her feet in Epsom salt, decorating her desk into a fashion show, INSANITY, and breaking boys' hearts. Literally the nicest person you'll ever meet- she'll share her avocados, and even unclog your toilet! Much love Horns. P.s. it's lotion, sir



Jeffrey A. Jackson

Submarines

Jeffrey Arnold Jackson, more affectionately known as "J.J." was known as a real stickler for USNA rules and regulations. Jeff could always be found downtown enjoying liberty any Friday, Saturday (and sometimes Tuesday) night. He spent some time 2/C year teaching the honor concept to a senior navy officer, no big deal. Without ever spending one day on restriction, or ever failing a PRT, Jeff mastered the art of video gaming, and was an exemplary midshipman during his four years by the bay. As a future submariner, there is no doubt he will proudly protect and serve for no longer than the minimum five years.

Marius Jasmontas

LITHUANIAN NAVY

Komrade Jasmontas has dedicated his entire life to Mother Russia; these past four years at USNA have been no different. If he doesn't buy his way out of the Lithuanian Special Forces, then maybe he'll be medically discharged due to his scarred elbow. "Is this Matty?" No. This is Will. Why nine trusted a soviet spy with their company anti-terrorism protection no one will ever know, but at least Lee can trust him with his family's safety. The question still remains whether Jasi spikes harder with vodka or a volleyball. Safe sailing in the Baltic Sea, confiscate as much salsa as possible, and beware the goldfish.

Christopher E. Kaps

Navy Pilot

Christopher Edward Kaps, better known as Big Daddy to those of second squad, is famous for many things, the most prominent of which is his love of ice cream. This charmer has surprisingly had more loves of another type than any other guy in company. From being thrown-up on by Dingo, using flatulence as a method of revenge, garnering the most shout outs from football game march-overs from his mad bagpipe skills, and truly excelling in the pool (with a little help from Jo Jo), Chris has many memories to take away from USNA and has left the rest of us with plenty of memories as well.

Allison W. Kirk III

Navy Pilot

Allison Winifred Kirk III will take to the skies as a Naval Aviator, where the chance of serving jail time for reckless speeding is less than here on ground. Would you rather: traverse St. Thomas via scooter or keep smelling that Jeep? In her time at USNA, AK had almost as many demerits as she did soul-mates. We all benefitted from her relationship with one motivated trainer. Warning: first dates can end in the ER, just like AK and the best damn fighter pilot in the world. Luckily, she had a priest of her own to pray for her. Got one question for you Ally: were the squad shots worth it?

Seungchan Lee

USMC Ground

Lee-isms to live by… What's yours is mine and what's mine is mine. Are you gonna eat that? Lee's always right. Except about not kissing Viv until marriage. Except about entering your credit card number just to check the plane's seat availability to the Bahamas. Which was worse, the PRT or Ocean Engineering? Weight. It had to be the Jihad. Lee's the ideal Korean club president, stick shift driver, and best man. One shot, one kill, ready to die, Lee never will. Semper-Fi yut yut Marine.

Katherine H. Lindbom

USMC Ground

A good girl at heart, Floater proved her street cred as a plebe but has continued to impress all. After awkward relationships (see trifecta: Fitz & bonfire), this PT stud found love in a bagpipe playing Boston boy. A warning to this rhyming duo: a studly O-3 and cheap wine can really kick off a croquet match! Her schwepic encounters continued: despite struggles with jeeps & purses. After USCGA, the suitemates began their daily DH & coffee routine. Scarred from piercings, scooters, & free yogurt, CSB & FW will always be linked. Her perfect coffee and happy hour extravaganzas will be missed by her bffs. Wanna brownie Kitty Kat?

Christopher M. Medford

Submarines

The story of Chris Medford is an epic one. He started his journey by being the fastest plebe rower in Navy history and has essentially become a rocket scientist in his four years at the Academy. In his spare time, when he is not busy leading his company, you can find Chris mastering the 'see-food' diet or developing his skills as the crew team's realtor. If you ever find yourself down on Friday (especially on weigh-in days), Chris is a patient individual who is always in a good mood. Chris is also a proud member of the 2% Club. Although he will wear Dolphins on his uniform after graduation, Chris will always truly be a SHARK.

Rick A. Murphy

Submarines

Hailing from the most boring state in the union, Rick Murphy decided for some reason to return to this fine institution and join 9th Company after his two year hiatus to preach "the good word" in Korea. He returned proficient in Mormon doctrine, Taekwondo, and Kim Jong Il impersonations. Once again, to fuel his taste for oriental women and trendy electronics, Rick spent a semester abroad in Japan. He is now back in the United States and being closely tracked by the CIA, NCIS, and Ward Hall. He is always willing to offer advice; whether you are honing your ninja-star throwing skills, spicing up your vocabulary, or interested in knowing the true path to heaven. He also doesn't lose at Super Smash Brothers. Ever. We love you long time, Rick.

Kelli M. Orndorff

Surface Warfare Officer

Kelli, more affectionately known as Ornbear, brings smiles to our faces, cheer to our hearts.. and stains to the sidewalk in front of Mitscher. A frequent participant in suitemate steerage nights and animated movie viewings, Kelli quickly fell into the routine of suitemate DH and coffee dates (after hardcore yoga sessions and DD runs). One of her biggest contributions to USNA was her coffee maker, making both mids and SELs perky daily. Whether pumping iron at 0530 or correcting plebes at all other hours of the day, Kelli, high on life, spreads her bubbly cheer to all with her "Japanese" partner in crime (and soon to be more..).

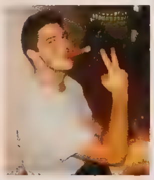
James M. Ousley

USMC Air

James Ousley, or Buster as he is more commonly known, spent his four years trying to do as little as possible. And this bio is no exception.

Robert H. Roy

Navy Pilot



A man who has more connections in Latin America than the President of the United States. A man who will light up a victory cigar with you just for making it through the day. A man who will forever be divided between his two passions in life: going up in a perfectly good airplane just to experience the magic of flight and going up in a perfectly good airplane, only to open the door and experience the magic of jumping out. Rob was never too quick to reenact a scene from the greatest movie ever created: Top Gun, remind you that his only role model in life is of course, Jack Bauer or tell you that he can be your wingman, anytime.

Eric M. Smith

Naval Flight Officer

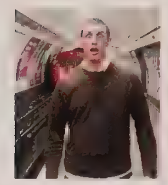
Enrique Matthias Delgado Smith IV (or "Eric Matthew" as he is known to friends and close enemies) entered the Academy as a reward for nineteen years good service in the Merchant Marine. His first choice for education was film school, but hyper-colorblindness and an extreme fear of storyboards guided him toward his present career in the navy. When asked how he could best serve our nation, Eric's reply of "Who are you? How did you get into my house?" perfectly encompasses his dedication to service. His diverse talents include metallurgy, philology, and juridical curling, making Eric a true Renaissance man and citizen of our Spaceship Earth.

Damon T. Varble

Submarines

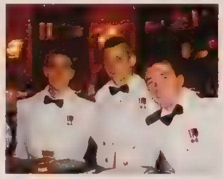
Our fearless submariner Damon is likely the luckiest SON alive. A native to Tennessee, a safe distance from him is highly advised during any Vols football games. Oh and tennis. And basketball. Or videogames. Or anything competitive. His overwhelming enthusiasm for life consistently earned him the physical affection from Lee he so desired, for whom he also donated his car. If you are looking for Damon during working hours, check his rack. If after hours, ask Jasi, who can recite any midnight video conversation for you. Odd how being a state champion track runner couldn't get him away from Birmingham…or the fire.

Adam J. Waymouth



Information Warfare

It was always nice having a roommate that spent more time at the mate's desk than the mate. A roommate whose signature move was 'clicking' the desk light on each night to begin hacking the cyber world the instant our heads hit our pillows. Adam Waymouth was the expert at annihilating enemies with his finger guns (PEW! PEW!), ruining any song on the radio with his one-hit wonder play lists, and spending more time writing a two page essay than an 8 year old with no fingers. Thank you for always listening, your N64 skills, and computer troubleshooting. KB3SKL 1100000000001001:11111011011::1



Andrew C. Willis

Naval Special Warfare

Drew Willis brought his one man wolf pack from just down the road in southern Maryland. His quiet and focused demeanor kept him under the radar, doing what he does best; snappin' necks and cashin' checks. From throwing down on the wrestling mats to being thrown down in the hurricane surf of Ocean City, Drew-man has taken advantage of his considerable athletic abilities. He has sustained more injuries, and been on fewer chits, than any midshipmen to walk before him. He is graduating just in time, ready to move onto something less physically demanding, like BUD/S.

Thomas A. Alessi

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Although his large head had always left him with a magnetic personality, Tom Alessi really "blossomed" with the help of the red mongrels here at the Naval Academy sophomore year. In school he focused on the most interesting aspects of economics like Alaskan drilling, Indian Cuisine abroad, cave splunking and the multi-faceted industry of boot making. Most of these subjects were loaded onto his kindle which he read in between his trips to the ballet where they featured "Crouching Tiger, Hidden Scotch Tape". As a friend he was always willing to fill you up a cup and pass it along. Cheers! That was interesting. Viva la Transformer!

Jerrod C. Anderson

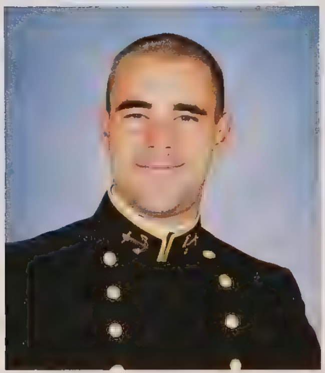
USMC Ground

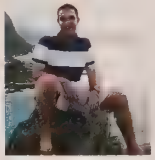
He set the example for Jeff's growth curve, transforming himself from a 2 lb/in gazelle into a veritable warhorse. Had no trouble going bottle to throttle and maxing the PFT hungover. One thing going for his life, Kelly aka "Bama." Here's to your kids reading this 10 years from now cause God knows you're not outside playing catch with them. Caught him after he escaped his boot, only thing capable of stopping Jerrod from running. Most obvious Marine to ever enter a nuke selection board (he 'mpressed 'em wit that talk o' neutrons n such). Finally, from Luke, "STOP checking me out when I'm getting in the shower!"

Alex H. Angelillo

Submarines

Hellloooo! Finally… Alex… Has come back… to Bancroft! He is bringing with him all the PRT mental blocks and websense a mid could ever want. Others would be envious of that 4.0 especially if they knew about all the naps he would take between grilled cheese parties. No one should be surprise that he needed all those naps since he spent all his nights hunting down mice with a video camera and rope. Larry David… I mean Alex Angellilo would have never been caught dead unable to quote or find an episode of Seinfeld. If you need to find him before nuke school just check every Cabelas or McDonalds between here and Charleston.

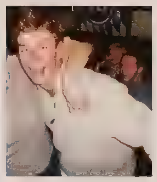




Robert T. Augustine

Engineering Duty Officer

When ships were made out of wood, and dinosaurs roamed the earth, Rob was born in Maryland. A few years after the birth of "Old-gustine," his family migrated north to the frigid city of Buffalo. After high school, Rob enlisted in the Navy, where he was attached to the USS Monitor, the first ironclad commissioned in the U.S. Navy. At the U.S. Naval Academy, Rob has played a large part in the Men's Club Soccer Team (ranked in the Top 10 in the nation). He enjoys cold weather, going to Chipotle, and is a Buffalo Sabres fan. Though he is not using a cane yet, you may have to remind him of your name next time you pass him in the p-way.



Luke M. Baldwin

Special Warfare

"Toss over the main sheet!" "Toss over the main sheet, aye!" Sensei. I want you to take me to your temple and teach me your ways. Make sense. Adapt. Sad Piece. Salty crab. Standing at 6 feet tall, and weighing 180 pounds, he is considered by most to be a prettttyyyy gooood dude. Van brawls.

Henry J. Barfield III

Submarines

A work hard play hard kind of guy, Jay is a fierce friend and definately great to have around. Can totally be the comic relief, works harder than most people for the tiniest of details.

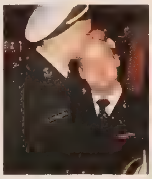
Colleen E. Carberry

Naval Aviation

Midshipwoman by day and Ms. Doubtfire by night, Colleen served a total of 8 tours as XO, be it Company, harem, or room 5445. Holds the record for most 24hr-long hangovers in a year and for total uses of the phrase "What's poppin yall?!" Relationship made possible by the blind eye of a CMOD plebe year. Always rippin and tearin, be it her foot on an escalator or simply pants borrowed from Kathryn. Ever find out if you can drink the day after PRK? Member of 90210's backshaft of blondes, where LT's and Gunny's offices stood no match for the mission to break da REGS. Who knew an Idahoan Spud and a Floridian Orange would make such a team?

Daniel S. Champoux Jr.

USMC



"You meet people who forget you. You forget people you meet.
But sometimes you meet those people you can't forget.
Those are your 'friends'."

John R. Deterding

Special Warfare

John Ryan Deterding, or "Johnny Two-Shanks," is considered to be a great guy by all who know him, but if you don't you may end up on the ground outside Acme. John has been know to use his infinite wisdom to achieve an unprecedented aggregate amount of stripes, consistently not not being sorry about not being sorry, refine his beer drinking tastes, select the best mogul runs in the Sierras, and most importantly rally a group of fast friends. John is a true and loyal friend ready to go at the drop of a hat, unless of course he gets choked out at Penn State first. John's work ethic and tenacity will make for a long, successful, and salty career.

Colin P. Doherty

Submarines

No one could say they didn't love Colin Doherty since he would gladly give you the shirt off his back… and his pants… and briefs. Even if after all that he would never highly doubt that you were an idiot. Always calm cool and moist despite often being accused of foul play, he always knows how to bring people together, especially if a bar full of angry women. You would have never have guessed though based on his habits of warming his friends parents feet, finding alternative entrances to people's home, or being asked to leave federal house. In a past life he was a FedEx delivery man when the raptors or aliens weren't roaming about. Viva la Transformer!

Sara M. Faessel

Navy Pilot

When little Pancake came to USNA, she had to stand out, even during plebe summer, Hey you, in the ball cap! Survived a 60 sec choke out by Jess (Colleen, thanks for timing). Nothing escaped Sara while at USNA, "Of COURSE youngsters have Friday liberty" "High five Gunny!" 2010's favorite underclass, always tryin' to look cutsie. She always had the good info, like where's the best McDonalds in NYC at 3 AM, or where someone's favorite color/address/mother's maiden name is on MIDS. Who else has an honorary hallway in Bancroft? Long live the 90210 backshaft. What would YOU do if you got nuke? And finally, that fry should've been revoked.

Jessica M. Grupp

Navy Pilot

For Jess, the Academy has been a place of learning like who's the Commander in Chief, false mustard was actually muster, the Ho Chi Min Trail didn't connect from USNA to Vietnam, 8.3 mile runs did not make it ok to be a fat best friend, 9th hour was not for free donuts and spilt edge dressing causes 17 tiles to be replaced. On the soccer field you could always spot Jess doing sensual "back exercises." She understood percentages when she was 90%, no scratch that 100% sure the id was under the car. And sure Jess has been known to mix up a hair clip and a phone but she's always happy as a clam. But no matter what she's still Big Red.

Andrew S.H. Ha

Submarines

"Oh Herro!" Typical little Asian kid again running around the hall at dawn trying to figure out why he is not getting the right answer for his assignment. No time to waste. No time to waste on sleeping. Numerous sleepless nights passed over the four years, and now he will spend more sleepless nights to watch over our nation's safety under the deep water against sharks and subs. Sleep tight.

Ethan A. Harvey

SEALs

Nathan C. Hay

Jeffrey S. Heckelman

Surface Warfare Officer

Here comes Hurricane Heckelman, last intramural swim team champion this school ever knew. Bred in the depths of the 7th wing gym, the infamous Hurricane evolved from a 150 lb pile of skin and bones into a 175 lb pile of skin and bones. Forced to surrender Jerrod to Kelly—a member of the opposite half of the species (the half that has eluded Jeff to this day). His inherent academic genius enabled him to set the academy record for the smallest work-to-GPA ratio. A true spawn of Poseidon. And as we all often heard from the bench in MacD: "Hey Jerrod…uh…could you give me a spot here?!?"

Alexander C. Kofsky

Kimberly M. Lizama

Surface Warfare Officer

Our Guamish Beauty from far far away. Kim is a mini (5'2) islander who brought a little bit of home with her-there's something in your care package…wait that's a gecko!? You'll have to wait to ask her about that one because she can't talk right now–still on the phone (6 hrs later...) Can someone please get her another Long Island? She's the #1 source on People magazine and celeb gossip. And the Academy Award goes to... Another long island please! Fast track to memory lane- Plebe summer day 2: You look like a Chia Pet! From Chamorrita Princess of the Brigade to SWO-MaMa, Look out big Navy Ensign Lizama-MaMa is on her way. Long live LAMA!

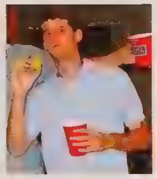
James K. McKee

Naval Flight Officer

Jay pours forth the most necessary characteristics of a great midshipman: sci-fi author, video game genius, and Meyers Briggs personality assessment expert. His affinity for Lands End sandals and grape soda are uniquely paired with his pioneering efforts into the combination and formulation of new cuss words. Jay is unmatched in the art of wrangling the English language to suit his needs. Armed with a slew of random yet hidden talents alongside his boundless energy, he is a good friend and he summarizes his attitude toward life relative to everyone else's with one word; "Superior."

Emery R. Persinger

Lucas M. Roberts



Naval Aviation

At USNA, Lucas M. Roberts has had a tremendous impact on those around him. Whether it's ending up in the cornfields of Delaware, throwing a cab driver's cell phone at a cop, or any other incidence of drunken mayhem…a night with Luke Roberts will surely be one to remember, or find out about the next day. His legacy will live on as an infamous relief pitcher that certainly provided the whole baseball team with a perfect example of what real college is like. Thus, if you're traveling to Pensacola after graduation and happen to run into the notorious Luke "college" Roberts…put your game face on and have your beer bong ready.

Vidal V. Rodriguez

USMC Ground

First give him monies. Then I want pudding cups. Its better then the taste of his own pudding. It's not like he doesn't know what hygiene is he just doesn't care; else he would have replaced the spoon at the sink. Left for Dead is not a game its a way of life, the zombie apocalypse is near. He will survive being fed Reessons, Peppermints and xlax. It was true to his environmentalist background, where he burned down the forest and violated all the animals. But he knows tings! Except for movies he can always spot the safety observer or the cow party. Speaking of parties, Vidal was always the first to go clubbing. Viva la Transformer!

Alex W. Ryan

NAVY CREW
NAVY CREW

USMC Ground

Alex "Hooch$" Ryan has always taken pride in Iowa's state tree the telephone pole. Despite his lack of enthusiasm and mediocre grades he always managed to impress the striper board. The barbers at USNA have never really been able to give him good haircut. Fiercely independent with a lead-foot he never misses a Sunday drive with his mommy. Sons of the Severn.

Patrick C. Spivey

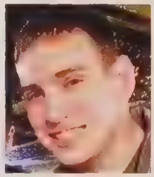
Joseph B. Travers II

Surface Warfare Officer

Following in his favorite firsties footsteps by getting a ship out of Japan, he only failed to be the wardroom rep. He comes from a long behind of song lyricists, starting his career by being taken hostage on chat roulette. Always a gentleman, whether it be directing cops to the ATM, or testing whether a gal should get married, and he always, gets mangias afterwards. Celebrating his birthday like a king he ended it on his thrown only discernable by his feet. Every weekend he made V-lines to pussers, a close friend of the lone resident. He can open with magic, and close if you are related to his roommate. Viva la Transformer!

Travis M. Turner

Surface Warfare Officer



By Firstie year, everyone knew that this "swoter" laden, coffee guzzling mystery man who hailed from a small pear farm in the Texas hill country was surface warfare bound. Yes, Commodore Turner had an unparalleled thirst for freshly ground, French pressed coffee, which he used as fuel for seemingly endless nights filled with EE code and/or Left 4 Dead. Only a fortunate few knew of his buttery smooth dance moves, which were forged at a plebe dance party and honed on weekend nights in DTA. Most of us just knew Travis as a guy who could roll with any group, and always had your back. Thanks for the memories.

Karin L. Voetberg

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Older brothers to guide plebe year, should have taken his advice when choosing to major in Chemistry, "You're about to make the biggest mistake of your life." In fact it wasn't, thankful for social research, because we're really just here for the party. Living a week of Omg what happened to your face? Obvious intense game of volleyball. And then there was Koco with a K. Always advocating international relations. Spring break drink mixes, masks, and wigs, she ain't goin Tie Me Down. Double life lived, lessons learned, I mean, who knew the Great Whites could be so good at conquering Eskimos, or so good at football either?

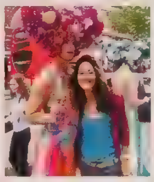
Jonathan W. Wright

Naval Flight Officer

Jonathan W. Wright, aka Jonny Rightside, is what most would call a wise man. Whether it's getting thrown into an "alleged" window sill and spending service selection night in the hospital getting stitches, or nearly getting arrested by base police in Norfolk for aiding and abetting alcohol to minors, Jonny is always the epitome of leadership. He is a man of many interests: The Chili Peppers, jamming out on the guitar, luxury vehicles, party golf, and the ever so prevalent drunken heart to heart. So let it be known if you are ever in Asheville, NC and are in need of some great company or a "giant sandwich," find Jonny Rightside.

Kathryn A. Yanez

Nuclear Surface Warfare



Pushup's have never been a problem for her. She's been "dropping and giving the Gunny 10" since she could remember. An old sole at heart, Momma Yanez can't get enough of those Cupcakes. Never discriminate against any shape, size or flavor. But one things for sure, no matter how many cupcakes she tries there will only be one "Heavenly." Really… I mean Really… stay away from the peanuts, they're deadly. I think my leg is still thrashing from that cattle prod I definitely deserve at least half that Black N. The end of Barbie and drawing the line at the nylons. Wait you could hear me through the wall? Earplugs my friend. Always remember to warm it up before you grab.

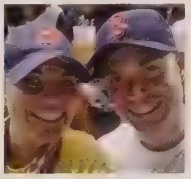
LeShay L. Bernstein

Surface Warfare Officer

Ms. Bernstein… "is there anything you are good at?"... Berntown, Bernshack, Black Princess- is known for her questions, outrageous comments, blunt, kind, happy spirit, and ability to persevere. LeShay is a black Indian Jew coming from the Dirrty Jerz, who values her family most. An avid participant in various programs, she has helped many people with her approachable and caring personality. There is never a dull moment around her. She is an optimist, with a contagious positive attitude. You've probably heard the name LeShay Bernstein at least once, and has she proven to all of us that she is indeed, good at "friendship, Ma'am."



Samantha J. Blea

Navy Pilot

Sammie truly broke the mold when she became a Midn. From her infamous chow calls, to her "unique" CO accent, she has definitely left a good impression on those close to her. She is one tough cookie that never backed down from any challenge. As a 3 year ski team member she managed to finally make it to 1 weekend race. She finally understood why USAFA is located away from modern society. And she finally got engaged to her one and only from 25. Despite her major focusing on things that don't actually exist, she managed to live, laugh, and learn her way through the good and the bad. BLEEAA definitely has some big plans for the future.

Kaitlyn E. Bussell

Navy Pilot

With a hand that looks like her state (born & raised in South Detroit), this champion navigator knows "why," enjoys percolating and avoiding stalkers. She's the best friend a girl could ask for with her big heart and constant smile. As a pastime, Kait, AKA Kitty or Mama Stow, spends her time climbing into her roommates' racks…. "We need to F*#@ing move NOW!" Shots! Caipirinhas! With musical talent and sarcasm gracing Bancroft's Pways, Kait showed USNA how a girl from "Gross Isle, WI" could be an unforgettable member of '11. Her 4 years were filled with travel and adventure & this "saxy" sailor can't wait to Stowaway to Pensacola!

Lara Bzik

Navy Pilot

A desk plastered in post-its, littered with dove chocolate wrappers, and strewn with random Chinese characters provides a little insight to Lara's life. Not only has she camped on the Great Wall and explored the far reaches of Western China, she has also discovered every bench while running around the greater Annapolis area. To the untrained eye, Lara seems like a stand-up midshipman, but don't look too closely at her bun, or the low-cut pink socks in her winter working blues…oh, and the love-chitting out of company.

Alexander F. Coker

Submarines

Hey, uhh, guys. I'm uh, really proud that I got to spend the last four years with all of you. From staying up late watching the awesome Red Sox win the World Series as a plebe with the best roommate (Alan), to playing with light bulbs in the EE labs, I had a lot of, umm, fun here. The weekends were great too: random trips with Jason, hitting myself with a rifle at drill comps, the Miami Dolphins losing, and of course, finishing my Rams Head beer card! Reaching my dream of being an officer in the best submarine force on earth makes the last four years worthwhile; but all of the friends I've met have made it, uh, fun. Go Deep Tigers!

Roberto Coronado II

Navy Pilot

Berto- THE TexMex from San Antone. Aka Yung Reezy, RCPaypaStaks, Mr. SleptIn, Isaac, Raven, Da Meats, and Pirate. He no got krly fryes or micro-blasts, but he gots his treats, he needs'em. Whether reading about 'game' or practicing it on Facebook, you expect lots heart from the shipmate. Uhg, chicken, but loves ketchnranch mo'. Listen for Texastoast or giggling at Anime at 0000, he'll be there. Sneezes live by'3rd times a charm.' RC II's a funny man, unless he meets Mr. Crvo. A notable member of CKlyne's grundel club. Whether as RIO or watch'em fly from a Jap MCM, this sir's someone to be glad to have around and someone who will be a friend, always.

-2/3 Browntown

Robert J. Crane

Submarine Corps

Bob "Hurricrane" Crane, the living encyclopedia, CS nerd that claims dual citizenship Still think you deserve a pilot slot 'n callsign? Though you did manage to surf the whale in Cali, every man's dream, props. Youve got brains 'n been working on the brawns ever since THE BET. Trying to impress that girl from B-more? You claim VGEP, but the amount of sleep-ins till 1300 keeps us wondering. Never forget… Hells Kitchen, Jack Dempsey, or shooting back some Jack w/ LT in NY. We can always count on you…to bring cops to our door. After 4 yrs we only have one question, would you take a dump on the Constitution for 5. Stay silent, go deep!

William R. Cunha

Surface Warfare Officer

A scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful and addicted to dip? Will Cunha, the fastest Arab in Tennessee. "Do you remember the night, nevermind you were blacked-out." Will is always working out so his toned muscles will impress cougars and dogs alike. Don't be confused by his small stature, Will can turn his flame on if his roommates forget to sweep the room. In the spirit of scouting, Will is always around to help any person in need. Attitude is everything and Will has a good one. He is a great friend to many and we wish him well in San Diego. By the way, KP and Ester were talking; they want to shack-up with you out there.

Jonathan J. Dixon

Navy Pilot

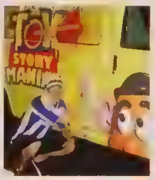
JDix, this Surfing Dub from Florida's Space Coast eagerly came to USNA after hearing that King Hall was "all you could eat" and that the guy to girl ratio was ten to one. No stranger to $500 tabs at the classiest of NC gentlemen establishments, Shipmate Dixon's love of woman can only be exceeded by his love for risking his life as a glider pilot. His excitement for flying has been spread throughout his time at the academy, especially in his rack, pants and iphone on service selection night. A member of the Ram's Head Hall of fame, Chief Smith impersonator and pro monkey caller, Jon's pursuit of excellence truly knows no bounds.

Robert M. Donovan

USMC Ground

In classic excitement-induced stutter, this Oracle from Omaha is never hesitant to sing his hometown's glories. As a big ol' smarty pants on his way to Johnny Hopkins, this future devil dawg may not fit in with the USMC once they discover his penchant for reading books without pictures in them. As co-manager of the office, his employees ensure that the residents of Naptown pay dearly for their sins when it's time to rage. And let's not forget that passing out at the dinner table in front of Mr. Monroe's parents never goes out of style. Nipple piercings. Baby blue suits. Big Tom. Keep those running lights lit; sorry for partying shipmate.

James A. Friedlander



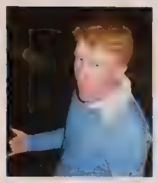
Nuclear Surface Warfare

Nuclear Biological Chemical you say? Three years of mixing chemicals and breathing in "dangerous" gases can only pay off. As a by product of the 2011 Nuclear Movement ADM Donald made sure he was put on the path. But hey, who can complain when you are taking your talents to San Diego? You can find James "Alan" at any Navy sporting event, just listen for either the cowbell or whistle. Boston sports fanatic from Attleboro, Mass…Red Sox, Celtics, Bruins, and Patriots. Up early, coming back late…and making weight, o' the life of a rower. "You can't eat that Alan, you got to make weight!" 11, Best of luck and "Pull for Navy!"

Vincent Gonzalez III

USMC Ground

If asked to describe Gonzo in few words, most classmates would reply "intestinal fortitude." It certainly takes uncommon guts for a man to faithfully return to Annapolis after spending so many months in South America, a land where he found love in the likeliest and unlikeliest of places and from which he returned with only a small souvenir not visible in reg PE gear. Back here he somehow completed a degree waiting for Netflix movies to load, single-handedly subsidized a tobacco farm, and jealously guarded his "RDJ Award" to remain 11s only recipient. All the while we called you "bro" and all the while we meant it. Semper Fi Vince



Brendan M. Hinz

Navy Pilot

Brendan naturally had a difficult time at the Academy, for he had to keep up with all of the Academy's demands while simultaneously dealing with an incurable case of gingervitis. But while he was indeed a thoroughbred Cali-Bro, this Lance Armstrong wannabe was no slouch. During his sports periods, Brendan competed in varsity P90-X with unyielding enthusiasm. The fact that he was the first to retire from it is not important. Best to quit when you're on top. And while his unyielding efforts to land an in-company girl proved fruitless, his thousands of hours of Flight Simulator did land him a coveted pilot spot. See Chief.

Erik R. Hunter

Navy Pilot

He was never too lucky with fins on his surfboard but the fins on his feet brought him 22 Navy swimming records and a trip to NCAA Championships in Texas. No matter what he is doing, be it swimming to showing off his wine swirling skillz, Erik always has a smile on his face, unless he decides to show his "sad face", then you really can't help but laugh. And though he missed an hour and a half of his thermo final, Erik still made it as a mechanical engineer, varsity athlete, and great friend. I'm sure he will do just as great down in flight school, who knows, he may even manage to find a way not to break his fins off his surfboard ;)

Christopher R. Infante

Surface Warfare Officer

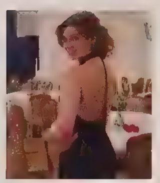
Christopher "I need my coffee fix!" Infante, a product of Jacksonville, Florida, arrived at USNA having already mastered all concepts and disciplines of military drill from his days in NJROTC. This, of course, was the motivating factor which led him to join USNA's own silent drill team—The Jolly Rogers. When he couldn't be found drilling (silently, of course), Chris spent much of his time as a chemistry major in the labs developing secret formulas and serums intended to alter foods to be mango flavored. A DTA favorite, Chris was known by his orders rather than his name at both Starbucks (Grande Java Chip Frappucino or Grande Black and White Mocha) and Nano Sushi (Valentine Roll or Nano Combination Fried Rice) after remaining a loyal and devoted client for all four years of his time at The Boat School by the Bay. His friends (and Nano and Starbucks) will miss him deeply but it's been an unforgettable time with unforgettable memories. Thanks for being the best of friends. –CBH

Keith R. Kasmarek

Surface Warfare Officer

"Krustel:" The dirtiest thing to come up out of the H since SPM. Amateur Boxing Record: 0-1. When not searching for high-speed-internet or little brown women he could be found polishing his Mid-stang's rims before cruising DTA for the first two. Always remember: ski weekends, camping trips, office parties, shooting, rodeos, trips to Greenland, tailgates, firewater, gangsta rap, wiping Monroe's a, and the photos of what we can't remember from the croquet match. I'm sure a bright future awaits you in the Navy, and always remember "The early bird gets the morning nut." Look out, San Diego, here he comes. "Hide yo kids, hide yo wife."

Kateryna Kovalenko



Surface Warfare Officer

Katyusha, our Ukrainian super model, would not be complete without red hair dye, fabulous make-up, and superb clothing. Sleeping Beauty awakes when her prince charming clock whispers it's 3 pm into her ear. Babushka, having a near-death experience during plebe summer adds to the amazingness of who you are as a person. Your fantastically sexy accent masks the fact that you are truly a remarkable person, loyal friend and aspiring leader. The inner beauty you possess also shows on the outside, leaving you radiating for all people to see. Anyone would be lucky to have you as a friend, and in eternal gratitude to call you a sister.

Kalin J. Krause

Surface Warfare Officer

KKRRAAUUUSSEEEE…The Big Man from Alabama. A direct descendent of Bear Bryant himself, this blond-haired, blue-eyed southerner came here to tear people up on the football field. Since then, he has connected with his softer side and joined the Navy Cheer team! Go Navy Go, RAH RAH! 20 page papers in one night, never purchasing a textbook, countless bottles of protein…Don't let his size scare you…you would be hard pressed to find a more down-to-earth and genuine friend. We will miss his head-butts in the hall and pointed verbal jabs. Take care and GO VOLS!

Cheryl A. Lefever

USMC Ground

Our little Amish girl has come a long way since coming to the Academy. She came to the Academy with sayings like "you cheese!" and "oh my word!" and quickly transitioned into running into poles head on…literally…and now belching "oorah!" We are proud of our amazing Navy Cycling member, Company XO, and dear friend. Cheryl loved helping others at the Academy and was always thinking of ways to show that she cared. She wins Best Roomate Award and will always be the girl I that I slept talked to. Cheryl, never loose your smile and sincere attitude. You have touched a lot of people with your contagious love and hard working attitude. '14 Tigers are still waiting for their Single Ladies Dance…

Samuel Q. Long

USMC Ground

Aint none better than ole mule… 'At ole cat came up from Georgia to Yankeeland Mary-Land with fire n his eyes… Ever cents plebe sum'r I knows that ole cat was gon be a good one.. 'At boy aint scared of noth'n and he gon be a good ole Marine.. Don't matter if he giving them ole Jersey boys hell… He gon' be there for ya…There aint nun bet'r… That boy sho can eat but he'll whoop ya, out run ya, and challenge ya in n'thing and fight til he wins… I seen him and Walker head to head n that ole cat will win and go on to sleep aft'rwords… Now d'nt chya forget about his days on the diamond… Ole southpaw always get himself out of a bind and comes out with a durn smile on his face… Ole mule is a good ole cat and Samuel Quince Long will always be r'membered for his four years by the Severn.

Allan B. Lutz

Navy Pilot

Allan "Sloth Mode" Lutz truly embodied the mission of the Naval Academy during his reign as King Sloth. Not only was he ranked number one on the squash court, but he also challenged himself academically, double majoring in both Broceanography and Rack PT. Yet this comma club champion also knew how to stay motivated on weekends, staying on top of his training as a recreational alcoholic and BMW mod-master. Some might contend that Allan was not successfully taught a single thing at the Naval Academy, but we'll never forget how he taught us all how to coax a good ol' weekend grill-ride out of a youngster. See Chief.

Thomas H. McNamara

USMC Ground

Thank God for that second class loan. During Tommy's four year term of office as a midshipman, he has probably lost more stuff than you will ever own. When not using his iPhone to practice his three-point shot in the bathroom, you could probably find him washing out his steerage cup so he can re-up on his 12th diet coke of the night. There's nothing like quenching your thirst for victory with some sugary goodness, free of charge. Tommy was one to constantly be hitting the books hard, so he was naturally a first-round pick for the USMC once they discovered his hundred-pound brain. Keep on keepin' those NARPs in check. See Chief.

Cody J. Monroe

Navy Pilot

Cody "the robber" Monroe hasn't met a mode of transportation that can't fail him. Planes, trains and slabs all quiver when they meet his blank stare. A man Charles Scott can be proud of, he is more nocturnal specimen than human. Fueled by Caffeine and SoCo, bad ideas have never sounded better. Uncommon sense was a common virtue for this Midshipman. Viva España, quest to Croatia, throwback in Philly, make drank in Eastport. Where can't Monroe thrive? Pass out on one girl, rob another, and when it comes to Yankees, bigger is better. Pour yourself a big tom, light yourself a gold, and remember the hero who first stated "You in the Office Baby."

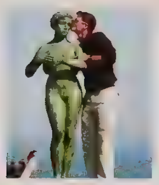
Jennifer A. Nielsen

Nuclear Surface Warfare

One of the triplets managed to follow in her daddy's footsteps through the halls of the Naval Academy…and has done it with much more class! Leaving the comfort of her California home, Jenn embraced the academy life with grace and style. No short lived swimming career, rock wall incident or the occasional mouse could stand in her way. Jenn's pure heart and steadfast faith powered her to the top and helped her reach her goals in life. Nuke SWO, 3rd Battalion Commander, awesome roommate, cute smile, Mech E genius, no big right? Keep shining beautiful and never stop believing in yourself!

Tres A. Penny

Navy Pilot



KP: "What do you want to do with your life, Mr. Penny?"
Penny: "I'd like to be a pilot, Sir."
KP: "Well, let's just say you should start looking at home ports and hull numbers."

When it comes to Tres Penny it's all about spreadin' the love—and a quick look at his DTA stats will show that his love knows not age, nationality nor marital status. A true veteran of the office, his homemaking skills include leaving food out so that the roach population explodes like Nagasaki, playing hours of beer pong before march-on, as well as trying to beat out the DC zoo's record for most cougars fed in one weekend. See Chief.

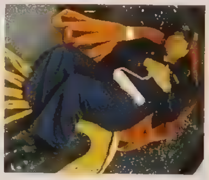
Raymond V. Piaña

Surface Warfare Officer

Sir Raymond "Captain Cockeyed" Piana, the Count of White Castle, is the most dedicated midshipmen to have graduated USNA. If you don't catch this young Linderman's Loser training at 0530, he is probably watching an NBA game or diligently living out such NBA fantasies through his PS3. He runs for freedom and curly fries, nothing else. This noble man bears no shame with his obsessions with Facebook farms, fish tanks, and magical creature battles, but wears such distinctions with pride. He will pay for your dinner willingly and without hesitation, no matter the cost. In the face of oppression, there is no one better to have at your side.

Carlos A. Plazas Jr.

Naval Flight Officer



Jersey Fresh. Aka Dune Raider, Goose, Mr. Clubs, Coach Carlos, the Lost Child. "Oh that's a nice shirt!" Was he talking to me? "We just want to pass!" Oh he's just sleep talking again. When he's not spending time in the rack he's diligently avoiding the Marking Office. Never let him get a beer from a Vietnam Vet. Don't ever lose track of him because chances are he didn't charge that cell phone of his. If you ever get into a sticky situation just have him unleash one of his Howitzer rounds. Works like a charm for clearing rooms, with minimum recoil. All in all, a great companion to have indeed. Just don't ask him about his Platinum Membership.

William Luke Pye

USMC Ground

Attention Mission Control! Space Pilot Pye coming in for a landing! Man of a million questions about EVERYTHING. This Sprint Football flux-u-weight-or can go from 210 to 172 in no time easy… just don't eat anything but yogurt. Good thing for company mates to finish off ALL of the snack and junk food sent from Keri. Only standing member of 11's 2% club. If you ever need a Gatorade don't go to Sam's Club go to Luke's closet. What's your name?! Pye, sir! You're first name!? APPLE PYE SIR! SMASH!! Great intentions but definitely misspoken. But we all still love Midshipman 4/C Pye!

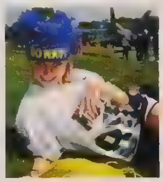
Gregory F. Reichel

Nuclear Surface Warfare

From day 3, Greg Reichel's hate letter for Shipmate Ponder will never be forgotten. His only regret is that he can't devote more time to his professional break.com career. His favorite past times include professing his love for giant, gangly, ginger girls, frequent talks with KP about actions exuding the utmost professionalism, and banging some "thug beatz." Perhaps the pinnacle of Mr. Reichel's career involved photo documentation of himself grinding on some of Pusser's finest (and largest) patrons. Giddyup Cowboy! With his vast knowledge of airplanes, he will make one damn good SWO. Cheers, to the Office's Beer-Game Heisman recipient!

Katherine A. Rentz

Surface Warfare Officer



An aspiring cat lady, Midshipman Rentz is an accomplished young woman. Hailing from the 11th Company, this all-star runner will be happy to dash away from the reign of good ol' Capt...Crunch. Whether surfin' the high seas or forecasting in sunny San Diego, you can be sure she's having fun--the only thing Brad can't disarm is this bombshell. Her faith in God always shines through. When a storm comes, you can be sure this gal has your back!

Daniel R. Rheaume

Navy Pilot

In 1775 this Dirty D was one of the first to join the Navy. Hailing from Dover, DE Dan weighs in at a terrifying 147 lbs especially after a full sweats jog and then a toasty time on the heater. Beware of those back-shaft brawls or you might get your jaw wired shut. Make sure you knock before entering. He wouldn't be one without his other half, so where is Chelsea? Where indeed? Let's just check Dan's magic map. And if you thought one was enough, Dan is going back in the Navy to join his little brother. Stand by to stand by.

Bryen M. Roder

USMC Pilot

At-Ease Brigade… when Bryen isn't in front of the anchor, he's collecting stripes, billets and breast insignia. When he isn't giving speeches for SAME, SHAPE or SWO-lovers he's probably cleaning up after a few famous Navy football players. Don't think he doesn't understand, he's probably given you orders at each level in the chain of command then counseled you for it because you're in his squad. Trying to explain how hard plebe year is to him? Save it he validated that one… So Aten-Hut Brigade! Get in line behind him… Bryen is "on-point" in the fire-team of your life. He put da team on his back Do… Off to the Corps you go Bryen… but check the pins at the door.

Sean P. Rohrs

USMC Pilot

Sean Patrick Jingleheimer Rohrs, aka Papa Shun, the hometown hero. How far away do you live? 7 miles? Sean is living proof that the apple doesn't fall far from the tree. When he wasn't stinking up all of 7-0 with his rugby clothes or making out with a shipmate's sasquatch sister, Sean could be found out in DTA looking for a good rodeo. It's a good thing USAA offered Sean the Platinum insurance because he was the victim of the largest robbery in USNA history. It's ok though cause she had some needle teeth and her eyes were kind of far apart. Sean became a shoe-in for the Corps once they found out about his unusual penchant for handling "grenades" and the MPB ridges on his freshly-shaved noggin. Good luck in the Corps. Fly Marines!

Robert M. Vallance

Navy Pilot

Robert "Nasty Robbie" Vallance. Hailing from Nowhere, Oregon he never ceased to amaze his classmates with an endless supply of "shock sites", company-wide emails, and "nasty" humor. Never one to pass up on an opportunity to see the world burn, Rob was certainly to blame for any prank that ever occurred in 11th company spaces. He spent most of his time at USNA perpetually searching for the "11th Company Phantom", but never found him/her (admittedly his biggest failure). Rob knows all too well the value of a hard earned dollar.

Scott P. Voigt

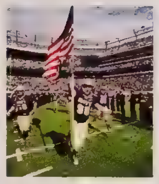
USMC Air

OH NAVY, SIR! EAT ARMY, SIR! – The motivating, yet somewhat disturbing words, of my roommate of four long years by the Bay, Scotty P. Voigt, as he chopped through Bancroft Hall during the last real plebe year. With his highly motivated socks, and dashing BCGs, I just knew he was destined to be part of the Corps. Scotty was a loyal roommate and was always there for you. If you slept through your alarm in the morning, don't fret! Scotty was there! He would push the snooze button on his alarm so much that it went off at least seven times. You were guaranteed to be up by then! Scotty never forgot his roots. The avid Cheesehead could be seen marching down the p-ways to the parody "Green and Yellow" munching on some cheese curds he purchased in Wisconsin. Oh and stand by if Scotty saw a red; that was his dream and boy was he excited! Oh Scotty. . . he just didn't know. . . Thanks for the memories - CRI

William T. Ward Jr.

Nuclear Surface Warfare

"I'm nervous and excited…so, I think it's going to be a good experience…" Not a year goes by that we aren't reminded of USNA's first look at this small-town guy from Hollidaysburg, PA. If you could not spot him from his red hair, he could usually be found sneaking into the 7th-wing terrace bathroom in the wee hours of the night…Donuts covered in buffalo sauce and sprinkled with fingernails, mmmm! Keep the boat between the buoys, it isn't your car…A true friend, great drinking buddy (even though most bars don't agree), and future SWO-daddy, we will never forget the kid who just wanted to grow up! Judy, you are free!



William Yarborough

USMC Ground

Billy hails from South Caroline, where everyone passes their driver's test. Hey Billy, after pre-game, the oxygen tank is on the sidelines. If you want to find Billy, he is at sign, and it says "stop"! Guys, new nickname…Goldrush! "Hey Billy, you want to come over?"…"I don't know, is Seth there?" Easy Billy, it's just Catchphrase. Scott A. Adams

Submarines

Hear ye, Hear ye! Scott Adams was the ideal, perfect, model, penultimate, superlative midshipman, mostly in that he wrote FITREPS so that everyone thought they were reading thesauruses of praises. Whether attempting to incite revolution, Joeing out on the underclass, or just laughing at jokes he wouldn't explain, he always maintained that classy, dazzling pallor. That pale sheen of a master dancer whose slick moves were refined by years of video game and dice-rolling skills. Don't ask him what he's thinking, because it doesn't make sense. Ever. He will overcome reality, kick reason asunder and throw logic to the curb. Q.E.D.

Samuel L.B. Amazeen

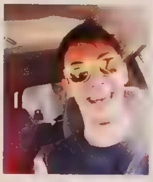
Submarines

Scamuel Lee Borden Rothchild Montgomery Scamazeen, notoriously known as Scam for his sheer antics and tomfoolery, somehow managed to skate past the Naval Academy's stringent military policies to become the first hippie to attend the prestigious school. After being forced to shave, cut his fro, and wear something other than tye-die and pink shirts, he found that the only way he could fight the system was to scam his way into civilian school to survive the last semester. He will go on to be a great submariner one day…but only if he learns how to wear pants first.

Anne M. Bloechle

USMC Pilot

From the land of the Simpsons. Team sports fanatic. Loves hitting snooze. The engineer that should have been a writer. Disney marathon: check off the bucket list. Love the rolly stick! Should I have a cookie? Catching up on world travel: Puerto Rico, London, Rome… Tokyo? Mmm… Mountain Dew. GO CUBS!



Jonathan M. Brown

USMC Ground

Who doesn't know this skinny, narcoleptic hailing from the backwoods of Appalachia. Always ready to wave Jon Brown's commute to class takes the form of a greeting line. Dealing in the troubles of others relationships more regularly than homework one must wonder what Jon's major is? Is it anthropological in nature? What is general science supposed to mean anyways? It certainly is not the study of punctuality or our Jon would be gone. Perhaps it is the art of attracting women? That surely has been a strong suit of Jon's. Unable to take a jaunt in DTA without numbers being thrown at him, Jon's preppy clothing and corny lines have proven to be lady killers leaving john with carpal tunnel from the texting required to keep up with them all.

Max Z. Caggiano

USMC Air

Max Caggiano. The Italian whose diet mainly consisted of egg whites and spinach leafs and who resided in 7th Wing gym since its inception. Hands down the nicest man you will ever meet. He was always the chaperone on Saturday nights who still had fun with the boys (though unable to keep the hard stuff down). He was and will always be a true man of character who would lay down his own priorities to help a friend or even a stranger out. He epitomizes a true American who loves the New York Yankees, has a beautiful blonde girlfriend, and drops the f-bomb every once and a while to get his point across. His smile will be truly missed.

Chelsea O. Chlebo

Navy Pilot

From…I guess VA? Army brat turned Navy enthusiast. Plebe summer – Anne, where's my…everything!? Track speedster. Easy-ography that should have had a math minor. I just want to go to Bio-Bay – worst trip EVER! You can't miss her giant red truck with the American flag. Netflix addict. You know, that Rheaume-guy's fiancée, the one with the ice rink on her finger.

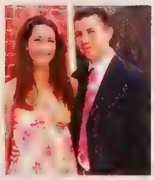
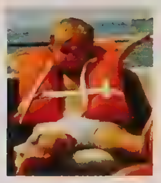
Amanda L. Crowe

USMC Ground



Amanda "it's Crowe not Crow" Crowe might be the girliest girl at USNA, but her extreme athleticism and gazelle-like running form set her apart from the average lover of Hello Kitty, the color pink, and J.Crew. She loves her family, her besties (LMK), and the Marine Corps. Oh and of course, the love of her life her Chrissy Baby! Very few of us knew Amanda BC (before Chris) since they have been together since the beginning of NAPS. Her sharp sense of humor, loyalty, intelligence, and people skills define her as a model midshipman and future Marine. Hopefully one day she will go to law school and become the next Elle Woods!

Stephen C. Crush



Naval Flight Officer

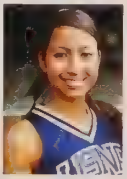
Raised in the hills of Kentucky with his 15 siblings, Stephen was an ambitious young man, with a call to the sea! Eagle Scouts, assemble! He's such a special boy that he almost got kicked out on his first day at the good ol' USNA. Blasting through any obstacle with his plethora of testosterone, Stephen soon reached fame as the coveted TICKLE MONSTER! How about another shot of 151? Brad Paisley? I've got a kidney STONE! Don't worry about the cops, I'm peeing! His ambition was so high he even bought a boat that he sailed…once. Most honorable mid sent to an honor court…not guilty! Just marry her already! She'll love your new flight suit, GO 'FO!

Travis M. Dickerson

Surface Warfare Officer

How can one define the Travis Dickerson with merely words? Can it be achieved with descriptions of his exponential workload? That may explain the blur many see as T-Dicks speeds his way to and from Nimitz. Maybe what embodies this baby-face rests upon his thug LA upbringing. Could an undaunted determination to represent all that is the PAC-10, and stand up against ionic bonds really fit inside such an undersized body? Answer: NO! Travis is impossibility. A man "[You] know you love" who "Doesn't want to die" with just justification, historical precision/appreciation, and the friendship only describable as family.

Kristina Fontenot



Surface Warfare Officer

Kristina, known to most as Kristi, left the girls' club that is her Virginia home to embark on an adventure at the Naval Academy. Coming from a Navy family, she found the "least Navy" things to occupy her time: a major in English and an unhealthy level of participation in cheerleading. Her studies in English served as a pleasant distraction from the oftentimes mundane days. Her four years on the Navy Cheerleading squad (though not completely uninterrupted) brought her from coast-to-coast. On one of her many MOs, she even returned with a West Point boyfriend, who was later convinced to spend a fun semester at the better Academy. Most importantly, she couldn't have asked for a better roommate. FOUR YEARS STRONG!

Michael J. Fryauff

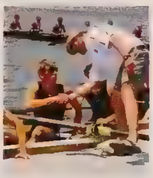
Surface Warfare Officer

"Dude, man, dude. That's not what the plate's for! What Would John Paul Jones Do? Have you seen Kyle? The Terminator Likes Waffles Deluxe. Why do rats die? The radar waves travel through the air, kind of like a football. Young Mike often blatantly slept in class, snoring away the most interesting of classes and pushing away anyone trying to wrestle him away from Dreamland. He will forever be the most memorable person to ever be a Chemistry major, football player/filmer, and YP Master-and-Commander. John Paul Jones made him Fryauff Smash, usually keyboards…Spaghetti!"

Jacob W. Johnson

Naval Flight Officer

From the steeze of the mountain, to the steel of the slammer, Jake never left any waters untested. From his membership in the exclusive Black "N" club to his two years on exchange at College Park, Jake's accomplishments were always the talk of mother B. Between Ohio State with DEVGRU, shirtless skiing, and Friday nights on Jarvy, the adventures of Mix and Jake were nothing short of inspiring. But Jake is probably best known for his time in spandex, I mean on the triathlon team, where he was all about NFCs and Team USA…thankfully there were no windows along the course. Just watch out, this dapper young man will take home your girl.



Edward M. King

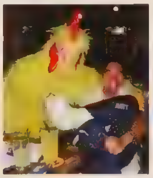
SEALs

Eddy from Australia, Mux, Mikey… friend to some, brother to others. Although always the center of attention—who wouldn't be with golden hair bleached with sun in!?—Mix never got "the email" and barely walked onto the team. The most important part of his training was drinking a glass of water at 4 o'clock in the morning, yet after two years of it, Indigo Vasachi and his sweet tooth still stood in the way of a bronze medal at World's And he also never figured out why the dingo ate his baby. Living by the motto "tall, tan, fit and ready," he is a great friend who will be down for a weekend trip to France. Maybe a SEAL, always a SHARK!

Robert D. Kruse

Surface Warfare Officer

Bob Kruse had a rocky start to his Naval Academy career, but soon found his way after meeting 3 of his best friends in room 5047. The next 4 years would consist of epic weekend nights at the bars with even better adventures on the way back to Bancroft. Between managing women's lacrosse games and raging at men's lacrosse games Bob's time at the academy flew by. Bob will now answer his calling as a SWO and head to Little Creek to reunite and once again rage with his 3 best friends.



Truong X. Le

Submarines

After two years of college and countless days erased from memory at Arizona State, Truong Le enlisted in the Navy and wounded up aboard USS Bancroft Hall. Truong was destined to become a submarine officer. His 5 foot nothing and knack for disappearing made him prefect for the sub force. When asked "Where's Truong?" His room mates would respond, "He's in his dungeon somewhere." Silent service, indeed!

Nicole P. Lung

Navy Pilot

Nicole Lung (crazy B) Although she was very prepared for the USNA all of her classmates seemed to notice something special about this young gal when she claimed to hear JPJ's voice when she was touring the crypt. She also seemed to have the hardest time swinging her arms when she walked. One of the most caring in the company she was not afraid to reach a hand down through the classes to share her fun spirit. Although she is crazy she will always be remembered for her giggle: It makes even JPJ laugh. Now she is swinging full stride going on to become a great naval aviator. Everyone in her company knows that she will continue hearing voices but she will bring her giggling crazy butt to the fleet.

Caitlin M. Mandrin Hill

Naval Flight Officer

CM: She punches like a girl, drinks like a boy, and laxes like a champ. Some call it arrogance, Cait calls it confidence… and having a good time-- whether or not she gets fried because of it is a whole different story. "And having said that" Cait TOTALLY gets the Ship, Shipmate, Self paradigm and will do anything to help out those around her, free weekends anyone!? Trouble making tendencies aside, she a fierce friend and an even fiercer competitor. Just ask Carissa Youker. Slam slam oh hot DAMN!

Gerardo J. Martinez

USMC Ground

This self-proclaimed Chicagoan never lived in Chicago. Hailing from the village of Marengo, Waard was a niño of many talents: from downhill mountain-bike racing, to drag racing, to his days as a professional cowboy, his vast experience prepared him for midshipman life. At USNA, he thrived despite the adversity. Huerta will always be your bestie. Cabo Wabo! Arriba, a bajo, al centro, para adentro! Remember the playground and the All-Faiths Chapel? Don't hide his bicycle! From Pussers to Latin Palace, he could always find a señorita. Second date, anyone? Mande? Hold on to your Harley! Why is your tat crooked? Semper Fi, young lad, Semper Fi!

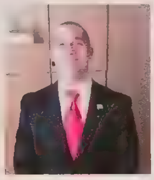
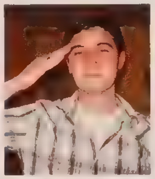
Sleep-in queen; how do you not go to class until 10… EVERY DAY! Lives in the cave. I LOVE POST-ITS! "Are you guys decent?" "Yeah." "NOOOO!" –Kendra. What's it like in France, Italy, Senegal, Dubai, Greece…?

Eric J. McCrery

USMC Ground



Eric McCrery. The man, the myth, the legend. More stripes than an American flag, but he salutes it anyway. And that's what makes him so special. He's the finest man you'll ever meet, but you'd never know by talking to him (mostly because he talks like he's from Tennessee). Actions speak louder than words, and Eric is a man of action. He, more than anyone, is the man to look to for the right action (as long as he stays away from old Jack Daniels). So thanks Eric, from all of us, for the wisdom, the laughs, and the love.



Collin M. McGeehan

Naval Flight Officer

Born a Guamanian prince, he was seized from the throne and brought up in the hills of West "By God" Virginia. After reporting to USNA, young Collin was exposed to a wide new world. His royal generosity was apparent when he gave $20 to the homeless as a 4/C. He took a fancy to many new cultures, from Ukrainian to Chilean, and everywhere in between. He loved, he lost, he loved again, and again and again. "There are times when a Corps Commander's life DOES NOT COUNT!" Don't watch a movie on mate. Never forget your 21st birthday "bench sit," to wandering Sevilla at 4:30 am, to drunk history in Charleston. To your future "FO Flow," CHEERS!

Zack came to USNA knowing one thing: he wanted to fly. From his first experience at Reg. Tables with LtCol Benson ("You lost your rifle? What do you want to service select? Don't be a Marine!") he knew the Marine Corps was out. After some time observing submariners, he realized he wanted to fly underwater. As team Road Captain with multiple nationals appearances, he has been pulling Navy cycling for three years with legs that are nicer than your girlfriend's. A Mech. E. major, he now knows that he doesn't want to be an engineer when he grows up. Fortunately his backup careers of song writing and truck driving will stay available for years.

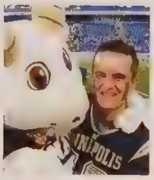
Michael E. Morrison II

Navy Pilot

If there was ever a man whose life theme song was "A Country Boy Can Survive," it's Mike. A reserved man from the pits of Georgia, Mike resembles all that is true and attractive about the Deep South. He drives the largest truck to ever enter Gate 8 (usually plastered with mud), hunts alligators for fun (see the History Channel show "Swamp People"), displays the attractive side to tobacco use, yet still has the class to sweet talk the ladies with his thick southern drawl. Mike will follow in the footsteps of his father and show the naval service that there are still roughneck gentlemen south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

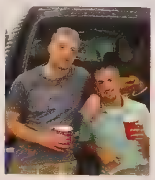
Vince M. Murray

Joshua B.J. Neal



Naval Flight Officer

Joshua Neal is a redundant Southern born Texan with a head of epic proportions. He is a man of uncompromising loyalty to his friends, family, and the random guys he meets in the smoke pit, supported by his no-quit work ethic and a terrible sense of humor developed from brainwashing doses of Family Guy. Josh adamantly defends America through his vast purchases of Cheez-Its and Monsters to help stimulate the economy. Being a multi-tasker, he could often be found accomplishing this mission while taking Axe showers and watching the Spurs and the Cowboys. Since the ripe old age of nine, he has dreamed of graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy, a dream he would realize 14 years (and 928 Monsters and 4212 mini bags of Cheez-Its) later and four years more immature. 'Bi!



Matthew J. Orzechowski II

USMC Ground

What can be said by a man of few words. Oz as everyone calls him He seems reserved but really he has a lot to say and not enough time to say it. When asked about his relationship with a certain mid who happened to be a few classes behind us he is quoted with his two favorite lines "UHhhh you know…ten minutes later…. uhhh" These two words seem to encompass most of what he has to say about other stories such as: waking up with you clothes wet from the night before, eating his nose extracts and his Nav exam. Just remember to clean up the dirt under the trash bin and don't forget to call your mom in the USMC.

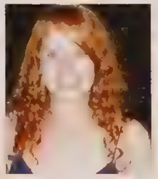
Jake M. Peterson

Medical Corps

Jake "Pete" Peterson could often be found at his desk, working late into the morning on various labs and homework assignments. Since then, he has relearned the fine art of sleep through daily dietary supplements of JPJ and senioritis. On his off days, he can be seen ridiculing his friends for even the most trivial of reasons and using his sixth sense to judge people he will most likely never meet in real life, much to the amusement of everybody else. Having successfully obtained his goal of service selecting Medical Corps, he has only one more goal to achieve before his life is complete: growing a beard. Given that he will be chilling in medical school for the next four years, that dream may occur sooner than he thinks… (Insert overly exaggerated handshake)

Katherine L. Quail

Navy Pilot



Hailing from Columbia, MD, she is the ginger that is impossible to lose. Plebe summer radio; a voice never sounded so good. Jump wings fiasco: NEVER AGAIN! Disney marathon high fives! At every party. SAFETY QUAIL! Holds down the fort. Wanna go to Whole Foods?

Marcos E. Rivera

Navy Pilot

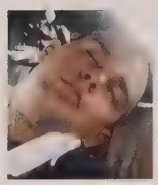
Our little Sexy Mexi, what a great four years it's been beside the fact we still have never been to your house. Don't gel your hair too much when you get to your squadron, cuz I'm sure it'll make for a good call sign (cholo). After 4 years, we're glad that you've finally learned to think and speak in English. No more translating problems. Next time you decide to skip a mandatory event, you might want to think twice…you never know when Supancic is watching. In the fleet when they give you crew rest, you should probably rest and not watch YouTube. Good luck in flight school and in your career. We know you'll find the right one someday. There are plenty of guys out there that gel their hair as much as you. Besos, Blanco Grande y Vinchenzo Ulrique

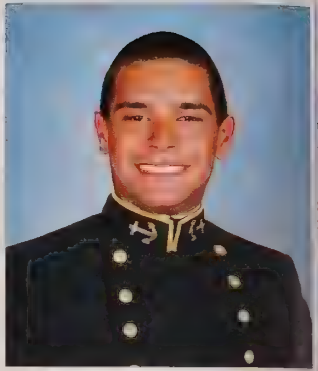
Michael A. Shuman

USMC Pilot

Michael. Mike. Mikey Shoes. TJ. His name changes indicate his evolution the last 4 years. He's far from the rowing plebe who has problems with relationships and always studies in the library. After a semester skiing at Air Force, he has become a hard-partying, but soft-drinking, fun-loving guy. No more stressful days of a hard Aero major. Homework? Please, we never did that at Air Force. Burning the midnight oil until 2230 was common for this industrious Texan, even as Training Officer. The late nights paid off as he earned another 4.0. Onward and upward for the future Marine Pilot. Oorah and thank God for cruise rest!

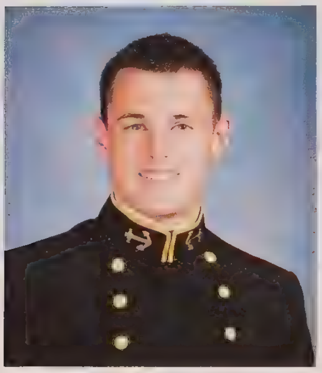
Chrsitopher A. Sotolongo





USMC Pilot

Christopher descends on Annapolis from the proud jungles of Minnesota. Move out of the way Mowgli, there's a new jungle boy in town. One who spends an hour in the shower, three hours styling his buzzed head, and 40 hours a day playing Playstation 3. Despite his 45 straight national championships on various versions of NCAA Football, this five foot metrosexual will first be remembered as the chosen punching bag of classmates returning from a night in DTA. Ladies beware, he may be single but where are YOU going to fit into his busy napping schedule? That's right, "Slow-poke-olongo" manages 170 hours of total sleep per week.



Vinton K. Ulrich III

USMC Pilot

Ohh where to begin? Vinny Kenney really knows how to party. The Kenney Formula for a good time: 2 hrs of sleep, no food, final the next day, lots of tequila shots and finish it off with a MRI scan and a catheter at AA Med Center. Kenney is constantly found in a state of unconsciousness and can sleep wherever he is, even while standing in the shower (when he isn't playing battleship with the shampoo bottles). We are glad to say that he is finally extending his leash and should be able to go out on Friday nights by the time he graduates. We hope that you can eat at least 3 squares in the Marine Corps and not have another Zone Bar incident. We hope that you can fly jets better than you can skipper sailboats because there is no Coast Guard to rescue you. We are glad you finally found a keeper, hopefully she doesn't leave you for a gay guy.

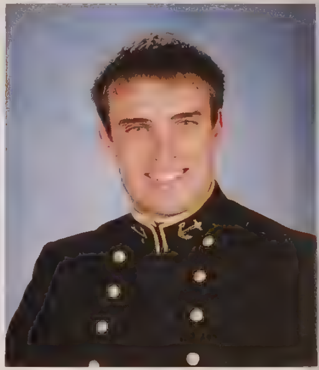
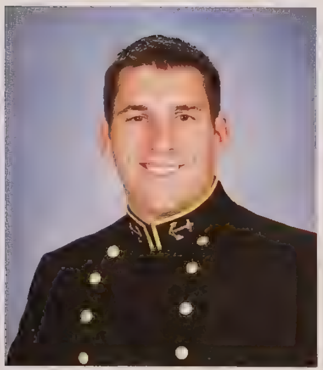
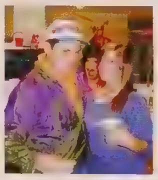
Jonathan L. Wetzel



Submarines

Jonathan Lance Wetzel, otherwise known as Wetz amongst his friends, could often be found looking for candy at the mate's desk. No one could enter the deck with an order of Chinese food without quickly being confronted by him. No bag of cookies was ever safe from his grasp. After his feast, said cookies would be left open to decay and rot from their exposure to the elements. To work off this caloric intake he would then go for a run, which most of the time meant playing starcraft. Fortunately, this way of life should bode well for him in nuke school and beyond.





Matthew R. White

Submarines

From running in the middle of the streets of Philadelphia to jumping in random cars in Jacksonville, Whitey could always be looked to, to have a good time. He always had the best taste in music, from "Fire in the Disco" to his gay space music. But don't you dare piss this teddy bear off or he'll slice your finger the night before finals, and force you to put duck tape around it in fear of getting fried.....again. This man was the king of "rate what you skate." Youngster year was his year of achievement, from having a car, granting himself youngster Friday night liberty, to being the only phantom Lacrosse player. Sorry to break it to ya bud, but the only reason you've been our roommate for the past four years is because you have a girlfriend who can cook (although we know you prefer flavored condoms over her cooking). If it weren't for her monthly treats, you would've been "gone-zo." Good luck in Charleston! DEEP SEA! HOOYAH!

Hailing from McGregor, TX, he quickly set forth making his mark upon USNA. With a beaming smile and little to no bearing, he loathed all things training: that was, until he was Training Sgt, First Sgt, Plebe Summer PC, XO, and Train-O. Though always working hard on the intramural basketball courts and in the swimming pool, it was luck that he was so good in the classroom. From his dancing and sharp dress to his consistent singing and genuine friendship, TArp always set the standard. We wish you the best of luck in the Silent Service and hope you can find time to work on your tan. Only make good mistakes.

McBlevetron! Born out of the legends of San Diego Plebe year, Christopher Blevens built himself a mountainous reputation, which is not surprising given his propensity for camping and mountain-man attributes. As he begins an adventure-filled life together with his soulmate, the future Mrs. Melissa Sue Blevens, we wish him the best of luck in the Submarine Force.

Joshua A. Henderson

Naval Aviation

Josh Henderson is a virtuous man from the foothills of Fort Gibson, Oklahoma. A guitar picker who CAN sing a lick, Josh is caught in the classic Western struggle between Cowboy and Indian; however, the most common battlefield he finds himself in is suppressing his inner "Shewolf." His little black book is about as thick as this Lucky Bag but rarely does it get good use. A master of the 10:29 run, Josh has courted every community from the Marine Corps to the Reactor Core, he has finally settled down with a future in Naval Aviation. Best of luck to a great friend and roommate!

Hailing from the (703), this future computer nerd is known for her closet shenanigans. Always quick with a witty comment or comeback, she will lift your spirits when you need it. This epic daytime napper is frequently found crawling the streets of DTA introducing many a strange drink to friends. Nuclear waste anyone? My party buddy, it has been great rooming with you for the past two years and I look forward to many more years of friendship. You better get an awesome place in Hawaii because I am coming to visit!

Charles P. Hessler

Naval Aviation

The illustrious Charles Patterson Hessler has more than distinguished himself as a professional. Destined for service at sea, Charley has been first and foremost a swimmer since he was a young lad. His first two years at USNA, he lettered in Men's Varsity Swimming, adopting his favorite phrase, "I'm never here," which absolved him of all responsibilities of being a midshipman, plebe, roommate, friend, son, boyfriend, brother, etc. His first choice of academic interest was Systems Engineering, but the combination of statics and never being here led to a prompt switch to Oceanography. After leaving his varsity status, Charley took a minor in Video Entertainment Arts. His study habits included going on epic quests in the realm of Warcraft and playing Call of Duty: Modern Warfare while his textbook was open. He is known for withstanding frigid temperatures in the room, replying "It's not cold" to his roommates (who questioned why the windows were open from November through March). Charley, also known as Charlesman, prides himself in his stoic, uncomplicated personality along with his highly coveted title as the Fartmaster. He will be a Navy Pilot upon graduation, heading down to Pensacola in September.

Michael W. Hirsch

Michael Hirsch AKA Heesh and Fo' Fo', is always down for a great time at the wonderful establishment known as Acme Bar and Grill. If he is not at Acme or doing school work he can be found on the lax field snagging mad nug pieces and yard-saleing many notables. Although he puts on a persona of a shaved head bad 'A', he is a caring and gentle person…off the field. The only Esteemed Ambassador to Upstate has a wonderful path of Nuclear Power to follow in (Gotta love that sixth choice).

Special Warfare

From training plebes so hard that he got relieved, to his term as 3rd Battalion Commander, Joe's work ethic, sense of humor, and capacity for tough PT have impressed everyone around him. Aside from his brief flirt with the "other" academy up north, Joe's loyalty to his friends and 13th Company has been unwavering. While this Ironman presents a stoic and usually serious face to the outside world, he never fails to appreciate the finer things in life (especially YouTube videos). Joe's strong moral conviction, creativity, and attention to detail have separated him as a role model for the entire Brigade, including his peers.

Devin Balboa, she's back in the game! Can nobody do what Dev does when she does it! Who did it? That music is weak beats, honkey. And those videos need funding. Neebeeshweets-it's not Polish?! Dev never swears; it's against the covenant. With the most contagious laugh and one-liners in the entire world, Devin can brighten anyone's day. The most hard-working person we know, Dev inspires us to be all we can be in the USN. America's Next Top Model, Noodles-I got NOTHING done tonight! What will we do without you Dev? You're going to take the SWO community by storm! Hope you get that window seat every time <3 Your heifer roommates

Jason Mariscal

SEALs

Jason is a prominent Incan baby SEAL warrior. His home is in the Dirty Jerz. He loves to tell his roommates exactly what he's doing every day. Jason is always in his room, has an open door policy and frequently uses his cell phone and email. Jason took on the role of 13th Co Ops, planning weekly events daily. Jason is always the man with the plan. His successful pursuit of SEAL selection came at a price of frequent workouts at ridiculous hours. Jason usually has to go to "that thing" with "those people" in "that uniform" at "that time" in the morning/afternoon/evening. He plans on attending BUD/S soon after graduation. He'll be fine.

Nathan T. Miller

Submarines

Nate "Low-Rider" Miller has been known to imitate the penguins of Happy Feet. Nasty Nate can never seem to please Rex even though he is a direct descendent. Although he's smooth with the ladies, he never could sink the hook into Newark. His prowess giving sailboat tours has impressed many a tourist. He can drink any man under the table, with his two-way digestive system. He's perfect for a party, earning his varsity letter sweater as the team DJ. The submarine force is a great match for this river rat because of his ability to ID any man on the team. Sons of the Severn.

Nicholas R. Miller

Navy Pilot

Coming to USNA all the way from Texas (or was it Kentucky?), Nick charmed his way into a Brigade Staff position…or was it two? Either way, Nick's cheery demeanor brought joy to all ranks of the Naval Academy. A frequenter of the Academy nightlife, he brought class to all occasions through tie night and cowboy boots. The Color Guard afforded him some missed opportunities to march in the world's biggest venues (the administration maintains he was supposed to march). Even though some still believe he is destined for the Corps, his eyes are set on Navy wings of gold. We wish you the best of luck. "Get loose. Get loud. Get crazy."

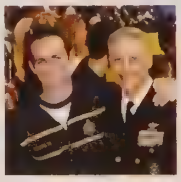
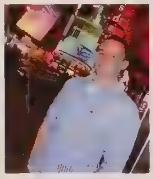
Right, Yes Matt, we know that if it wasn't for the Academy you'd be in the NFL. Make it rain Nimbus… #2 Biceps in the Brigade. "I'm country boy, but a gangster at heart." "I just wanna spread my wings" "Chewyyyyyyy" Matt Trick yo a$$ Reck. Forever lost.



Hunter L. Rogers

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Hunter came to the academy originally wanting to service select medical corps, but after losing countless hours of sleep and aging at twice the rate of his classmates during study (earning the nickname Old Man Rogers), he decided to shift his interest into Surface Warfare. While he was a Mid, Hunter was a member of the proud clan of Intramural Warriors and the Lucky Bag Staff. In his Firstie Year, he was the 13th Co Wardroom Rep. Also throughout his time at the Academy, he used his Netflix account probably more than any other Mid. Lastly, no matter what Jesse "Gangly" Rogers says, Hunter did not "steal" Jesse's bag on I-Day.



Jesse A. Rogers

USMC Ground

Hailing from the town of Salisbury, MD, Jesse Alan Rogers has dedicated his life to becoming a Marine. Aspiring to become a pilot like his father, Jesse suddenly decided that he would rather service select Marine ground…after failing the ASTB. As 13th company 1st LT, Jesse prided himself in fixing things. He even tried to fix things in Pat Croce's house in his sleep over Spring Break, but don't ever tell him it is "hot in here." As a group 3 history major and an avid drunk sleep walker, Jesse has become an active member of the Oovoo Forum, many phone calls a day to his fiancée club, and the constant texting team. Rah Marine Ground.

Tyler A. Ross

USMC Ground

Tyler Allyn Ross has been a Marine selectee since his birth. During his entire time at USNA, Tyler was always properly motivated and spread cheer left and right (excluding his Induction day when he lost his Reef Points shortly before being sworn into the US Navy). He always boasts good health, and excels in runs on straight roads. Tyler is usually "just tired" and loves to tell others to "stop drinking" shortly after they've started. No one can deny that he has a big heart, and just wants everyone to come together and love each other. A little known fact about Tyler is that his dad is, in fact, a Colonel in the US Air Force. In following his father's footsteps, Tyler decided to join the Ground community of the US Marine Corps. Tyler is a very proud member of the 2% club here at USNA, and will marry his beloved Kimberly after graduation during his time in the Corps. Semper Fi yut rah devil dog.

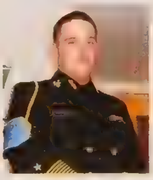
Philip M. Treadway

Naval Aviation



Philip Treadway, whose initials are a motivating "P.T.", is a proud West Virginian who laughs in the face of incestual comments, claiming that 'Kin-tucky', not West Virginia, is more 'dadgummed incestual' that good ol' WV. As a prior enlisted Marine, he took his roommates under his belt and helped to develop them into baby Marine officers. His penchant for weaponry, his disdain for single-celled organisms, and his sometimes terrifying love of his roommates will be missed at USNA. Who knows, maybe future midshipman will still be able to hear his uniquely terrible Scottish accent ringing through the Hall for generations to come. Caint

Natalie N. Woodward

OK. She's never been to Mexico, but she DEFINITELY knows the way. If she doesn't, she'll make it up and convince you she's right. Just take a cab ride with her. This Soccer Mom really knows how to party! When she's not taking care of her friends or driving around some Stowaways in a mini van, she can be found with some Canton in hand watching House on Hulu and singing along with Glee! With the voice of a rock star and the brains of a Group 2 major it's no surprise that she's trading in her stylish Khaki Slacks, Sweatshirt and Tennis-shoe outfit for a flight suit! So "for a WHILE we can share the night" and let's raise a glass to one of the most successful Soccer Moms to walk the halls of Bancroft! Way to go Mo! ~She thanks her family and the Holloways for EVERYTHING!

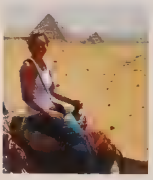
BC! Get.It.Up. This one time in Montana....and that's how her jaw really never was the same. The broth. Salty crab, San Clemente: Kicked out with the Troop Commander. One confirmed tomahawk kill. I want to be under a boat with you. Is this? Van brawls. Slap the bag during snowpocalypse. I was in but she... I lift things up and put them down. Sensei. Meatball. Battle. Conan grip. I turn purple when I get in cold water, literally purple. Frybread. Why do they call da field Farragut? Running 50 miles through the woods. Dohn't...in the sink. Mixup at the Parreira's. My dad's a backpacker. DUMP! not-McDonald's.



Amanda J. Buckley

USMC Ground

Amanda Jane Buckley is convinced she has the best set of survival skills known to man, but the rest of us know she is just skilled at placing herself in ridiculous life threatening situations, to name a few: Costa Rica, the docks/water of DTA, and tramping through winter tempests. It is impossible to have an ordinary night out with this woman, and she usually doesn't remember the last half of it. The "pahties" are always epic whether they are on a "pahking" structure "ruff" or the streets of DTA. Amanda Buckley is an extraordinary person who will never let anyone bring her or her friends down, and if you try, she will cut you.

Joshua D. Ciocco

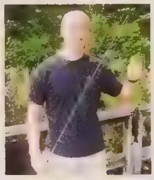
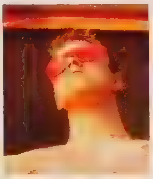
Panda. Chacoco. Inflatable legs. It's the Panda diet plan: eat only a pear all day, and then at night, eat an entire PIE! I'm gonna eat the pie if I want to! HUNGER MONSTER, must eat... Mover of weight. Cleans… and more cleans… and squats. Balalabi. Baaa. Eating an entire box of oreos in one sitting. Eating everything. Speaking jibberish into his headphones late at night. Sleeping with the good ol' Evan Williams on the camping trip. NARP hater. The rock of all aqua rocks.

WIlliam B. Craven

Navy Pilot



The Southern boy golden child, Will Craven's hair is arguably the most famous at the academy. His promoter/ barber Louise trims him up real nice down at the Brigade barber shop and plasters this poster child's face all over her wall. Between pipe smoking, blow guns, throwing knives, and rubber band balls, he's a man of many crafts. He also claims he quit dipping…every week. Luckily for this soccer goalie who hates running more than those damn northern yanks, he's a member of the 2% club and has a girlfriend who is commonly mistaken as his sister to keep him in line. He still believes the south won, but the word Sherman quickly burns that thought down. Y'all better be ready for this next poster child pilot to light the skies on fire with his blazing blonde flow in Pensacola.



Fred Darlington IV

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the mighty state of Rhode Island, Darlingo, also known as Banana chin no middle name Darlington, spent most of his days in Fort Strong playing Call of Duty 'til 5 AM, and carbo-loading out of Goober's con locker to train for his next big marathon that would inevitably put him on chit. If Fred wasn't snoozing all afternoon to promote his nocturnal lifestyle he'd be found in the head of 7th wing gym practicing his fire-breathing dragon techniques. Team Strong is eternally grateful for Courtney, Fred's greatest contribution and source of power for the team. As a sign of true love his roommates bribed the service selection committee to create the Cockpit, YOU'RE WELCOME

Nicholas C. Dunn

Navy Pilot

Few have attained the level of sheer academic, military, and stress management prowess as Connor Dunn. He claims L.A. as his home, yet his mannerisms suggest an "ol' west" attitude. A contributor to the rules of 7259, Mr. Dunn has managed to uphold them to the highest standard, with a special emphasis on rule #1. An avid MATLAB user, Connor has a love/hate relationship with his computer that has slowly gone south over time. When Connor isn't yelling at his computer or watching jet porn on youtube, he is proving that it doesn't matter how many Starbucks double shots you consume – it is impossible to stay awake in Thermo.

Kevin G. Edwards II

Surface Warfare Officer

After starting his Naval Academy career by being ranked at the top of 14th company, he has continued to raise the bar throughout his time here. He is part of one of the most winning classes to ever come through the Academy and is the first football player to start in three Notre Dame Victories in Navy History. Besides football, Kevin loves to go the Park and with his friends on the weekend. Kevin's best moments come in the morning when he loves to tell how he slept and talk about his upcoming day. Kevin is a SWOtivated individual who is fully ready to lead from the front as part of Crew Fearless.

Kyle W. Galarneau

Naval Flight Officer

Hey Brian, Brian, BRIAN! The good ole Mass born, cowboy boot wearing, girl car driving, Jack D wanna-be drinking grandpa of the company that swears he knows his ABC's. He's known as a real PT stud, or at least he would be if his arms weren't so long. Never afraid to give everyone in traffic a piece of his mind, he'll swerve right in front of you to show that he's right. A rare gift from god, or the most annoying trait ever cursed to a human, his whispers have been heard from across Annapolis he's so loud. At least his pilot won't have a problem hearing him. Never afraid to have girl talk with someone, better yet, it's his forte. Despite all of these "qualities", he's sure to blaze through flight school at the top. Pensacola, watch out (you might need earplugs). VDM, TDR, BSS

Joel D.C. Harding

Submarines

The token ginger of 14th Company, he was a step ahead from day one. The quiet kid from Lancaster, Pennsylvania surprised when he outran, out pull-upped, and out biked us all. Not to mention a Chesapeake IronMan…11:49:40. Move over Hank the Tank; there's a new beast in town. And when anyone in 14 was hungry, they knew where to turn. In spite of his strengths, Joel's big weakness finally came to light: girls. Despite 6-pack abs and manly features, this guy's face turned as red as his hair when he talked with a pretty lady. He's come a long way since Plebe year and is destined to break his share of southern belle hearts in Charleston.

Benjamin R. Hoover

Naval Flight Officer

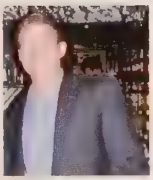
What to say about The Hoov? His unyielding smile and positive attitude could brighten up any room. He was never cynical, always pumping iron or maxing PRTs and would be found ironing creases into his uniform or displaying his raging high-and-tight. When he wasn't chugging protein shakes, doing braced-buddy-bear-crawl-rifle-rack-races or performing log PT he could be found in his room hard at work. As a tireless academic he is sure to contribute to the USA with his General Science degree. His true life's motto: "If it ain't raining, we ain't trainin'!" So here's to you, BeHoo, a hardcore plebe destroyer and model Marine. Semper Fi!

Sean A. Johnson

Navy Pilot

Cobra Commander+West Texas=the dumbest rocket scientist we've ever met. A man so great he needed two first names, SeanJohn's powerful legs would finish any debate. A founding member of Strong, Sean was DTSO and mastered teleportation. NBD, he had a truck. But seriously, BD. SeanJohn was always JK-living, walking, or drinking. He once hunted Pirates while "sweating" into his chair. To know SeanJohn was to know frustration at the hands of his intentionally dumb answers. He is the man who brought stargazers to Protramid and passed out during Shamoo's show. Survived the Freezeout of '08. The SeanJohn: One part whiskey followed by another part whiskey. Enjoy responsibly.

Timothy A. Kain



Robert P. Kay Jr.

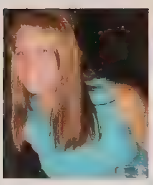
USMC Ground

To Plebes, Rob Kay is both the cuddly cadre and the Firstie who makes them study off-deck twice a week. To residents of 7-2, he's the constant presence who speaks animatedly and uses the "knife hand" as a visual aid. The cadets of West Point remember him as the guy on the D-3 grappling team who completely wrecks people. To the Brigade of Midshipmen, he's the bellowing voice who yells, "REPORT." But, to those closest to him, Rob is a caring friend, driven student, and effective leader. We're not sure what makes him tick, but whatever it is, it will push him to excel in grad school, TBS, and wherever the U.S. of A decides to unleash him.

James K. Kelly

Submarines

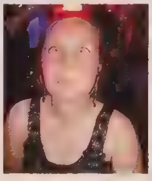
A consummate gentleman of marked mathematical ability—James hails from the great state of New Jersey, the home of both Princeton and Fist Pumping. "Jimbo" as he is known to his shipmates, has enjoyed great success in both physics and fieldball during his time at the United States Naval Academy, leading the 14th Company Team to multiple finals. James has spent his leisure time playing racquetball, establishing rules for 7259, and honing his cribbage skills. Armed with an intellect and a wit to match, James should take on the challenges of the Nuclear Navy with the pragmatism which has seen him through his four years by the Bay.



Baileigh E. Kimball

Navy Pilot

Clue: This amazing person is # 35 on the Women's Lax team, service selected Navy Pilot, and dreams to fly even higher as an astronaut. Answer: Who is Baileigh Erin Kimball!? Bails never ceases to amaze her roomies and fellow Geek Squad members by having all of her homework done for the next eight weeks. Potential suitors beware of the many Bancroft Nerds that avidly stalk her and provide a constant stream of offerings (quesadillas). Prone to constant moods swings, steer clear if you see a large bag of M&Ms and hear nineties alternative rock or Taylor Swift. You have the potential to do anything, use it for good. We love you!



Alison M. Lankes

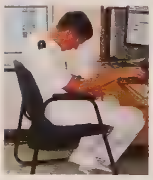
Naval Flight Officer

Alison was the innocent Catholic girl from Buffalo when she came to USNA. Once an Aero, she chose to have a social life in Group 3 excellence! Once she chose to have a social life again, fun summer nights at Armadillo's and a ginger best friend were sure to follow. "Don't worry I'll distract them!" She has come a long way from a beginner to one of the best rifle shooters in the NCAA. Hopefully she won't get too lost as an NFO, but she'll look hot in a flight suit. "And she's a pretty big fan of Typhoid Mary" I love you twin! Have fun, good luck, and let the force of Doris guide your planes!

Amanda M. Lau

Medical Corps

According to the Amanda Ling-Ling Lau Uncertainty Principle, it is impossible to determine the exact location of Amanda and her HPSP scholarship at the same time. Between bouts of ridiculing Rex and listening to exciting lectures on the joys of electrical engineering, Amanda could often be found solving analytical equations that would make Robert Bunsen quake in his grave... while baking delicious cookies. If you see her around, be sure to tell her that USUHS called, and they are still waiting for that last recommendation letter. Also, Mike and Jake are confused again and could really, REALLY use some guidance.



Michael J. Laws

Surface Warfare Officer

Although he calls a quiet suburb in the Jerz home, the Corps fine tuned this subversive E-dog. With the motto "just act like you're doing what you're supposed to be doing…," weekday libo, civies, and a car as a plebe quickly followed. Wonder why your computer suddenly stopped working? Blame Mike Laws. You may not expect the guy that made giving Ward Hall the finger his life mission to be the adventurous type. Then again, I didn't expect him to call me from a Life Flight helicopter to recount his most recent story of breaking himself while downhill mountain biking. When he finally does create Skynet, just hope he's on your side.

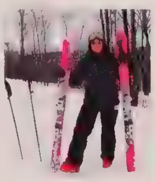
Jesse D. Marder

Submarines

Appletinis, Siiir! I'm expecting SEALs… and payments… Way to go by starting the MCM fad… now Yousef is obsessed with "extreme" sports. That cute puppy video is so cute!! You're soo cute, Jesse… no, you're cute... "I feel like I could stop reading this half-way through – it's such a bad biography… I'd rather read about Shannon's and my secret relationship." –Yeah, Jesse said that. The mumbler forever. Always wearing the same TEVA sandals and spittle in the MIDS picture. To infinity – well, wherever rockets go – and beyond! You make everyone smile and we can always count on your perspective.

Emma K. McCarthy

Submarines



Emma Kathryn McCarthy loves marine wildlife, especially SEALs. Being raised as a 21 "joe" some would say it was a difficult transition in her perfectly spit shined shoes. This 2/C "Love Chitter," however, has never failed to find an outlet for her competitive attitude. After retiring from the lacrosse team, she became a competitive NARP. She can always be seen riding her bike or heading to Lejeune for a swim. Despite being a Disney Princess at heart as an outgoing and caring friend she will have no trouble becoming a part of the "boys club" on a Sub. Hopefully she won't ruin anyone's "pizza eating experience" during MidRats.

Victorino D.B. Mercado

Naval Flight Officer

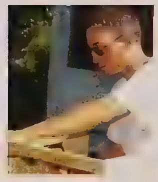
Owner of an American drivers license, Dan is a recent immigrant to the U.S. from Reminbi land where he enjoyed getting high off laughing gas with Uncle Benny and singing Asian folk songs. Recent scientific research has shown that he is indeed not a dragon. Dan's amazing talent to hold the same level from beers 2-12, just look for his glow while he leads the charge on the dance floor. He has burned down the dance floor at 9th wing on multiple occasions. He's sure to get a record deal soon with his remix of Lolli Lolli, look for his debut single, Rorri Rorri. He promises to wear a cheap suuuuuit to the premier (real cheap, cheap as hell). Let's just hope he doesn't get to shreeeepy in the back of his plane. Hey Dan. Everybody loves Dan. TDR, BSS, JBT, KWG.

Robert T. Merkert Jr.

Naval Flight Officer

Robert "The Flow" Merkert redefined and revolutionized the definition of reg haircut at the academy. A true pioneer in the flow-volution, the chia pet on his head really has a mind of its own. If he's not watching movies or sleeping an average of 16 hours a day, he's at the "golf course" til 9pm living the high life. Watch out for rufies down in Florida it's been known to happen to golfers… Heads up P-cola, Robert and his penthouse crew will be burning the bars down one by one and making their mark in Naval Aviation history. And this new bird hunting enthusiast won't have to blast 30 flamingos in a wildlife sanctuary to do it either.

Joshua M. Morgan



Submarine Warfare

Hey Bud. Wouldn't that be sweet! Choke! Who knew the Secret Service would mistake a HERO for a RAT? "Yea, I know, all I've ever done is read books and watch movies, but one day…" Nerd anthem? #*%$'em. Hero Project 1.0 fail. Let me tell you why I suck… EE was a swell decision. Dr. Firebaugh would be proud. 4269706F 6C617220 77697468 2068696E 74206F66 20417370 65726765 72277300. Hero Project 2.0, you can't argue with results! B-Bear. How does that grab ya! Ge'ez, ya know, I'm tired. Dr. Seuss socks and Ritz, what more could you ask for? LOVE. We'll tend rabbits… I stand by that!

Patrick J. Norwood

Navy Pilot

Patrick Norwood, AKA: The Blob. Duurraegh! Pat was really three roommates: him, his ass, and the phone stuck to his ear. He could lose an argument by just picking up the phone and his 5 times daily conversations would pierce any sound canceling headphones. The only time we saw Pat move fast was when his tiny bladder would force him into another trip to the head, prompting a duck fart and missed phone call. Hospital Point was always too far. Pat depleted Netfilx's stock of movies while slumbering to annoying bluegrass. He regularly ate an entire pizza and ordered another sandwich, just in case. No car, no home, tiny hands, and a big heart. He threw stuff too. We think.

Galen D. Ober

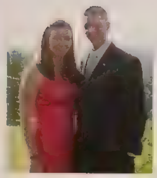
Navy Pilot

Bonerstorm will always be remembered with the words of Sleazy J: "Obes! Obes! Obes!" The finest Hygiene Officer 14 was ever graced with, Goobs dedicated his life to clean drainpipes for all. Despite how all he ever did was sleep and not share his snacks Galen had an unearned physique to show off to the ladies. But even this didn't help as he struck out multiple times across two different continents forcing him to eventually settle for a foreign girlfriend who didn't know how to say "No" in English. Goobs made an art of getting out of stuff. From lifeguarding to football games to drill to intramurals, this man put more effort into being lazy than anyone before him. Long live the Obes.

Taylor D. Robertson

USMC Pilot

Where to start with this stumpy, grumpy 'ol feller? Lobes wakes up on the wrong side of the bed, every morning. Remember when things stayed in the box? A chest is a better choice. But then again, those tiny hands of yours wouldn't be able to handle that chest all too well. He also enjoys midnight showers in random houses, diabetes, daily haircuts, and looks to Wilford Brimley as a mentor. Permanent forecast: Hurricanes with a chance of burned bridges. But putting Vampires, spider turkeys, and the occasional First Class (2008) sister aside, an awesome dude and roommate for four years, the Corps better watch out! VDM, BSS, JBT, KWG.



Jonathan T. Schneckenburger

USMC Pilot

What can a person say about Jon Schneckenburger? Perhaps you could say that he has been attending school for longer than most of us have been alive. Whether you call him by Schneck, Shnookums, or Coach Schneckenperry, he will always answer. As a super motivated Marine, Jon was a HUGE fan of Leatherneck. Jon regales us all with his great impersonations; all of which are met with laughter. A member of the 2% club we know that Jon will be happy forever in whatever designer clothes his significant other dresses him up in. Although he never had a plebe year Jon learned all the lessons of it: teamwork, friendship, kindness, and humility. A good friend -Shark attack.

Brian S. Stacy

USMC Ground

I remember when I won leatherneck. Must be due to a steady diet of diesel fuel and haircuts. Oh wait, his hair grows high and tight. His hobbies include equipping his truck with TOW missiles, anti-aircraft missiles, land mines, and the most expensive damn mirrors ever created. Never afraid to throw on some jorts and attract all the biddies along with a few gay guys, take a joy ride to the holocaust museum, or climb into an unsuspecting person's bed. When asked why he does it, a standard response often sounds something like bleep blop bloop or AAAAH WHAAAAAA! But don't worry, it's orange. Don't let the high pitched hehehe fool you, the Corps has another thing coming (a specimen known as B-Stace). Memories aside, without a doubt will be the greatest contribution the Corps has ever seen (or at least the truck mirror industry). TDR, VDM, JBT, KWG.

Caleb L. Stevens

Naval Aviation

This country boy from the sticks of WV blossomed into quite the social butterfly during his stay on the Yard! His easy going personality endeared him to any mid who met him. Weekends over the last two and a half years were guaranteed to be spent with Mandy, now his lovely fiancée. A future Naval Aviator, he hopes an aero degree was worth all the suffering. Speaking of suffering, the plebes under this second set squad leader experienced little, as texts to Mandy abounded throughout the summer. Let's hope he eventually learns to drive the bus…or plane. Who would've thought a redneck without a high school diploma could come so far? JH

Joshua J. Stewart

Surface Warfare Officer

Joshua "Jack3d" Stewart, "JAY-JAY!" for short. A real silent type, drives a '93 jeep wrangler "till the day he dies", fly-fisherman, Navy Rugby player, member of the "Flying Circus"-- Poinsettia Bowl in SD 2010, missing the flight home for Christmas, Absinthe....best idea ever, a ladies man ("…hey you, ya you"), a true friend… He's the most interesting man in the world. Stay thirsty my friends ("Makers Made!")

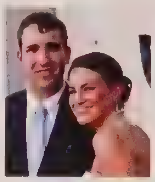
Joshua B. Teeman

Nuclear Surface Warfare

The bottomless pit who stays at a buck fifty, someones gotta be the skinny kid. Just call him Mr. Mountain Dew. He drinks a little Mountain Dew. Just kidding. He drinks a lot of Mountain Dew. His net earnings from three trips to the casino total to over $5700, almost enough to cover the cost of his wrecked Ford Mustang. No Josh, Mustangs don't do well in snow, duh. By the way, we promise not to use your big ass TV as a stool, ladder, jungle gym, or anything of the sort. Hey remember us all when you're richer than a Beverly Hillbilly in OKC, with an even bigger TV. VDM, TDR, BSS

Michael P. Wallace

Surface Warfare Officer



Hailing from the Old Dominion State, 1/C Wallace is 14th Company's most SWO-tivated leader. Tirelessly conducting uniform inspections and ensuring the presence of ID Cards, Mike upholds [even] the most trivial regulations, a trait gained from VF. His athletic intensity is to be both admired and feared, in either handball or street hockey, he fights for victory. Academically, Mike lives a life of scholarship. Whether rating the 4/C to gain international awareness or playing Empire to better understand the military-industrial complex, Mike breathes Poli Sci. With this foundation Mike should become the Sea Warrior he has striven to be.

Bryan J. Wilson

This 6; 10" monster from the land of steers and queers was known by his posse of 5' 2" minions that followed him like ducklings. Seen on a monthly basis making the Ward Hall walk of shame, J-Wil clicks on anything and everything on the internet. Youtubing thicky thicks and Cherokee booty are a few of his favorite hobbies as well as spacing out. He hopes one day Texas secedes from the Union so he can move back to his motherland, live on his ranch and eat second rate BBQ. You won't miss this giant when he's the next President of the United States of Texas.

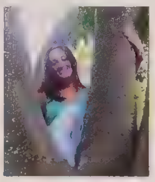
"I absolutely love the scientific method… I hate history… the kidney is such an amazing organ, guys!" Get SAT. Stop listening to Coldplay and Yanni. Wanna go run with a heart-beat monitor? Yeah, get movin'! OCD… you are. He claims to have never touched a Bancroft floor with bare feet. Found a girlfriend yet? "I'm never gunna date anyone." Oh, Yousef, it was really a pleasure getting to know you and your kind and caring ways. Your hard work and dedication will always take you far. "Let's go clubbin' in D.C.!"… 3 hours later… "Hey guys, I gotta get to the library…" I got Med Corps, now I don't give a f… When's your tee time?



Laura B. Baumgartner

Navy Pilot

Laura will forever be a fiesty goat to us. The first 5 hours of our roommate-hood were…silent. She'd say her favorite color was "whatever you wanted it to be" but don't ask her to make small talk; you know what… Laura does make small talk now! We've learned she does love naps…who cares if maintenance is there. And Britney Spears dancing totally counts as cardio. It's crazy that Laura ended up with Seth because after spring break 08 I'd have matcher her with Conkle. Who knew that Oklahoma was about colorful skirts and document hands…oh bedtime chats. There are midget dragons on the other path. The greatest thing to come from the 'firstie-year I.D. mess' was the espresso maker. Loved living with you but more than that we loved laughing with you and becoming friends.

Stephen M. Betzler

Submarines

Stephen Betzler, always quick to stand up for what he believes. He once tried to be an intramural warrior... and failed. Snowpocalypse kept him from the Super Bowl so he spent that money at Pusser's instead. He likes country concerts more for the feel-good experience then the music. The best driver, even under extreme circumstances, he's always on Rex's good side. You can usually find Lurch looming or texting. Sons of the Severn.

Kaitlin E. Boensel

Navy Pilot

As a Navy brat and water polo brawler, Kaitlin is a joyous font of caustic sarcasm. She was born to flame, and has never hesitated to decimate the lowly peons foolish enough to step out of line. An indefatigable squad-table dinosaur and weekly consumer of several small nations' worth of gummy snacks, she has left indelible dents in four years of plebes and roommates, as well as some permanent bloodstains in the floor wax. Bancroft's hallowed halls will be emptier without the echoes of her furious pre-formation diatribes and her strident battle cry of, "I…ARE…EN-GUH-NEER!" God bless her career, and heaven help her first command.

Matthew F. Brendel

Surface Warfare Officer

What will you do with your life? …We still don't know at the time of writing this. Remember when the streets nearly ran red with your blood… Who knew 20 Jamaican dollars was worth so much? Likes rice and bikes… yeah, really interesting stuff for youngster year. Always preferring small, cute, Asians. Georgetown, D.C: the worst way 4 people could spend a Saturday night. Violent oranges wars. We're excited and eager to see where your future takes you. Excel spreadsheets in the 435th dimension… Loves to plan. We love you, man. Keep it clean.

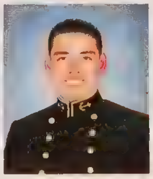
Sienna L. Brown

Submarine Corps

A native of the San Francisco Bay Area, Sienna was an example of divine providence and impeccable timing. She entered the Academy with the intention of becoming a submariner and somehow, in spite of the fact she was an English major, managed to become one. From her ear-piercing chowcalls to her unique hairstyle and a few TMI moments from plebe year, Sienna has left a lasting mark on the lives of her company mates.

Kevin S. Carlsen

Surface Warfare Officer



Kevin, who came from the enlisted ranks and brought wisdom, fun and humor to many situations. Always a friend when you needed someone to talk and laugh with. Helped a future Marine Officer make it threw 6 weeks of Plebe Summer and walked away at graduation with a brother. Threw many career twists and turns ended up being what you came here for, a leader of sailors as a SWO. Only thing that matters is how bad you want it. Enjoy no more swim class and studying for engineering. Remember "If you told me I would be at the Naval Academy four years after leaving High School, I would say your crazy!" Well life is crazy, Kevin, so enjoy it!

Michael J. Charlton

Naval Flight Officer

Whether it's getting clean at the local Scrub a Dub or catching late night rides outside of Gate 8, Mike Charlton has certainly had an interesting Naval Academy career. After all was said and done, specifically an induction into a certain secret society, a majors change (as well as a few other types of majors) and a short lived animal shelter experiment in good 'ol Mother B, it appears as though Mike will graduate after all. That is, if he doesn't get hit by a car on the way to the stage.

The keeper of King Hall MILK… lugging gallons of Arizona tea… "But I drink it!" The only man who loves talk radio. Take to the skies – we sincerely hope you make it to Mars.

John Z. Coughlin

Andrew M. Driver

USMC Ground

Andy, I will always remember how much you loved home, working out, and watching football. You had a dramatic change in your four years at the Naval Academy and even though you may have hated being here, it made you who you are today. Keep working hard as a Marine Corps Officer and GO DUCKS!

Joseph R. Flores

Surface Warfare Officer

Old man Flores… A special gift to us from the Sub force. An inspiration to all with the determination that carried him all the way to Super Bowl '10 runner up. Disney, Legos, Star Wars, and Bill O'Reilly all sum up a day in the life for the sultan of salty. A true trailblazer, he managed to become the only MIDN to receive a Captain's mast while on summer training. Youngstar year YP's. Renaissance men have nothing on MIDN 3/C Flores who was able to make a grill cheese, with an iron, while on watch. Maintaining the 0% sub retention rate, the Sammy B will be glad to see this pinned dolphin waking up just in time to see the sunset.

Stephen P. Friedrick

Navy Pilot

Who can question your unparalleled performance as a Midshipman? You maxed every PRT, you aced every exam, and you were a great friend. Earning the title of "Iron Mike" at Leatherneck was only a small accomplishment for a future Naval Aviator but has prepared you for those treacherous runs to the ready room. Despite the many close calls you were always able to keep your morals intact, especially during those 4 girl/5 guy situations or when a Marine Corps Sergeant offers you a drink. You have truly prepared yourself to protect the freedoms of all the Pepsi drinkers and Florida fans around the world.

Brandon J. Futrell

USMC Aviation

Brandon, The Academy definitely proved to be what you thought it would be: challenging. However, always remember that you must go through something to get something. You survived this challenge now on to the next one. "Even the longest journey begins with the first step" -- Chinese Proverb.

David J. Heider

Navy Pilot

A sensual man with Pennsylvania roots, David Heider found his way to the Naval Academy by the way of NAPS. In his time in the 15th company, David was known for his undying loyalty to all things Pittsburgh sports, his engineering prowess, and his ever entertaining stories. The name David Heider will not soon be forgotten throughout the hallowed halls of Bancroft, even though one may never catch him entering through the back door.

Christopher M. Jackson

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Every word out of Chris is bound to be about being outdoors. Shitty weather, he's excited and hopes for another snowpocolypse. He won't pass on a gear or climbing manual in his quest to become a jack of all trades, and if he's stuck in Annapolis, he's on Stumble watching another video on climbing. Dave, Brian, Laura, and Seth can attest every night that starts with "You Won't!" ends with a story. Good thing EOD will keep him entertained until he leaves the military to become a Patagonia guide. Don't be surprised if you can only reach Chris by satellite phone in 20 years because he'll be living in a cave on some snow covered peak.

Brendan H. Jones

Never thought bow tie and hillbilly could be used in the same sentence, but Brendan Hunter Jones of New Albany, Indiana makes it happen. He's always living life one FPCON Charlie at a time. Robert E.Q. Newman

Navy Pilot

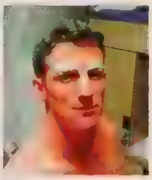
Robert "Panda" Newman has most certainly left his mark at USNA. His California smile and "soft hair" flow garden have been the envy of many a mid and have even caught the eye of a few. Never a Marine but always faithful, a swimmer, a princess, and a peach couldn't keep him from his true love. He will best be remembered for listening to those bands that you probably never heard of, Schofield's final second "Show me something" superstar, and being a great friend, but don't let him near your mother's gravestone. From sweaty pop can to company commander this guy might exemplify a California Dreamer.

Olaf D. Olson



SEALs

Spider monkey. Soup Sandwich. An incredible athlete. A friend. A brother. Always someone I look forward to seeing. Olaf has been one of the biggest influences here at the Naval Academy for me and I owe him a lot. He even set me up with my love unexpectedly. I'll never stop thanking him for that... We've sweat and bled together. We compete and literally are always trying to outdo the other. I hate it...but I love it too. Thanks for being such a bro my man. I look forward to picking up your pathetically weak slack in the coming years and hopefully, for many many years to come.
Love, Joel

Brian J. Paskey

Navy Pilot

Someone was watching out for us when they sent Brian Paskey to the Academy, someone in our group of friends needed to own a vehicle with more than 2 seats. Every group also needs that voice of reason to almost always ignore and hey, puking can't be everyone's "thing". From the powder covered slopes of Utah to the ice covered hills of white tail, from the depths of an unnamed cave, to soaring over the Appalachian Mountains, a true connoisseur of a good adventure. Its no wonder the life of a Navy pilot caught his attention. After all, never underestimate a man and his rolley chair cause if nothing else, "I'll show you empty!"

David M. Price

METOC

You wouldn't believe a story of Dave's life even if you were there watching it. He has some of the best and worst luck of anyone I have ever met. From passing a stone to jumping into the unknown, always does it live whether it is running up his credit card, "its just money," spelunking for nude girls, or that nurse... Dave always jumps into things head first with no thought of looking back. He has always been the trusted weather man even if his predictions lead us into sub zero temperatures for an unforgivable night. It's a good thing he can predict the weather, otherwise this pilot would go crazy living on the ground.

Ashley N. Robinson

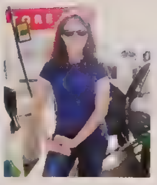
USMC Ground

Ashley Nizhonlii Robinson was the first person that I met at the Academy, even though we didn't realize it for a few months while we were at NAPS. Rob is the type of person that tells you how it is whether you want to hear it or not, just like a true friend should. I have always admired how sociable, outspoken, and dependable a person she is. We have been friends for over four years now and I know that there are many more to come. I know that I haven't been able to go out to DTA with you, but we will definitely party it up in Vegas and I will show you some of my famous dance moves…hahah! Thank you for including me in your wedding; I am honored to be a part of your big day. I wish you and Gil all of the happiness in the world. Lastly, I would like to say I love you and WE MADE IT! -JSV

Bradley W. Seidel

Navy Pilot

Awww Herrrro! Bradley William Seidel came to us from Toledo, Ohio. Born with a squash racquet in hand he was ready to BRO-OUT for all his life. Probably the nicest guy you will ever meet and always smiling, especially when random girls need squash lessons or want to take photos with him in every city in the Northeast. What ever did happen to that cell phone by the way? Always making trips in a variety of cars and coming back late on Sunday nights, because of a flat tire? Oh wait, that's right it was traffic. The Godfather of Moochers, Brad is always looking good and dresses nicely…in someone else's clothes. FLY FAST, FLY NAVY!

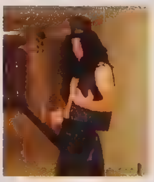


Shannon O. Shaw

Surface Warfare Officer

The Amish. Why? How much does love cost? A $600 phone bill to Jesse's Bangladesh. Should I go SWO, MARINE CORPS!, or dental corps? No, space cadet is best for me. Why can't we just wear cool uniforms? –Tie-dye shirts, Birkenstock sandals, and Amish bonnets. "Jesse, do you think they know yet about our r-e-l-a-s-h-i-o-n-s-h-i-p?" How can you make Cambridge sound cool? …You can't; it's inherently stupid. "-Thanks, Jesse." Yogurt and bread: can I have more!? Come on, everyone likes dance parties! Fine, you wanna go clubbing? "-I'm wearing sweatpants!" Good at crafts and writing notes. We love puppies just as much as we love you. <3

Eugene Soto



Andrew M. Szoch

Naval Flight Officer

Szoch, Caveman, Szoccer, Andy, Muffin Man, and most of all Slash. We will remember him for all his names and the stories that go along with them. Wales was fun, except that one night with the muffin…. Just working to stay alive, no time for schoolwork, gotta get big bro. Remember to always keep it real, you always have. Sick Dude.

Seth M. Tompkins

USMC Pilot

Where do we start with Seth Tompkins? To go in depth we really have to take the pants off. You see, Seth is a simple man who would rather be out in the bay during a tropical storm than stuck inside doing homework. He'd rather climb walls than a corporate ladder, and he'd rather make a marble cake than a layer cake (a lesson he shouldn't have taught his girlfriend). Who knew someone could be from Wisconsin and be cool, all while wearing the same hat for FOUR YEARS? From clean room camping to Annapolis bar crawling, I couldn't pick a better friend to share it all with; even if he left his real friends in Colorado.

John C. White

Navy Pilot

"YEAAHH DAAWG!" JC is straight from da ATL…but feels at home with a pair of topsiders and crokies. John Charles is so well rounded, (including muffin top) his uncanny ability to get everything done academically, be the best Navy football punter*, win 8 nation championships in NCAA football '11 all the while still able to perform breakthrough exploration and research on the potent "TRAINus SICKimus" virus. Damn Coconut Cruzan. What an innovator…got fried for listening to music, dated a psycho wITCH, and got told to shut up at a squash match.

Momma always said "Stupid is as stupid does," and Bowe L. Barger finally did it! Bowe L.'s movement from Southern Belle to chasing commissioned tail has definitely made a splash. An artist from Podunkadelphia, Arkansas, Bowe has crafted many works in Company Area. Bowe's Fulfill Your Destiny™ style mural (originally set to be completed in 2009) will never be finished, condemned to the annals of history. For reference, Michelangelo painted the Sistine Chapel in four years. But we can't taint the artistic process with silly deadlines. If you've seen Bowe's natural hair color, call 1-800-555-0069. It hasn't been seen in years.

Granger K. Benson

USMC Ground

Granger Benson hails from the town of Bellefonte in the great state of Pennsylvania, or God's Country, as he affectionately refers to it. While most nights would find him nestled comfortably in apartment 2131 on his A-team sheets, he is by no means lazy. While at the academy, he co-created one of the greatest organizations known to mankind, Motel 6, and would like to thank Mike Nolan, the other co-creator. Weekends would find him with so many activities to do, thankfully Jojo Catrini and Jordan Foley could always be convinced to come along. He would like to thank all of his brothers on SFB, his friends, his family, and even his traitor of a brother (a West Point cadet) for all of the love, support, and awesome times over the past 4 years. "Strength and Honor!"

Hunter R.P. Briley

Navy Pilot

"Did I tell you I went to Japan?!" Not only is he cultured and better than us in every way, his high class drinking style (a.k.a. feminine) frowns upon lowly beer drinkers. But this perfectly mixed vanilla and chocolate baby faced boy wasn't always so smooth. From throwing snowballs at the OOW and getting kicked out of football games for being too festive, to drunkenly screaming inappropriate insults at less than fortunate ladies. Watching Hunter-bear transform into someone even Colin Powell would approve of has been a pleasure. Here's to Janet, the Manor, suspicious blue stained pants, and grape Cigarillos. Stay classy.

Clifton R. Bukowsky II

Surface Warfare Officer

Country Crankshaft Clif (one F) Bukowsky the Naval Academy's first and only "Midbroneck" to graduate. Half-midshipman, half-Florida beach bro, and half-redneck. A dwarf among midgets, he can be found riding through town on his trusty steed his FORD F-250 duramax-hemi diesel equipped with every available unnecessary feature on the market. Do not be short with him. Bass fear him, midgets look up to him, hybrids avoid him, and people get hooked when they experience all Buko has to offer. Great things come in small packages and for Clif, if he ain't country he'll kiss your bass.

Addison J. Carr

Surface Warfare Officer

The Mr. Addison James Carr is not only a dignitary but a true champion of American Ways. An entrepreneur versed in the ways of the Deep South, lifestyle is a practice not absent from his unique routine. Rising oft early to get Swol, he would often be found working late into the night "Like a Boss!" True to the word and title itself, Mr. Carr is a Boss. On the weekends, he marshals his troops to fight battle against the local barkeeps and often pursues his investments at the Subway Club. However, he is, above all else a great friend and the Centurion family wishes him the success that he is due for out in Japan. Run Addison Run!

Nicholas Celone

Naval Aviation

Nicholas (N-piece, Nicky P, Princess) Celone is known for investing heavily in "product", but its only necessary to keep a flow like his formed up. Having a styled flow is a requirement for four stripers and above. Nick was reminded everyday by his roommates how important his four stripes were. Always outfitted with creative head accessory (hat, bandana, etc), Nick also had the most memorable 21st birthday, for all who can remember it. Congrats for getting on top of the Hill, it's just too bad there's not enough preppy hotties in Annapolis. Let's hope you don't need to light any more candles. Keep it bossy.

Matthew A. Clyncke

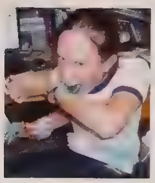
Growing up in the cheese state, I mean Kansas, no wait, South Carolina, ok fine, Maryland. The tallest of the lollipop guild had a rough time growing up as an aspiring rapper but, football saved him. As a varsity coach for Navy he spent most of his time helping out his football buddies when he wasn't at home mowing the lawn for his mom. Although he doesn't like to get his hands dirty his dream of receiving his first EGB came after years of training to become a Marine officer or maybe it was just the 6 months of TAD that attracted him. Either way he's not in Kansas anymore. OORAHH Coshmaster5000!

Lauren M. Cotter



Naval Aviation

Always smiling, giggling or laughing, you were always able to tell if Lauren was around! With her music selections ranging from metal to musicals, her outstanding performance on the rugby field, and her tendency to sleep through a few alarms, there was never a dull moment living around her. So much energy, no coffee or sugar please! And who would have ever predicted a wedding the day after graduation! She'll make one fine Naval Aviator. We love you Laruen and will miss your smiles around 16th company!

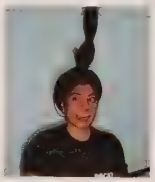
Maine, cross-fit, Guinness, short-shorts, cougars, an obvious indication of testicular cancer, and an endless future supply of milk. Nobody is sure how he made it in. It's likely his interview went like this. "Hey Alex! I'm Senator Tom Lobster. Tell me 45 useless facts about Maine!" It's a good thing the entrance exam wasn't a dot to dot. But it's not about where you start, it's about development. And Alex has found an admiration for all things well-developed. If Alex had his choice of weapon, it would be a huge pair of shoulder mounted bazookas. But, truth be told, Alex really stands out in a crowd. Especially if everyone is wearing spandex.

Brian T. Fenstemaker

Navy Pilot

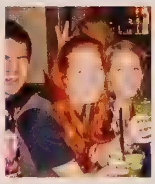
Great balls of fire! Always known as a true warrior on the intramural fields, Brian "Fenste" Fenstemaker dominated the competition on hospital point, earning MVP honors in Fieldball and Flag Football. He was never afraid to invite anyone and everyone on his weekly trips to the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum. He served the great 16th Company, Class of 2011 for 4 years as the MIDN Countdown-Until-Graduation-Liaison Officer. Known for his prowess in quoting Top Gun, his ginger status will undoubtedly force him to wear a shirt, hat, and SPF 50 while playing beach volleyball against Val Kilmer. Good thing CAPT Jarrett didn't get a hold of this aviator during SARB boards, because he's dangerous.



LeAnne Ferrell

USMC Ground

Whatever your troubles, Sensai LeAnne-san can always be counted on for a word of wisdom. She might tell you that, "chotto incest daijoubu," or she might just tell you to "Chargeeee!!!!!!!!!" Beating malaria while beasting marathons and battling that other M-word, everyone's favorite narcoleptic reem is also a world traveler and an enthusiastic acronym reform advocate.



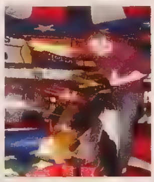
Margaret C. Gates-George

Navy Pilot

"Gin-and-tonic, please." Who cares if its 10AM? Margot's got to get her drink on. Pinky out and ski boots on, Margot shamelessly swirls her WASPy drink while recounting her semester long Eurotrash adventure. What? You didn't know? She spent a SEMESTER IN GERMANY and SKIED IN THE ALPS. Don't worry, it will come up in conversation whether you like it or not. This ski-litist is likely to make a scene at social events…or at least wake up with a new hair-cut. However, Hipster-Margot does have standards. Don't expect to get far with her, especially if you are wearing a hood.

Matthew E. Hartsog

SEALs



It is a common perception that Matthew Hartsog was raised from birth by a pack of wild wolves. Although this cannot be completely verified, Matthew Hartsog has been seen in the wilderness of Downtown Annapolis marking his territory in the manner of his alleged relatives. Matt Hartsog has never been the type to let small obstacles stand in his way. When he was injured during a Rugby match because his lateral moves defy the laws of physics, Matt laughed at an injury most would consider career ending with "it's cool, chicks dig scars." Always remember, here's to honor jumpin' honor and stayin' honor."

Matthew J. Hause

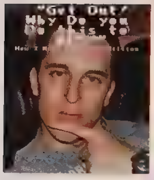
Kendall J. Ignatz

USMC Ground

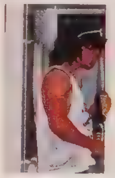
Kendall James Ignatz majored in history and was a member of the Phi Alpha Theta Honor Society. He participated in a number of events, and held a variety of positions during his time at the Naval Academy. Some of those included Pistol Team, Honor Congress, Sea Trials Sergeant Major, Squad Leader, Platoon Sergeant, Plebe Summer Port Battalion XO, and Company XO. In all, Kendall Ignatz loves leadership. Through his hard work ethic and motivation, Kendall Ignatz fulfilled his childhood dream and service selected Marine Corps Ground.

Justin A. Jackson

Naval Flight Officer



It seems only four short years ago that the mystical quest started for this Midshipman, but Pirate feels like he has finally conquered the World...of Warcraft. This Supt's list, PRT stud didn't just get to warlock fame in a day. No. After finding his chin, he joined the women's hockey team to boost his confidence. Later, Pirate began to excel as an EE major and volunteered to stay on Friday nights to improve his electric demand for knowledge. On Saturdays, he would feed the outdoorsman inside by hunting moose in SoCal. Pirate is well prepared for his career as a future TSA agent. We could say he finally reached level 85 in life.



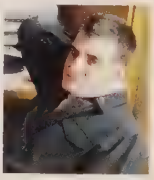
Gavin X. Karski

Navy Pilot

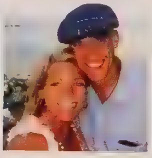
How's that pasta taste now, shipmate? Three years and 4 roommates later (can't forget our good friend Ralph), it's finally time to go to the land of the mystical Gavitron. Lax games, huckin' off cliffs, and sick flows abound. Hopefully they don't leave pizzas in showers there. I'm sure they have Robotrons that come out on Valentines Day, though. Good luck as an aviator, muffintop, and remember that water is not an acceptable substitute for other beverages, especially after you get thrown up – I mean thrown out – trying to run to first base to meet with Coach Magill. FREE PORK? WHERE?

Jared D. Kononchik

Naval Flight Officer



It's a real shame Jared Kononchik is graduating, cause who else will comfort the ladies of second wing? Generalfeldmarschall Kononchik conquers the European continent on a weekly basis, almost as often as he "conquers" Alcoholism. 5 years, a few dozen AA meetings, countless dip cans, a benign oral tumor, and 50+ pounds later, Jared is finally ready to trade late night "visits" for…well whatever NFOs do. Hopefully there is no Basic English competency exam in the fleet. Also, watch out female residents of P-cola, I hear he'll be staying down there for some time.



Patrick L. McConnell

USMC Ground

Patrick McConnell-16th Company "servant leader"- Desired to serve his Country out of high school and Enlisted in the Marines. Encouraged by legends, Patrick applied to the Academy and was awarded NAPS. Eventually becoming a Company Commander, McConnell aimed to please and picked up one gorgeous Nugget along the way.

Patrick J. McCormick III

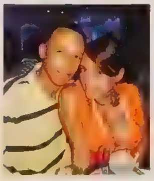
USMC Ground

Patrick McCormick, avid disciple of Socrates, the eldest of Due can be seen "bro-ing out" on the lax field or capitalizing on the multiple chat mediums offered on the internet. This avid beach house attendant loves the open water, but his true heart lies in commitment. Whether its playing the finger pyramid game, demanding only the deep tracks or staring at the result of hitting "control N" in Microsoft Word for hours he's sure earned his B.S. while desperately trying to hand out the "MRS." Ode to LO, Katie My Lady, Yodels, and many other escapades over the years. Hide yo kids, hide yo wife cause he wifing all of em.

Matthew J. McGowan

USMC Ground

Though he is not a common folk and does not do intramurals, Matthew James McGowan is the best heavy weight slave laborer in 16th Company! Bearing this lofty title, his strut during the week marches to the beat of a different drum; sleeping all day and killing zombies all night. His weekends are filled with quite the same except instead of sleeping- drinking and instead of zombies- KIM! Yet, this practice killing will surely pay dividends in the Marine Corps where he is sure to succeed! As a fellow Centurion and 2.5 year roommate, I wish Matt only success and hope that his canoe never fills to full with water.



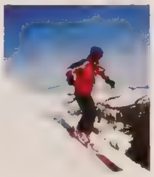
Albert J. Mendez

Naval Flight Officer

Midshipman Albert Junior Mendez has had a stellar career at the Academy. Although most members of his company are not aware that he exists, it has been proven multiple times that a tall skinny Dominican does indeed reside somewhere in 2nd wing. With his military career in mind Albert has perfected the art of hand to hand combat through countless hours on Street Fighter IV. Somehow, Albert has made it through the Astrophysics major, a fitting choice since most people don't know that exists either. Albert is a ladies' man, but if you don't have a high IQ there is no way you're getting the Mendez drip.

George J. Meszaros Jr.

Naval Aviation



It is well understood that George (BGG, PSG, Awkward George) Meszaros has no interest in girls, he turns all of the ones he meets crazy. Maybe it's not all of them. However we have all worked hard to figure out whether he loves his Steelers or airplanes more, sorry to make you blush. We all miss your stadium voice, but not the fact that you introduced us to Samwell. It is only fitting that he will be going to Pensacola, since he can be found listening to live feeds of the tower broadcasts at local international airports every night. Who's got the patch?

John D. Miller

Surface Warfare Officer

Known as "The Machine," John Miller sported a blue-collar work ethic throughout his time on the Severn. A product of public schools and an Ohioan (we assume by his wardrobe), he outworked the brightest, rising to the top and landing a two-year vacation at Cambridge. Within company, he will be remembered as the roommate of death for LeRoy, Lisano, and Lopez. Within the Brigade, his unwavering passion and love of Navy Football will surely be missed. More importantly, he will be remembered by all for his commitment to the underdogs, the people that no one would give a chance, wherever he has gone and certainly wherever he will go.

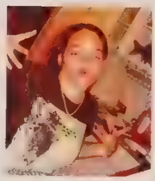
Justin R. Motenko

USMC Pilot

And the Oscar goes to…..DSL for best supporting soundtrack to a motion picture! Maybe your next film can be filmed at the Linebacker. Even if you get lost on your way there, we all know you have a GPS. WEST VIRGINIA. SHOOTERS. We just lightly drank until we died. Visits to see the four horsemen. Hunting geese. Does anyone know a parking garage we can go to? Maybe Bridgette can show us one. Looking for Justin on a Friday night? Just go to Dock Street – he'll be smangin it. Oh wait, it's not about the girls. It's about efficiency.

Megan Moyette

Submarines

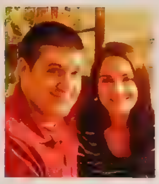


Megan turned down a full ride to SUNY Fredonia for the opportunity to serve. The Navy's first air xylophonist, Megan has been spotted with a liquor-filled CamelBak® fanny-pack in only the classiest of social engagements. After a carjacking and a run in with "Mr. Incredible," Megan no longer ventures into DTA alone. This Strong Island Native's favorite computer game is Bloons Tower Defense. When not working on her thesis or preparing for Nuke School, Megan can be found "getting her tan on." Her favorite skin color is orange. When asked if she's looking forward to graduation, Megan remarked "No…no…I stay…I clean…"

Dien C. Nguyen

Supply Corps

His name's Nguyen. Yea try to say that one. Born in a far away land. The Random Lyfe of Nguyen had a few fans. He has two siblings. Applied Math was his thing. Can you believe he was prior enlisted? His conduct record here was clean. He never really got busted. Oh and he went to NAPS too. One of the graduating few. Looks like he's twelve. Owell. Threw him in the pool and he sunk. Take him out and he's an eeaassyy drunk. You can do whatever you want if you try hard enough.



Alex B. Nuno

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Alex Nuno followed his childhood dreams and majored in Mechanical Engineering, but by far his greatest accomplishment at the Academy was giving back to his country. He was the President of the Pi Tau Sigma Honor Society, a member of the Tau Beta Pi Honor Society, and a team member of the 2011 Formula SAE team. He dedicated himself tirelessly to academic excellence and became an avid intramural warrior. Alex looks forward to a bright and prosperous career as a Nuclear Surface Warfare Officer. He sends his deepest thanks to God, his family, friends, and his fiancé, Alyson, for helping him succeed.

Bethany H. Rahall

Nuclear Surface Warfare

We always joked that maybe she was a machine, maybe a cyborg, because she was always doing homework or running. In reality though, Bethany is one of the sweetest and most kind people around. But the most important things that anyone needs to know about Bethany is that she loves the Beatles, George Harrison, and Peeps. Bethany, continue to be the diligent and hardworking person that you are! We all love you!

David G. Schultz

Civil Engineer Corps

This Carolina boy is one of those once in a lifetime people. Never again will you meet someone so intellectually gifted, shamelessly hilarious, or doggedly loyal. David coached dozens of his peers through the rigors of calculus and physics, and his sense of humor keeps the halls ringing with laughter. As a friend and mentor, he is there through thick and thin, never hesitating to offer witty advice or stop everything to resolve a conflict. David is the kind of midshipmen we all hoped to find at the Naval Academy four years ago, and he's the type of leader men and women in the fleet will be lucky to serve with. Go and do great things, Seabee.

Carid E. Scovill

Naval Aviation

All are unsure about Carid's age and often mistake him for Popeye, Mr. Clean, and the Pot Smuggler; but he's way more exciting than any of those imposters. Hails from CO and had a violent past of hitting people…right in the body; must be the elevation. That's far from the end to this man's story. Scovill's the real author of the Bernstein Bear. Star of The Amazing Race Hawaii and the Sequel in equally exotic Morgantown. Hey! Let's play a game: Naked Juice on the floor or crying at corn-hole? Try waking up in your own house in Pcola. Remember, civility always comes with a poncho and sombrero.

Annabel E. Ward

Surface Warfare Officer

But the LORD is with me as a dread warrior; therefore my persecutors will stumble; they will not overcome me. They will be greatly shamed, for they will not succeed. Their eternal dishonor will never be forgotten. –Jeremiah 20:11

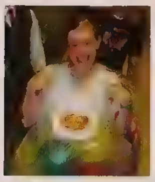
Melanie B. Arden

Navy Pilot



Mel, Our little pop culture aficionado, where would we be without you and your movie expertise on an every-day night? Your knack for entertaining was always apparent, whether your were having a vent session, eagerly jogging in and out of the room, intermittently singing along with the music in your headphones, or doing a fantastic job leading the Masqueraders through another great performance. Thank you for always being there when we needed you either as human dictionary/thesaurus/grammar resource, an honest fashionista or just a good listener. Love Forever,
Your Permanent Roommates

Christopher S. Aument

USMC Ground

(n-1)+e(x+5), vouz comprenez? Oh..right..most people don't understand Aument-Speak, or Aument for that matter, but his ability to understand the most cryptic of USNA-assigned homework makes him the go-to guy for the less-able-minded. Graciously offering his service, Chris specializes in Engineering, French, Arabic, Math, Chemistry, Physics, God, PT, and any other imaginable subject. Though not a favorite of the '08 plebe summer cadre, Chris served as a screen, protecting his classmates from less-than-favorable attention. Never far from his cellular device, he's always connected. In one word: Perfection.

Joseph E. Buckley III

Submarines

Joe Buckley aka Lance Armstrong went out with Tyler one night and did not finish the night with him. Oops wrong house! He was once so mad, Donnie peed himself at the foot of the stairs. Motha! Fatha! You were wrong! You're son does not have a drinking problem. But he does have the sweetest non-girlfriend that brings us cookies. He knew his true calling at DTD when he has his future in the toilet…a big fat sub. Gee-Gee thought you were on the same team, the hit doesn't count. But Jason is sorry the Blackhawks won so take your hits out on Kyle on the practice field. FEBU

James Cheung

Navy Pilot

Masta Cheung, can always be found sitting at his desk at the end of 6th period until EMF. If he's not at his computer playing COD, CODMW2, Bio Shock, Bio Shock 2, Dead Space, Flash Games on Kongregate, Fallout 3, or Dragon Age, then he is making a cup of oodles of noodles, but only on the days when King Hall did not serve chicken noodle soup… or hot dogs. While he might be a big, bad prior, he has a serious weakness for soft, fuzzy things, especially the snow… After all, he is an expert snowboarder who can tear up the extremely challenging green circle trails. Many people didn't know he was in China for a semester, but now that he will be away in P-cola, he will be truly missed. There is no doubt that he will make an excellent officer and aviator.

John P. Collmus

Navy Pilot

Described as a guru, J.P. knows how to make it rain in the video room. Spending most of his days in his office, a world where he is the Jim Halpert to Coach Meade's Dwight Schrute. From "don't worry about it" to playing Katy Perry to describe a night out in DTA, John Paul's communication skills are unmatched. After graduation, Collumes plans on scanning himself into the Navy Sports Video network, where with the help of Tron he must destroy the monster he created. While once described as a rich man's baby Grinch, one could not have asked for a better friend or roommate.

Cassandra M. Consedine

Surface Warfare Officer

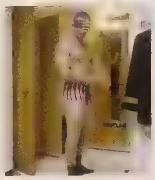
Hailing from Bartlesville, Oklahoma, this down-home gal has left her footprint (size 13, fyi) at USNA. Hoops champ and envy of all the Melwood workers, Cassie has the swag needed for success in the Fleet. Though entering the Academy as an innocent and sweet girl at the mere age of 18, this ripe 22 year old has pillaged DTA for all of it's worth. (CARPE NOCTEM!!) ONWARD TO NORFOLK. Undefeated on the courts, except for the infamous battle against rival company-mate and baller J.P. Collmus, Cassie is also undefeated in spirit. Her brave and fortuitous actions as "screen" over plebe summer have left us forever indebted to her.

Thomas A. Deeter

Surface Warfare Officer

Thomas Deeter was born a poor, black child. At the age of 12 he was sent to military boarding school for putting mayo on the knuckle sandwich during choir practice. Desperately wanting to be called an engineer, but not smart enough to be one, Thomas discovered the wonderful world of Naval Architecture during his plebe year. Despite fighting chronic diabetes, tape worms, and jungle fever during his youngster and second class year, he summoned the strength to become 17th Company Commander during the spring semester of his first class year. His leadership legacy carries on in his autobiography, Deetership: How to live with ED. NNFL.

Nicholas M. Driscoll



Surface Warfare Officer

Nick's Passion for "getting big" was second only to his love for Navy Baseball (#11). Whether he was on the Pusser's Dance Floor, on his webcam, or in his car by Farragut, his drive to complete the iron triangle was without equal. Nick's military bearing was, without a doubt, the best the Academy has ever seenthough after a few beers he was often found screaming out how many activities he could complete in under FOUR MINUTES!! Nick's top notch education and naval service will serve him well when he realizes his dream: becoming a high school baseball coach. Until then, someone in the SWO community is gaining a first rate roommate and an even better friend! RLW

Susan L. Falt

Surface Warfare Officer

Susan 'Beefy' Falt may very well be the creepiest person to have roamed Mother B. Whether exercising her big toes or staring at you in your sleep, one can always count on Susan for the creeper factor. Tall and blonde, she may seem innocent, but once, while armed with an asp in her duties as 2nd Reg ATFP, she wreaked bloody havoc. No one will ever really know what happened in room 4251, but one thing is for sure: 4251 was home to one of the most caring weirdos you could ever know. No matter what, Susan always lends a helping hand with delight. A friend and inspiration to all, Susan keeps life fun, interesting and quirky. TR

Brian C. Flaherty

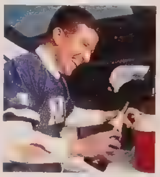
USMC Pilot

Brian Flaherty was not only born a Marine; he was born a lover. Whether it was in the clubs of Prague or the house parties of the Bay Area, the ladies couldn't resist sinking their teeth into him. He perfected the use of Wikipedia and YouTube so he could learn "things." He was once challenged by a large German man to a drinking game; he won. When challenged by a large German woman to a date, he won again. Despite his consumption of 4 4 Locos (16 Locos) in Las Vegas, he was able to win all of his expenditures back. After running with the bulls, he has just one item left on his bucket list: drink a whiskey sour with John Wayne. NNFL

Nicholas R. Hanson

USMC Ground

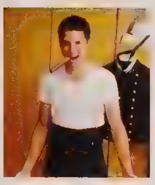
This son of a farmer grew up thinking the world was flat and babies are delivered by storks, but going to USNA would change this chunky-cheeked Illinois boy forever. He's done more traveling and defaced more priceless artifacts in more countries than anyone else in the company. From the Great Pyramids to Mt. Kilimanjaro, Nick has drunk himself around the world until he is red in the face, because everyone knows it's not a party until Nick looks like he has leprosy. But we could always tell "Beastmode" missed being home with the cows because he would always go after the cow-shaped women at the bars. Some things never change, huh?



Mark T. Heard

USMC Pilot

From being knocked unconscious in Plebe Boxing to being 17th Company's XO, Mark Heard's journey at USNA was much like his nose: long, bumpy, and full of mystery. In the middle of his journey, Mark finally found his identity during a semester at the French Naval Academy. Mark found his niche as one the most respected exchange students there as he spent his days teaching the Brits how to surf and his nights teaching the French how to drink (they taught him some stuff too, like how to dance to Euro-Techno music and fit into skinny jeans). Mark returned a change man after this semester and used his new talents to lead 17th Company. It's without saying that 17th Company wouldn't have been the same without Mr. Heard- his blunt, emotionally scarring humor will be missed dearly.



Nathaniel E. Lopez

Navy Pilot

Nate "Natty Lite" Lopez is one of those rare individuals that keeps bodybuilding.com in business. His license plate says Illinois but his heart beats Jersey. If you can't find this Pensacola-bound motivator he is either with his Jerseylicious fiancée, in the gym doing insane workouts, trooping around with his loyal sidekick Bernoulli, or getting some well-deserved crew rest. While the rest of us study thermo and calc he studies the stock market and plays addicting games; he lives a life of hardship but someone has to do it. Natty Lite works hard and plays hard and his classmates wish him all the best!

Russell D. Mainor

Navy Pilot

Armed with the flow Russ did what most engineers only dream of-avoid the sub draft. Lock up your daughters and wives, this bro has a knack for picking up flight attendants, blonds and seasoned leprechauns. Never utter 'General Sherman' to this Georgian or you will have to remind him that we are all on the same team again. He specializes in: slaying weak animals and women, eating the organs of said animals, crew rest, sand volleyball, speaking Southern praises and re-circulating aquaculture systems. He will serve as a Navy Pilot with the intensity he brings to the hunt as a stalker on the prowl for any new kill.

Houssem Marzougui

Tunisian Naval Forces

HouFor the mere 4 years that Houssem has graced the United States, he has made quite an impression. From wooing the workers down in Steerage to coaxing a circuit board to life in Rickover, Houssem has embraced the American dream (as well as a plethora of American curse words). While we will miss him in the States, the Tunisian Navy is lucky to have such a man join their ranks.

John T. Nance

USMC Pilot

The all-American midshipman, John "Cheeks" Nance is the type of well-rounded individual you'd like to take home to meet your parents- that is if you want your parents to become disappointed in you for not being as great as John. When this occurs, one can prove John's not perfect by exploiting his one weakness: chewing his food. Simply invite John to dinner and his flaw will shine through. Not only will John's imperfection be proven to your adoring parents, but you will have an opportunity to be a hero. When John begins to choke, bear hug him from behind, and using his amazingly large cheeks as leverage, bounce him up and down until he spits his poorly chewed food in your parents face. At this time, pronounce to everyone that you are a hero and saved John from his one fatal flaw.

Erik L. Osmundsen

Navy Pilot

Spawned 69 years ago by Loki and a midget circus clown named Leif Eriksen, Erik Osmundsen immigrated to the United States and made a name for himself in the adult entertainment industry as "Sticky Tips: The Little Engine that Came". After retirement from the film industry he found a higher calling in the naval service and a DEEP love of the Marine Corps. Today Erik can be found getting his mandatory crew rest and Jagging off. Erik is currently writing a guide book for Eastern Europe that show the reader how to get "a little more" out of their trip. NNFL

Eowyn E. Pedicini

Submarines

Eowyn "E-Ped" Pedicini. Who knew people joined the Navy from New Mexico? Perhaps she's a mad scientist…or is there something in the water in Los Alamos? Maybe that's why she majored in chemistry and then tried to double major in physics. Only she could say 24 credits "isn't too hard." Fidelity is still up after all these years. Owner of one of the messiest desks, but only because of all her textbooks. At least her sarcasm will be put to good use on submarines…Semper Deep.

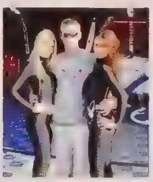
Corban Y. Pierce

USMC

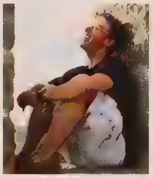
"Yargh! Ahoy There mateys! Captain Hook be the name and if ye aren't careful he'll make you walk his crooked plank! Corban "Capt. Hook" Pierce, never one to pass up a good time or let a swashbuckling adventure slide by, whether it be taking advantage of that lax formation accountability to tear up Baltimore on his mountain bike or work out in the morning to keep sports period free in order to swoon the a lovely girl during some self mandated weeknight "special" liberty. Sorry ladies, he met and married his girl in 6 months. Got a little Captain in Ya?"

Brian G. Ruane

Naval Flight Officer



Seventeenth Company Resident Bro. Never unwilling to assist in a DTA barrage (Hammerheads, anyone?), Brian's got your back. Whether cruisin' the p-ways of 4-2 or the boulevards of Boca Raton, Ru's got a nose for trouble. Though his sweater status is in contention, he holds a respectable 255 cumulative demerits, and is a Varsity Restrictee. Ru has graciously given up at least one of every leave period except for summer in order to better serve the needs of Bancroft Hall. A true, selfless shipmate.



Anthony P. Rush

Surface Warfare Officer

The REAL Midshipman Perfection. Zero Demerits, along with a return address of 'God's List,' Tony might as well be the Man himself. After spending a semester micro-managing the lives of wee midshipmen from his high ranking position of Brigade Ops (which includes denying perfectly qualified firsties their color-company parking) Tony has humbled himself to the position of Platoon Commander. But regardless of rank, Tony is just one of those guys who'll be there in the worst of times, as are his mother's tasty home-baked treats. Hailing from New York, heading to Germany and eventually settling in Japan for his first tour, Tony's got a nose for the exotic. Equipped with his toothy grin, Tony will serve as a beacon no matter where he goes. MS-SF

Richard W. Schmermund

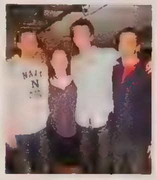
Naval Intelligence

Richie Schmermund is a good tasting recipe made of three component parts. First, you will want to turn on ESPN. You will want to set the environment with at least one of these three teams on and winning: Navy Midshipmen, New York Giants, or Washington Capitals. If you cannot find those, and sometimes it is tough—put this recipe away for better day. If you are lucky enough to find one of these teams winning, you will need one bowl. Add one part Coors Light, one part Diet Green Tea, a handful of pretzels, two Five Hour Energy's. Mix together. Have Mandee Stewart stick her finger in to sweeten the recipe. Simmer for about an hour—but snooze the alarm at least four times before you take it off the stove. You now have the most potent recipe for a good time on a weekend ever concocted.

Melissa A. Seets

Navy Pilot

Hailing from the backwoods of Woodbine, MD, Melissa Ann 'Dingle' Seets graced the United States Naval Academy with her presence. Rising to the ranks of Company XO, Melissa ruled her kingdom with tenacity, yet always provided much needed comic relief. As a Mid she roamed the P-ways complete with her meticulously prepared uniform, Jurg-free bun, and immaculate shoes - she may have actually written Uniform Regs. While many see a rough, tough Mid, her friends know a devoted and compassionate individual. She is a true example of drive and determination and it is an honor to graduate with her. Stand by for this 'Raptor' to hit the Fleet.



Ryan N. Shipley

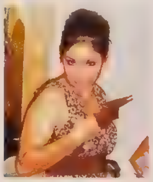
Navy Pilot

Started a promising career as a star two sport athlete and founding member of BHK, but after youngster year realized his time would be better spent with his company mates. Such a gifted student athlete he chose political science to "WOW" the girls at parties. Parties that often took place in his basement with his sister's friends. Nothing against that basement, as he was never shy to invite friends over. Just be prepared to pay him back somehow for it, because he will never forget. In the end he chose navy pilot because submarines was his father's dream. Good luck Ryan and thanks from the two friends you have.

Tessa L. Snow

USMC Pilot

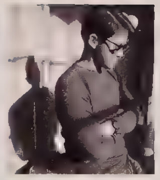
Hailing from Hamlin, New York, Tessa's always ready to dance her socks off, and yes, her wild sock collection is better than yours. The good times are countless: spring break episodes, "Happy Paint Satrick's Day!" -to Army/Navy epic weekends, to suffrage dates, to being the one who would never make something intentionally awkward ;) She's also given her room a great moment of levity; whether it's testing the manhole steam with her foot to make sure that it's hot or always dashing out the door after remembering that she had somewhere to be. We love T-dawg! Marine Corps Aviation is lucky to have this one! Best of luck babe, you will soar far!



Juaquina J. Soland

USMC Ground

Juaquina, Who would have thought that four years ago we would have been introduced to the craziest dancer this side of the Severn? The girl who held the lights off dance parties to get up out of our plebe gloom and taught us that forks in the garbage disposal go ding, ding, ding. She obsessed about the cleanliness of the room (or maybe we were just sloppy) and she kept us in check through it all. Life without Juaquina would have been oh so dull. Who would have thought that in four years three different girls would have formed a great friendship?
-Your Permanent Roommates



John F. Tanalega

Surface Warfare Officer

Voice of the Brigade. Leading man of the first Masqueraders musical. Las Vegas. Hair that's never out of style. When one hears "John Tanalega," these images come to mind. What one may not know about John is that he is the most modest person you will ever meet. Despite his many great talents, John doesn't admit to being an Academy celebrity, a great announcer, and most importantly, a loyal friend. World, watch out. I have no doubt John will make a name for himself outside these walls. What will he be most famous for? Writing. He always carries a notebook, ready to pen the next bestselling work of literature. One can only hope he will perform the audio book as well. Reading John's plays and poems, I see someone who will impact the world for the better. Ryan Mati, '12

DONT GIVE UP THE SHIP

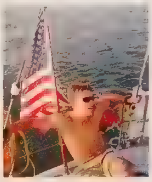
Grant A. Waldron

Supply Corps

Grant Waldron: a man of many loves, though none greater than his love for USNA, Netflix, Varsity Steerage Crew, and NMG. Whether it's swooning bachelorette parties or picking up cougars in the great city of Norfolk (Youngster Cruise, anyone?) he's about to leave it all behind for the 'love of his life.' After a mere six months, he knew he was in love … with Steerage Chicken Tenders and Fries. "Numba Sixtie-Nine what kinda sawse you want wid dat?" A friendly face around company, and a lover of the phrase, "At my school…" Grant may be found creeping on company-mates and… well… actually that's about it! The only midshipmen to have actually ALMOST died during a PRT, Grant is a true survivor of the most foul of situations at the Boat School. Fair winds and following cheese, and make that cheddar, Chop!

Richard L. Watkins

Navy Pilot



One of Richard's favorite hobbies was visiting and enjoying the lesser known hotspots of Annapolis like the stairwell of the Holiday Inn, the Navy 44' sailboats, and the Commodore Lounge in the Loews Hotel. When not enjoying historic Annapolis Richard could be found running to try and avoid failing the PRT, laboring over countless honor offenses at his desk, or Oovooing with his dearest Noel. He was a phenomenal roommate and best friend that loved the Naval Academy with all his heart. Some would say he was born to fly jets because of his aerospace engineering degree from the Naval Academy and his dad's status as a Senator. NMD

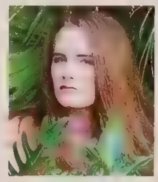
Mahmood D. Alaverdi

Navy Pilot

There are several theories for Mahmood's general demeanor: obvious foreign influences, abhorrent sleep habits, or some unknown environmental cause which result in his unsolicited rage and 'minor freak-outs'. The most obvious symptom of whatever disorder causes these absurd behaviors being of course moulting, and also a complete inability to communicate in a coherent manner, rather than his usual mumbles and grumbles. When he does manage to speak he truly has a way with words; well actually words often have their way with him. But don't worry; if what he just said was supposed to be a joke, he will just tell you it was funny, allowing you to just politely laugh and saving you the trouble of actually attempting to interpret whatever it is he was saying.



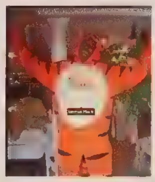
Kelsey M. Averill

Surface Warfare Officer

Kelsey joined the Naval Academy family from Celebration, FL (Yes, Celebration). She can usually be found either out debating her life away, defending women's rights, or losing personal items in plain sight including: bobby pins, loose change, and feminine products. She spent her first 3 years as 18's most motivated YUT-er, however recognized her preference for and addiction to coffee and treadmills, which made her service selection as SWO a no-brainer. We will miss many things about Kelsey and have enjoyed watching her further develop her dancing, 'International Relations', and interpersonal skills through 'Hip Hop' music and webcam chats with foreign lovers and exotic men (¡Hola Mauricio!). Good luck in the Fleet Kels!

Derron B. Black

Naval Flight Officer

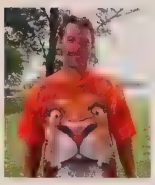


When Derron Bryce Black, aka Sundown, was a kid, he had no ambitions of flying. Instead, he wanted to be a rodeo clown, fortune cookie writer, forest fire lookout, or Braille translator. However, a strong gust of wind deflated those lofty dreams, when it picked up his 4 lb frame and landed him in Annapolis. Derron has used his time at the Academy well…watching movies, dancing like Dougie and Bernie, and of course sleeping. Refusing to study, he nonetheless tested his mind by designing mazes and playing himself in chess. However, it is his countless hours on Microsoft Flight Simulator that ensure he will have a successful NFO career.

William D. Comiskey

USMC Pilot

A proud carrier of the Comiskey Academy torch, Will made the most of his time here. From legendary adventures for 3 on weeknights to being the last Marine select to accept the haircut policy, Will did it his way. This self proclaimed wine connoisseur and Club Lax star could be found on the weekends peacocking in Acme, whispering sweet nothings to your girlfriend or stuck halfway through a ceiling at Arnold. His sense of style and his penchant for form fitting ugly sweaters, as well as blind luck, won him the friendship of a wide variety of people from authors to Swedes. Success is in his future as he joins his brother in The Corps.



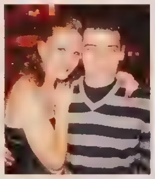
Nicholas D. Danforth

Navy Pilot

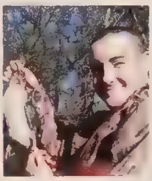
Who is Nicholas Danforth? Nick "Diesel" Danforth is the embodiment of honor, courage, commitment, and all-around degeneracy. He is a friend, lover, sailor, and most notably, the DC-famous DJ Sgt. A$$forth. A co-owner of his own business, "The Meat Market," Nick has taken meat-handling and meat-distribution to a whole new level. His love for supplying fellow Midshipmen with hot-dogs is only trumped by his love for all things SUPA-fun. When he is not out making new guy friends (platonic? Maybe.) or patronizing designer menswear stores, Nick can be found refining his palate as the host of a suspiciously all-male wine and cheese party.

Alaina D. DiBiasie

Surface Warfare Officer



Alaina the complain-a AKA Grandma. With her attitude and wicked accent, it's obvious that this smiling girl is a quintessential Irish/Italian Bostonian. She is the best dang granny anyone could ask for, complete with hip injury, silk shirt, sewing skills and frequent naps. She's a die haahd Red Sox Fan, has a heart of gold and a crazy driver! (road trip-Philly) She walked through plebe summer and sailed through the rest of her time. Family, friends and the Jordans made it possible. Sometimes I wondered if Alaina knew she was at Navy, she just wanted to be a DENTIST! Let's see if this OCD, East Coast Gal can mellow out in the West Coast Sun.



Brandon M. Dorsett

USMC Pilot

"If you're reading this it means I graduated, or maybe the yearbook staff just made a mistake." When he is not hunting, fishing, or skydiving on the weekends Brandon spends his time at the country's most prestigious correctional facility dreaming of his next weekend away. Despite being a Mechanical Engineering major, he maintains a respectable QPR while overcoming the social diversity that is the Beat/Meat Market. He will always provide a steady stream of sarcasm and will remind you that life happens and you are still human, regardless of rank.

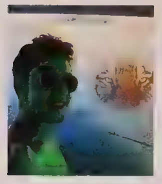
Bryan K. Eberly

USMC Ground

It didn't take long for Bryan Kirkwood Eberly to acclimate to Navy life. He fell into the trap early joining SPRINT and becoming 18's golden boy. He may want to be remembered for his wits and USMC outfits, but we'll recall Bryan taking his time and cleaning. Most weekends he fulfilled his role as Arnold dad, but every once and a while he would let Napoleon out and all bets were off. While some of his ideas never materialized like a homebrew and clean friends, he never fell short on great facial hair, hiking the AK and the best costume in the room. His perfect record and OCD will take him far as he leaves Arnold for The Corps.

Andrew W. Estko

USMC Ground



What do you get when you cross Dip and Bear together? Andrew Weber Estko a.k.a Estko-Beast, Estreeko and Estk-AIDS… on account of his back rash. Estko ain't got no hair on his chest… cause hair don't grow on steel. Or he shaves it, one of the two. It's a mystery, kinda like the smell in my room. It's Estko. Ewww. They say not to "Wake a sleeping Giant." In Estko's case… it's impossible. 20 cell phone alarm clocks later… he's still in a coma. So what does a giant do when it wakes? Nothing, and by that I mean Poly-Sci. The easiest major on the yard has given Estko time to enjoy his hobbies like practicing to be a death dealing MARINE.

Nicholas B. Firestone

USMC Ground

Whether it's wearing the same pair of socks for two straight weeks, drooling on his blazer walking back from the club, or bleaching out skid marks in his underwear, Nick Firestone is truly deserving of his title, "The Trashman." Despite these shortcomings, he has a silver tongue when it comes to male flight attendants and Borders cashiers. Nick has a promising future ahead of him in the USMC. When he is not busy being the victim of sexual orientation related hate crimes, Nick may be found searching for a superlative taco to write about in his food blog: Taquiando… or, as he would put it, "Just out and about being fabulous!"

Andrew M. Fitzsimmons

Navy Pilot

One little piece of mind: "snitches get stitches." Andrew Michael Fitzsimmons a.k.a. Space Cowboy, Maurice, Fitzy, Trixie, and even AndyMan. Fitz displayed his casual lack of tact in even the most mundane social interactions. Always working, this guy took to MATLAB like a baby takes to breast milk. His love for his Chevy is only superseded by his love for tunnels, jets, and outlandish movie quotes. His giddy side isn't revealed often but when it is you might be reminded of an ecstatic school girl. Despite his quirks, Fitz is always willing to lend a helping hand to any bro in need.

Ian A. Flowers

Navy Pilot

Welcome to Ian's bio! After his first roommate couldn't stand living with him anymore, and quit the Academy, he was quickly adopted into the room he should have been in all along. A native of the suburbs of Detroit, Ian is an avid Red Wings and Wolverines fan with a strong compassion for his fellow man, classic people helping people. Cheeseburger anyone? It's for the kids. Flo even sacrificed his dream of becoming a Marine to give someone else a chance at glory and chose to be a Navy Pilot. A dedicated student with an unshakable focus he was always able to sneak away to his spot. Just find the mass. You wanna play games?!

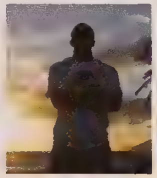
Kyle S. Frank

Navy Pilot

Frank the Tank has more friends in real life than he does on FaceBook. He often volunteers as a saucier in ol' San Antone. Amazing? Why, YES. He does all that and attends the toughest schools in the nation. Frank has always done his own thing… even when it comes to counting… 28 29 20-10. "From weapons training, to martial arts, and courses on officer leadership, [his] day is booked." Direct FaceBook Quote. All that aside, Gunny keeps it real 24/7. From plebe summer with his "Sir NoOOo Sir!", which will make you want to punch babies, to his role as Train-O of 18th Co.'s plebes, you will be pressed to find a more motivated Midshipmen.

Bradley D. Harden

Submarines



The 209 is where he's from: Modesto, the west co, the chicken penne pesto. Brad, B-rad, B-rizzle, Blizzy-B, and of course even Darrell makes an appearance from time to time. Give this guy a Dodgers victory or a Yay-area hyphy beat and you'll make him the happiest man in the world - I love your 'twizzle' dance. As the 2nd best Malagasy speaker in the company, Brad easily became best friends with Carlo plebe year and they have been inseparable since, yadada mean? Brad does an excellent job preventing all possible political volleyball and is consistently a solid and dependable guy who will undoubtedly be a great leader. Thizz in peace.

Andrew C. Holcomb

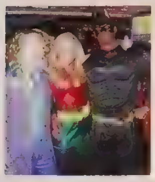
Nuclear Surface Warfare

Whenever you stop by Andrew's room, either at 0300 or on a random day, you could expect to see him playing video games. Besides his passion for gaming, he has been an outstanding midshipman throughout these past 4 years. Don't ever wake him up when you watch a late game online because he will throw the first thing at you. It could be a knife, a chair, a rifle, or whatever thing he can grab first. Needless to say, he is a quiet man but a real friend you can count on for the rest of your life.

Stephen G. Honan

Special Operations

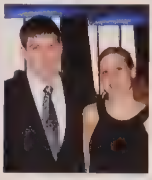
Stephen is commonly known in the Brigade as "the guy who drives that vintage Volvo with plastic bags for windows." Whether he's cruising through the finish line of the Boston Marathon, trekking through 135 miles of northern Minnesota trails, or hiking through Bangladesh, he is invariably ready with a cheerful grin and dorky science joke. For years, he's been letting people "have a drink on [him]." Born with the inexplicable ability to multitask and survive on almost no sleep, the following is a common example of a conversation with Stephen: "Dude, I have to write a 20-page paper." "When's it due?" "Tomorrow...but it's chill, bro."



Kathryn E. Kelly

Intelligence

When Cadet Kelly showed up for I-day she knew she was going to fit right in. Although the all white outfits were not her choice of style or color, she could totally work her new bob. The first summer was a time of smiling, chopping everywhere, literally everywhere (just ask Carin), sneaking Harry Potter Books annotated by her mother and delivered by her father, and sweating next to her soon to be boyfriend. In the front leaning rest dripping in a bucket of sweat, Wyatt and Katie knew it was love. Over the past 4 years Katie has grown as a person by turning in her white works for her NWL/ NWS inspired khaki dress (soon to be implemented as a new uniform). When Katie isn't sprinting her warm up laps she enjoys eating a sandwich in bed with fries sprinkled delicately around her.



David K.D. Klein

Submarines

David Kayfus Doran Klein hails to us from just up the road from the projects of McLean, VA. His child hood was spent surviving the inner city DC playgrounds where Klein earned the nickname Dagger Dave as he was never one to shy away from a knife fight. He brought his hard nose basketball attitude to the Academy's courts where anything goes (except traveling, double dribbling, or charging, because Dave is big on following the rules). Donkey Dave, another one of his aliases due to his skill at Donkey Kong, has developed quite a reputation with the Peaches and Daisies of the tri-city area. Klein is really looking forward to girls being on subs.

Curtis W. Lloyd

SEALs

Curtis Lloyd could not be bothered to write a bio.

Curtis Lloyd also never held still long enough to take a photo.

Emily P.G. Lopes

Surface Warfare Officer

Emery Ropes…the woman of 1/3rd emotion. Known for drinking Bailey's out of a shoe, video documenting everything around her, and making creepy music videos for her roommate: skilift confessionals, I Think We're Alone Now...Wagon Wheel. Her adventurous 4 years included memories of the Sheraton, Italia, YPs, Alaska, and Norfolk (we were bad girls…FYK) to name a few. Emily is proof that you can achieve your dream through minimum effort (and maximum laughing, tv-watching, and sleep…and computer games?). How she managed Ocean E will always be a mystery. Watch out Japan! LYLAB!
A`ohe loa`a i ka hana a ke aloha.

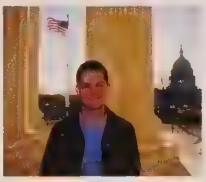
Mark E. Maliniak

Submarines

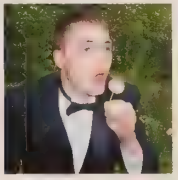
After deciding he loved his hair, hated the idea of throwing up in a cockpit, realized he can't swim very well, and never wants to look out into the open ocean for hours at a time, Mark Maliniak finally settled on being a Submariner. It turns out that Mark is everything a good Submariner should be; geeky, anti-social and afraid of sunlight. Somehow the less he worked out, the bigger and stronger he seemed to get. His mediocre grades and performance were certainly overshadowed by his amazing work on the concrete canoe team and on YP 684 in the summer of 08'. Semper Deep.

Timothy M. Musmanno

Navy Pilot



Reigning from the City of Champions like his boy Wiz, a.k.a. Pittsburgh, Timothy Mark was set to attend the Naval Academy since the womb and enter space since the dawn of time. His supernatural ability to lead combined with his harmonic command voice easily validated the statement that big things come in small packages. Moose's dominance on the squash court directly correlated to his inability to smack the blue off the racquet ball when playing late night doubles. This good old-fashioned American boy is always there when you need him, and he'll never fail to pick you up when you're down.



Daniel Z. Newhouse

Submarines

Zach Newhouse found during his Naval Academy career, that one can graduate without actually doing any work, never working out, and never being friends with anyone. It seemed like the more video games and the more movies he watched, the higher his grades seemed to rise. Zach Newhouse took the money he would've spent on dean's list stars and paid for outrageous parties in DTA that only his girlfriend and mom would attend. As an active member of the 2% club, Zach has been quoted as saying, "Without my girlfriend I would be dead."

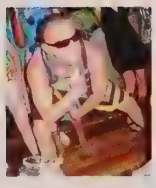
Melanie J. Pribich

Medical Corps

Melanie Pribich, hailing from God's Country (aka Texas), has truly taken in these 4 years by the Bay partaking in large amounts of cuddling with fire-blanky, smiling, chemistry, running, and watching Colors. Mel left her mark here in many ways and was hands down the BEST (and angriest) adjutant 18 has ever seen. Her hard work and diligent study habits brought her academic success as a chem major, which was well paid off in her service selection into the prestigious Med Corps community. There are many things that we will miss of Mel and her friendship, not to include her Spice Girls dance moves and her inspirational Quote of The Day. Smooth sailing and Happy Studying, Mel! We look forward to seeing you in scrubs! (Don't forget to wipe back to front!)

Cesar A. Ramos

Surface Warfare Officer



Cesar Ramos is probably the most loyal friend a person could have. He will have your back when in need, no questions asked. He is really outgoing and always had a great time on the town or in the Rotunda. His outgoing personality was fitting of a four-year Navy cheerleader, and team captain. Without Cesar, many people would have gone without a swimming tutor and a PRT running partner, but most importantly, without a great friend. Though SWO was not his top choice, his friends are confident in his dedication and leadership skills and know that he will persevere.

--I owe my success entirely to the love of my parents. I love you!

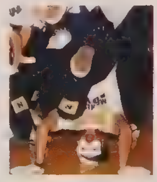
Carlo P. Randriambololona

Foreign Navy

A master of at least four languages, Carlo possesses all the qualities you'd expect in a Marine Corps officer…except for that pesky US citizenship thing. Easily recognizable by his Nike gear and love for basketball, this native of Madagascar has been a joy to be around for the past four years. While not busy running the PRT in 8 minutes, Carlo spends most of his time cleaning his sweet Nikes or watching the Lakers. Carlo is the best friend a person could hope for and was the older brother that many of us never had in our own families. We in 18th Company will forever have a future tourist destination in Madagascar. Thizz is what it is…

Leighton G. Rodrigo

Medical Corps



What should a Navy Doctor be able to do? Well if you asked Leighton "Doctor Dynamite" Rodrigo, that answer would be absolutely everything. This Navy brat symbolized the ability of a mid to do as much things as possible per day with as little sleep as possible. Combine this with the major in chemistry and its no wonder "Rod" never slept…except during formation. Despite his obvious sleep debt and busy schedule he always seemed to stay positive and make others smile. With this rising brown dwarf in the skies of the medical community you can't help but ask, "What can Brown do for you?"

Samuel A. Stein

Surface Warfare Officer

Over the years Allen Samuel Stein, who hails from the Maine/ Alabama/ California/ Indiana/ Pennsylvania, has jumped head first into brick walls, convinced a girl to knock a grown man out cold in a NC bar, had his head shaved when he "fell asleep" too early, been the victim of a misguided hate crime, nearly drowned in a five foot deep creek, visited England and left before anyone noticed, wrote a four page angry poem about why girls should date a short guy, poured a beverage all over the head of a girl he just met, was in a house when a tree fell on it, and failed at being a rapper… and he did this all with a smile on his face.

Mollee M. Strutt

Surface Warfare Officer

Our favorite California hippie, Mollee "all my life I've been good, but now" Strutt. Mawwrey! Subliminally walk of shaming with her only constant. Super group to scrubbing a fridge, captain, EELLOM, bed stealer/cover hog. Once tied down, now encouraging the self destructive plans especially involving the salad & fro-yo, or LARGE scoops of vanilla & chocolate. DD 4 life. SCISSOR SISTER. Near death "What just happened?" experiences on trains, with horses, BMWs & turtles. Ausch-tee Dausch-tee! Gingerbread, doubledates, lady gardens, midgets, Baileys & her fav Tuesday nights with Shwayze. Because. Bish. LylaB! But really. GOMH!

Rafael E. Vargas

Submarines

SEALS > SWO > MED CORPS > MARINE CORPS… eventually Rafael 'Squirtle' Vargas ended up going Marines…SUBMARINES. He didn't have the easiest time at the Academy. Try walking a mile in his shoes, or fitting in his pants… he couldn't…probably from partying so hard and sleeping in showers. Vargas was perfect for the Battalion AT/FP job, he's so full of AT/FP-ness. How many stripes? 2. Which is great because Vargas has been known to get SHORT with people and think LITTLE of them. However, we can rest assured that we are safe as Vargas stands watch fathoms deep. SEMPER DEEP

Casey D. Velazquez

Naval Flight Officer

From the Cubano quarter of Key Biscayne, came 2-3's own Vinnie Chase, Miami Magic style. When Casey isn't slaving away at some computer code, there's only one other possibility: Quez is doin Quez…or he's in Jersey…aahhhh CHEEECH yeah! Casey mastered the art of hand farting and the untimely YUT all the while staying in high fashion complete with nipple cream pampering. He rides in style in his G-37, no keys, push to start. Whether he's heckling Trixy or just walking around in socks and sandals, Quez says the darndest things. I'm sorry sir, I'm on my blue tooth. No Darek, why don't I take you to your room? Yeee boi!

Jason A. Wright

USMC Pilot

Jason "Jasoney" Wright thoroughly enjoys "eating it." He loved to make many trips to IU but NEVER to see Ally. Jason enjoyed filling up people's news feeds, but obviously didn't use spell check. He loved to keep his room locked so people couldn't get in his pantry. He loved to wear his hear on his sleeve and lived by the saying " I live, I ride, I am… Jeep." He never let go of his wallet, even if he went to Denny's. A great source of entertainment was Jason's speech impediment, and it would be only 9:30pm and we had to tell Jason to put his clothes on. If you have a boot lying around he will pee in it…. JASON! JASON! JASON! FEBU

James L. Adair

Navy Pilot

What's his name? Jaydurr/Handsome James/Jadair/Big James. From skinny, awkward, dwebe to ruler of the night club and master of the bass. With age comes wisdom and new night scenes, as College Park, D.C., and New York became his fist pumping and foot stomping grounds. Where'd he leave his class ring? Call her back. Knows how to dress. "Trained" in Europe, dominates on the first day back. 205 lbs, 8:07 PRT anti-NARP, got big 'n coach noticed. So did the ladies. Now seen conquering the world spinning the wheels of fury on Proverbial Life Water. A true southern gentleman from b'ham, AL, a great friend and trooper.

Rex E. Atwood III

Medical Corps

Rex M.F. Atwood III has the perfect blend of northern arrogance and southern elitism. If you ever thought you knew a lot about a particular subject, just know that Rex knows more. This unheard amount of intelligence actually led to the creation of a new verb: Atwooding. Rex never starts hw until at least 10 because he has to make 'the rounds' to maintain his esteemed status among female midshipmen and "cleaning ladies". This classy individual and great friend with more pink shirts than your typical frat boy will soon be a doctor in addition to his original job of conducting the express. Choo choo.

John D. Bamonte Jr.

Navy Pilot

John, John, John. He was our mom, away from mom. John would invent work that didn't exist, mostly to resist the Saturday night bliss. Over the past 4 years he worked his cute little pepperonis off, putting in extra hours studying and at the gym, just so his roommates could nap or sleep in. John would wake up 4 hours early, even though he went to bed at two-thirty. John, don't forget to wake up Tony and Chris, only 5 minutes till MQF I'm sure they won't be pissed. What can we say John except that we love you buddy; even if you throw up and unknowingly clean it up, just continue to study. Goodnight John.

Caroline P. Barlow

Surface Warfare Conventional

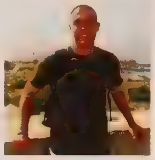
Caroline Barlow? It's hard to describe Caro with a limited 640 characters, including spaces, but here's my best shot....As early as Plebe Summer, I knew Caro was going to achieve many great feats. I told her once, plebe year, that she would end up being BC. She is a personality of her own and has an unparalleled laugh that can be heard all over company area. Intelligent, determined, and spunky, are only a few of the adjectives that I would use to describe her but I need more characters to continue and do her justice. Only time will tell what other great achievements she will add to her resume throughout the course of her life.

Michael A. Bearman

Submarines

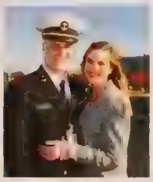
Mike Bearman hails from the wild land of Michigan. His upbringing gave him a love for the outdoors and an ability to misspell simple words. Luckily, via his two favorite plebe summer cadre, MIDN Gerlach & MIDN Wright, Mike learned the communication skills to survive at USNA. Always the adventure-seeking type, you can find Mike engaging in such activities as mountain-biking, snowboarding, rock climbing, and more. If you see him around, give this future sub-bro a shout-out, and listen to his pearls of wisdom; getting to know him just might be one of the most frustrating and rewarding friendships you could ask for.

Ethan D. Coots



USMC Ground

Ethan Coots has lived in a shadow his entire time here at the Naval Academy. Whether it's failing to measure up to intramural basketball teams of past, being out cancer-survived by that second class, or how much better looking his girlfriend is than him, Ethan has never been able to measure up. His voice is a cheap imitation of one of his plebe summer squad leaders. After graduating he hopes to follow in his brothers footsteps. Maybe someday he will do something worthwhile.

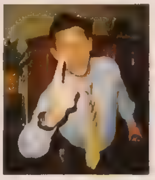


Kyle D. Delahooke

USMC Ground

I'm thankful for all the opportunities that the Lord has given me while I've been here and for the memories that I've made these last 4 years. Hebrews 12:1-2 Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles. And let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us, fixing our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of faith.

Christopher J. Dippel



USMC Ground

Never has spirit and motivation been personified more than in the case of Christopher Dippel. Chris, from the streets of LA, frequents most sporting events as a member of D&B. His schoolwork revolves around the study of English however he always finds time to put on a weight vest and run an outer, explore new adventures on addicting games, or brush up on his math skills by adding to and subtracting from the wrinkles on his new Marine Corps uniforms via an iron. He is most known for the read it and sleep method; pulling all nighters with book readings and sleeping through those classes the next day. Chris will stand up for everyone and known to put a positive word in for anyone, even if they are being separated. His truly cares not about the destination, but about those he shares the trip with.

Cody J. Dunavan

Surface Warfare Officer

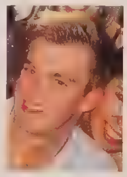
I was born on MCB Camp Lejeune in North Carolina but lived in several states throughout my childhood. I graduated from Sturgis Brown High School in Sturgis, S.D. as a member of the class of 2007. During high school I ran three marathons and was the CO of the Sturgis MCJROTC. While attending USNA, I became interested in swing dancing and now compete in many places around the country. Dancing has allowed me to travel to many places and has also helped me to create friendships that I will cherish forever. Thank you to all of my friends and especially my family for all of your support and for all the long talks over the last four years.

Anthony J. Fazio

USMC Ground

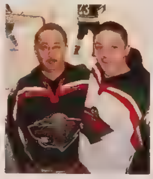
Looking for a good time? Then Tony is your man. How do you feel about male nudity? He's the most spontaneous, random, cowboy from upstate New York. When he's not finding new interesting ways to dress himself with yogurt and granola, Tony sports a belt buckle the size of Texas, cowboy boots, a big ol' truck that blasts Chevy hits "Like a Rock" because thats the man he is, a rock. Ladies love him for his low GPA and street hockey goalie skills. This Gargoyle, falls in love with soccer players, drinks, pukes, drinks, poops, drinks, grills, and makes a spicy meat-a-balls, when he's not rahing, sleeping, or causing riots.
Goodnight Tony

Adam R. Garfrerick



Submarines

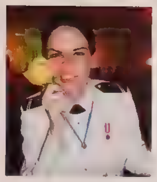
Garf is too smart for his own good. His mind is always working at twice the rate of a normal human being…except when he's driving. Maybe his BCG's somehow relax that enormous brain of his. Garf exemplifies manliness. His passion for food, football, beer, and chuck Norris, coupled with his southern manners, make him a man's man. But he's also a lady's man. He has boyish good looks that have been compared to famous teenage werewolves and even the likes of Justin Bieber. While he is not joyfully involved training plebes, you may find him trooping on the streets of New Orleans with gallon of water and box of Pop-Tarts. Roll Tide.



Garrett T. Griffin

Special Warfare

Gryffindor wins! Not at all related to the founder of the greatest house at Hogwarts, Godric Gryffindor, Garrett can show you some magic of his own. Working out in the morning, afternoon, and nights seven days weeks is not all there is. He fits in any chance to party while bombing down the slopes or soaking up the sun's glowing rays. Hailing from Imperial Beach, this SoCal native has a fast paced lifestyle that agrees with "if you can't sing, just sit down"



Sallie M. Haas

USMC Ground

Instead of New York City, Sallie's headed to Quantico. Parade! I'm winning, just kidding we're tied. Late night convos. Double digits, almost...only five. Infamous challenges. You're blowing my mind right now. It's what Carrie wore. Vegas & Scooby snacks. I told you I'd make out with you. I'm gonna lick you later. That's not your middle name… wait, what? Jumping out of another airplane, that's a good idea. Smile for me later? Marines are so dumb! Oh, wait… Mongoose. Are you coming with me? Please come with me! There are only a couple of stuffed animals... I don't have THAT much stuff.

The potential civilian-SWO-CEC who had the best second semester in Academy history. You did fall into a hot tub once; guess we can't blame you too much – it was past your 9 pm bedtime. How're those placemats going? The most diverse…movie…collection. Web-cam master. It's a gas turbine engine! I can show you! Let me show you! Bob the Builder is about to hit the Fleet!

Stephen E. B. Hicks

Surface Warfare Officer

The Great Debater. Sexy Steve or Ugly Steve? You decide. Always one to make friends, and never makes enemies. Or maybe the other way around. His silky, fine hair makes female midshipmen go weak in the knees. Known for his masterful sliding dance technique, he is frequently found moonwalking like his hero Michael Jackson in his mirror and the dark dance floors of DTA. Always the romantic, he likes to cruise in the "merc" blasting country love ballads for his newest soul mate. All jokes aside, a man of his word, a man of principle, honorable to a fault, a great friend. Trooper.

Neil C. Holmes

Submarines

Neal "iliveroots" Holmes was a son of the America's Corn Belt. Eating nothing but fruit snacks and spending most of his time playing Japanese children's video games, he artfully transformed his high school track star body into a pasty-white beer gut with remarkable PRT-passing (usually) abilities. He gained more weight over Christmas break firstie year than ever before, only to return and knock out his best PRT of his highlight-studded USNA career. He masterfully delegated his responsibilities until none were left. Master engineer with a near-perfect GPA, owner of 1/4 of a 1989 RV, class act roommate, Charlie Kelly. Let's chop cats.

Amy E. Lowe

Navy Pilot

Amy, known as Alamo to her hometown friends, is a dyed in the wool, true Texan, through and through. Being born and raised in the Great State of Texas made it hard for Amy to accept the Maryland license plates on her car. She was notorious for giving Plebes the assignment of finding out what year Navy played Texas Tech in a Bowl game. Even though she came to the Academy prepared to play trumpet in D&B, she soon found herself a Mello Girl. Love those Mellos! And she's Queen of the Nerds now, especially with all the quality time with her beloved robots. Four years at the Academy and she never did learn to spell.

Example: Eww, don't be such a niesbag!

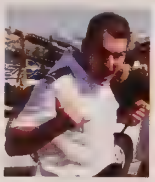
LITTLE AMERICA

Mikey Nolan, a native of NorCal, claims to be the world's biggest 49ers, Giants, and formerly Sacramento Kings fan. Still on a sabbatical for his free style rap battles sophomore year that was too soon, he was the brains of the NAAA. Although not considered a true strong safety, he ruled the defensive backfield for Sprint Football, where he was team captain. One of the few people who haven't changed through the years, Mike is a true friend who doesn't mind people borrowing his truck. Remembered by: VF for thee, cornhole, hating cats, leading Kilo Co, seamless, steps of the Lincoln, anger management, and the voice of reason.

William E. Nutting

USMC Air

NUTT! Who would have thought that a respectable, height deficient, Iowan pig farmer such as you would later become the best bowman that VOST has ever seen? Your Midwest charm has brought you success and opened doors to an aviation career that will surely be a trip. Your love for beer and knack for mischief make for a grand 'ole time. From chasing down purse snatchers, to hanging 105ft high, crawling underneath Toby Keith's stage, killing seagulls, sleeping in mansions, schmoozing at yacht clubs, killing beer towers, RV-ing, or waterboarding, all times have been great times and times to come are surely to be better. Oh, and Go Hawks!



Gregory C. Palmer

Navy Pilot

G-palms. All this son of the "Live Free or Die" state needs is a kilt, a classic single blade razor, subscription to National Review, his pipe, and a dirty martini (or G&T) and he'll die a happy man. He will be remembered for his nonchalance, carefree attitude, and 4Loko fueled summer exploits. Loyal guy, great friend, fun to be around. "NBD"

Zully G. Pasindo

USMC Ground

Zully Grisela Pasindo hails from Chicago, Illinois. When at home, she enjoys spending time with her family, making traditional Mexican fare, and cruising the streets in her green convertible Mustang. At the Naval Academy, she has had a distinguished career as a 19th Company squad leader, adjutant, plebe summer detailer, and unofficial Spanish language expert. Ms. Pasindo has spent four years as an intramural warrior, developing a reputation for ferocity on the field ball field. Ms. Pasindo will join the United States Marine Corps, a testament to her extreme motivation, love of uniform inspections, and high-quality "yut."

Kory L. Perez

Naval Aviation

God, duty, honor, America, family, athletic. Those are only a few of the words which could be used to accurately describe Kory. He is a man with strong convictions. He is dedicated to his religion and his family; he never let an opportunity to go home slip him by. Athletically gifted, he always seems to be good at every sport he plays. Kory you BEAST everything. To call him un-American is the greatest insult anyone could ever throw his way. Above all else, his friends will probably remember him most for his knack to ask the most random thought provoking questions and for his honest dislike of chocolate; always a shocker.

Miami SB, ND, G'town LAX, croquet, & EURO adventures. For a dollar she loves a parade, but can never finish a story. Belligerent. You're done. GOHM!

Allison K. Ranzau

Navy Pilot

Allison Kate Ranzau is a midshipman who sought academic excellence. After a stellar performance in Chem I, she later took part in the academia in a random Georgetown classroom. Aranz, a native of Alpharetta, GA was able to make history in the already historic "Blue & Gold" house. Although her record is squeaky clean, her conscious speaks otherwise. Ranzoni is the voice, role model, patriot, and enforcer of NWSD. If not sitting, swimming, or filming for the animal planet at the SD Zoo, she is making daunting discoveries that people actually ARE born naked. Keep rollin' with the punches, and ps-turn the library lights out.

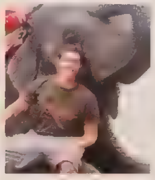
Alexander K. Samaniego

Submarines

Simply known as Al to those closest to him, this Long Island native and Arnold resident will be remembered for his extravagant dancing, bootylicious figure, determination to have FUN, ability to spend money, and suave bravado with the Annapolis ladies. An expert mathematician and scooterist, this social butterfly was a brick wall between the pipes and a dirty competitor on the pong table. While the ghost of Skinny Stewart will continue to grace the academy grounds, look for the pride of Sarum to bring loyalty and honor to the silent service. Dive deep, BGA!

Conor T. Sciford

Pilot



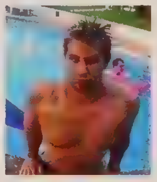
Fought tooth and nail to maintain his sanity while remaining SAT, which became a constant struggle from I-Day to graduation! His second class loan was devoted to creating new memories and experiences to drown out the dreadful moments at the Academy. If Japan, Thailand, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Mexico, England, and Israel weren't enough, he would also travel to a virtual world where he would dominate other midshipmen in games such as Call of Duty. Thank God it's over!

Jason T. Senko

Submarines

Hailing from Cincinnati, Jason has a fondness for Skyline cheese coneys. This systems major spent hours building a light up beer pong table and a hot tub out of a kiddie pool, to prove his superior engineering skills. Summer in Sasebo, great trips to NYC, and eating sunflower seeds to stay awake in class are all fond memories; but none can compare to his greatest accomplishment while a resident of Mother B, graduating from Ram's Head World Beer Club. Jason is an all around good guy, PRT stud, and winner of the ugly sweater contest. He is a serious man for serious times, so this soon to be submarine officer will certainly succeed.

Christofer F. Siedsma



Navy Pilot

What can we say? The past 4 years have been a hell of a ride. Ups and Downs, hills and troughs, but three roomies in which to confide. Even though we all thought you would service select Subs. You surprised us all, with that Nuke interview flub. How can we forget all the Polar Bear dreams and Army week schemes? Or a thorough Hibiclens scour and of course, you sleeping drunk in the shower. Popsicle sticks were your weapon of choice. And we laughed every time we heard your "command voice." But at the end of each day and four years past, A great friend, roommate, and a brother is what you are, and what will last. Goodnight Chris

Dallas B. Smith

Submarines

Is there a midshipman plainer than Dallas Smith? No, there is not. His courtship of his roommate's fiancée's younger sister was conducted with the utmost courtesy. Never before has a midshipmen looked so distinguished vomiting 23 whips into a water pitcher. If he is not sitting at his desk looking at Google maps, he is watching network sitcoms or napping. He has been known to extol the virtues of "beasting" activities, although never doing so himself. His claim to fame is being the reason we all had to call Brian Smith by his first and last name. He hopes to someday own a cow.

Richard A. Warner

Traci A. Willemse

USMC

Sweet Willemse. Dun, dun, da. In my world everyone is a pony, and they all eat rainbows, and poop butterflies. Traci, you rock my world. Cherry pie. Sweet tea. Let's do the fork in the garbage disposal! Sleeping on the floor all of firstie year; at least she is sleeping! The only people out in Annapolis, snow plows and us… Traci no-knees. Come back to the room quick, we have officially lost our minds. 100 ounces of pina colada. Hamsters. Which legs? These legs. We have different dance moves. NWS! The Union! We own the box! Ahhh! Infidel! We will never be friends. Veteran's day. Mmm electrons—We only do the march over once. Tall to short, left to right, dark to light. Yut yut. Ooorah. Devil Dog. Semper Fi.

Jeffrey P. Baluch

Submarines

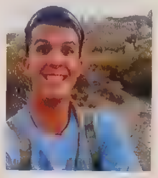
Hailing from the land of Perryopolis, PA, Jeff grew up next to Navy Street, watching Popeye, and digging holes in the backyard. Although he is the first member of his family to join the Navy, Jeff has dominated the Naval Academy worse than Mel Gibson dominates the English. During his time at the Academy, Jeff could most likely be found in Mac-D or his rack, never doing school work. An incredibly sophisticated student, Jeff will now get his learn on at Nuke School before heading to his first submarine

Stephen B. Bauchman

Navy Pilot

A wise man, while referring to his past, once said "Life is a ticket to the greatest ride on earth." However comma Stephen Bauchman was once quoted as saying "I just wanted to do hood rat things with my friends." According to the Chinese calendar it was the year of the pig when Bauchman enrolled into the Naval Academy, how fitting that would become. Bauchman was blessed with a metabolism of a crack addict, which fueled his fire for gluttony and sedentary behaviors. While at the academy, he patented the "Stephen Bauchman workout" which consisted of a vigorous display of high amounts of personal time, chocolate chip cookies and hibernation, 4 days a week during sports period. During the one day he rested from this workout he could be found being the most jovial 60th man any lacrosse team could ask for. Stephen Bauchman will always be remembered as everyone's lovable little brother with the world's best temperament. We Love you Stephen Bauchman!

Daniel S. Behne



USMC Ground

Yut! Motivate much? Scott Behne does. A true practitioner of the USMC ethos so motivated, he splits his forehead open and practices the complex barking language skills of the Marines for fun. Scott embraces all services though. He's been known to build scale models of F-18 hornets from LEGOs and even developed incurable insomnia as an Aero major in solidarity with his Navy brothers. On liberty, this warrior can be found along the median of I-97, just taking a nap in the sun and enjoying the fresh air. There's no one who can roll with the punches like Scott and will keep his buddies from jumping head first into a bad idea. Ooorah Scott!

James W. Beja

Just remember, Fievel - one man's sunset is another man's sunrise. I don't know what's out there beyond those hills. But if you ride yonder... head up, eyes steady, heart open... I think one day you'll find that you're the hero you've been looking for. ---(Wylie Burp, Fievel Goes West)

Christopher R. Bertucci

USMC Ground

"In the clearing stands a boxer
And a fighter by his trade
And he carries the reminders
Of every glove that laid him down
Or cut him till he cried out
In his anger and his shame
'I am leaving, I am leaving'
But the fighter still remains."

Andrew C. Blazuk

Submarines

Andrew came to the Naval Academy to do two of his favorite things: swim and talk about how he should have stuck with baseball. Andrew was a founding member of the BHK. Always a man to speak his mind and offer his opinion…five minutes too late. Andrew chose subs early just to prove that he could make a decision before everybody else and insists the only marine is a submarine. Deal or no deal, he always made a strong showing in DTA and would burn up the dance floor. A great friend who helped make the past four years special.

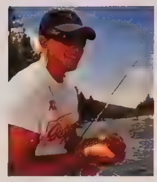
Shawn M. Bunting

USMC Pilot

"We slay the dragon!" Does a great impression of Penman and may have lit certain hairs on fire to keep away certain upperclassmen. His primary interests include contact sports, crab cakes, fireworks, and guns. He is a bow-legged, elf-eared, self proclaimed hole. We love you Shawn…Shalom.

Christopher C. Burke



Navy Pilot

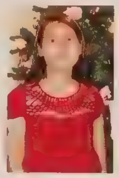
Chris Burke wakes up every morning and asks himself, "How can I improve the 20th Company." Then, he goes back to sleep. He's always there to give you a helping hand, whether you want one or not, and he's sure to give you his (and Tucker Max's) take on the world in the process. After nearly failing out of the Naval Academy, Chris decided to focus his efforts on drinking, skiing, and other Frosty pursuits. Ballerinas everywhere will tell you that Chris Burke is a terrible guy. After becoming a Fallen Angel, Chris hopes to work as a bar tender in the Florida Keys where he will likely write his autobiography.

Andre E. Byrd

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Andresias Emanuel Byrd is a fluent master of Spanish yet frequently gets lost in translation when asked simple questions such as "picante or no picante?" He is descendant from Spanish Jersey and Jamaica but was raised in the most dangerous city for pedestrions, Duval County. His main characteristics include passionate debater, devoted mentor, and wanna-be-freestyler. As part the football team, he states that his favorite memories were the steak and chocolate milk that he got everyday. He selected SWO and will heading for Norfolk; he is quoted as saying that he chose Norfolk because it was closest to USNA.

Lauren E. Cole



Surface Warfare Officer

Lauren hails from the mystical land known as Texas. All her life she knew the value of dollar, even when battling an epic cold, she stood proud in the Midstore and compared the price of tissues, certain that no cold would stand in her way. While at the academy her roommate and her were referred to as L squared. (For a short while L cubed was suggested but soon squashed.) But most of all, Lauren is one of the kindest, sweetest friends that anyone who attended the naval academy could have. She always knows the right thing to say and how to get her friends through the worst of their problems.

Alexander M. Dolan

Navy Pilot

Alex Dolan is from Co. Cork Ireland. He spent the majority of his childhood sailing dinghies and was part of the offshore sailing team here at the academy. He likes sunshine, beaches, swimming and sailing. He selected naval aviation and will be headed to P-cola in a few months. Sail on!

Lauren F. Ellefson

Surface Warfare Officer

Lauren Ellefson, (aka one half of "L^2), is a vivacious and cheerful girl from Southern California brought her energy to the Naval Academy. Her vibrant shouting of "Sound attention!" was never missed during parade season during the fall semester of firstie year. Her most productive work hours range from 2- 5 a.m. through countless hours and productivity of minesweeper, and a never ending stream of Hulu shows or queue of Netflix instant play movies. These are the secrets to her success of being able to conquer 20 page papers and two take home tests in a single night. Her strongest qualities though are being a caring and selfless person which makes her a lifelong friend.

Weston W. Floyd

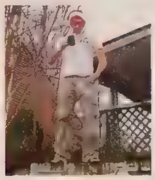
GREETINGS FROM

A proud native of [Texas] South Carolina, Wes' flounder-like physique and oh so tight sleeves attracts a myriad variety of women (old, young, crazy, zoomie, and even frosty!). Or is it his wisdom that attracts these maidens? After all, he can tell you what the weather is doing as it happens and a constant reminder of the danger of rusty beer bottles. It's hard to believe that this [pilot] [submariner] SWO failed his nuke interview in light of his impressive mathematical proof of 10-2=80% but 12-2 does not equal 80%



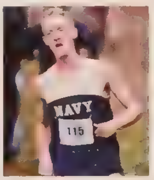
Anthony C. Gleis

USMC Pilot

If ever there was a definition of HARD… if ever there was an artist who painted with broad strokes of JUSTICE…if ever there was a giant who preferred BEER… His name would be Anthony Gleis. Raised in the tundra that is Minnesota, he fears no terrain whether it be in the swamps of Quantico or the snow drifts of Highway 50 (while going 50mph of course). Men fear him and women of the world throw themselves at his feet… exchange students in particular. He's been there, he's done that. And he'll put one between your eyes from a mile away if it's more convenient than the alternative…

Andrew B. Hanko

Submarines



Andrew crawled from the toxic waste of New Jersey and mutated into Navy's best long distance runner. He is never afraid to lead his teammates through the mines of Moria, or over the hills of the Naval Academy and Military Academy golf courses. He likes swordfish where the sun don't shine and watching the Notebook. He can also make a mean plum-strawberry-avocado smoothie. Andrew is also the best roommate a guy could ask for.

John L. Ingle

Naval Flight Officer

Hailing from Tallahassee, Florida, John is the pinnacle of knowing exactly what the correct action is to take for any situation…and then not following it. Words that do not describe him may be ‘neat, timely, studious, or a real engineer’. Words which describe him well are ‘Call of Duty, Oreo brownies, sushi, hiking, cross fit, great roommate, and friend’. Entering the Naval Academy after his fifth year of high school, the few times John actually showed initiative by pursuing a leadership position he was severely reprimanded by the senior officer in his chain of command—a clear indication of his great potential as a Naval Officer.

Lauren N. Jelinek

Naval Aviation

Lauren is truly a magnificent person.She might be abnormally tall, but her wild-child personality is the least of your worries. She is quite fascinating; you might find her in her natural habitat (STARBUCKS!), or working hardtoplay hard –breaking hearts and taking names! I’m honored to have befriended her.Although it takes me two steps for everyone one of hers, I strive to keep up with her super-human abilities. She is helpful with everything and always ready with a witty remark;she makes even the worst situations bearable. And so, Lauren, enjoy your celebratory shot of Jameson, and let your life’s adventures unfold! Cheers!

Daniel B. Johnson

Surface Warfare Officer

JMAN- Dan hails from a town called Mount Healthy This is where the SWO daddy started his quest In that hard working town there in the Midwest A chance to protect, the land of the brave and the free Denim Dan was off to serve America’s Navy In Dan’s first year, he stood a Man among men All present or accounted for, plus one epi-pen Dan wanted to fly high, way up in the sky But he had a calcium depot in the back of his eye He just put his ears back, Dan would never scoff he, wouldn’t mind chillin with his donuts and coffee So this concludes, the story of a real dude An American sailor, with a great attitude

Sean C. Kitchen

Surface Warfare Officer

A most excellent mullet sporting searcher, Sean put the exclamation mark on the Kitchen legacy at USNA. During his years of higher education, he could be found hucking partial flips off cornices in Tahoe, seeking the elusive East Coast barrel, and Razer touring the old country. In the small crew of Annapolis radicals, this soul skater was consistently at the forefront of cultivating as much next level adrenaline production as possible at all times, dude. When one needs a fellow seeker to journey through the midnight mountain blizzard of winter and sleep under an avalanche for fresh tracks through perfect pow, there is Sean Kitchen.

Steven J. Krajewski

USMC Ground

It may very well be impossible to describe Stick. A boy who likes to think he knows about Philly, the only lwt rower to ever sit in an IRA hwt boat, a world traveler often in Paris… We will forever ask him for ring dance details and advice after drowning our phones. An incredible heart and stern passion for success will compliment a future as a devil dog—although he will always be the "property of the Navy" and a SHARK at heart!

Travis A. Lippman

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Travis hails from the frozen corn fields of Hudson, Wisconsin. He always knew that he was destined for greatness at the Nation's finest Naval Academy and he set out to prove it. He went to regular college for the fond memories. Then, he enlisted and went to Nuke school to learn how to properly procrastinate and relax. Once Travis was accepted into the Academy, he breezed through the last real plebe summer and became a varsity manager. Travis then continued his run of excellence in the Astro track of engineering because it sounded cool. He finished his run as Plebe Summer Commander and Brigade Training officer. He's going places.

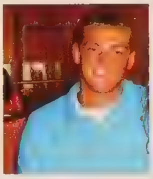
Stephen M. Lorenz

Surface Warfare Officer

Highly intelligent he enjoys taking trips around the world paid for by the US government. He has seen the Middle East and now wishes to see Asia. A born adventurer he prepares for his next escapade by constantly sleeping in order to conserve his energy for his next exploit. He also enjoys hording his money and is reported to have only bought a McD's burger with his second class loan. He has decided to return home to San Diego to serve on board a frigate because 'its nicer to sleep on the beach there.' It is not known if he will splurge on a mattress for his new apartment or just sleep on his vast bundles of cash.

Clayton W. Lydick

Surface Warfare Officer



"Do not be over come with evil, but overcome evil with good."
Romans 12:21

Grant A. Morgan

Submarines

Grant will always be "that homeschooled guy" from Ijamsville, MD (which no one can yet pronounce). Although he fills much of his time hammerin' away at the xylophone in D&B, he also enjoys a game of racquetball with a bro. He is thankful for his friends: Proverbs 17:17 "A friend loves at all times, and a brother is born for adversity." Most importantly he seeks to serve Jesus Christ, remembering the words of Galatians 2:20, "I have been crucified with Christ; and it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself up for me."

Isabella A. Noonan

Surface Warfare Officer

After leaving the streets of Brooklyn in her red velour tracksuit, The Noons, became a whole new person. Codename Crystal got her license at the age of 22, enjoys jumping off the 5 meter, has "HUGE" dinner plates, sleeps better with sausage inside her, enjoyed exploring Russia, and loves bald spots. Do not be fooled though she still takes pleasure in "axing" people, had a bad experience with wax, nearly killed the occupants on Ben's car twice in Philly, likes to card swipe strangers, and is the reason there are only 2 girls left in our class in her company. I wear shower shoes because of you...I love you Bell, BFF! OMG! MOH!

Phillip A. O'Shannessy

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Whilst attending Canoe-U, Phil has participated in a few activities. As part of the first trial group for the soaring summer program, he soared to new heights and became part of the elite two that were subsequently removed from the program. Phil also notes he was a member of the Adventure Racing Team as well as the notorious Intramural Warrior squads that thrash Hospital Point during sports period. When he wasn't using his time to workout, Phil enjoyed the social hours allotted by the academy, known as study period, to mingle amongst his peers – and occasionally study Systems Engineering. He has "selected" Nuclear Surface Warfare.

Christopher M. Ress

Caleb D.C. Sanders

Surface Warfare Officer

Known by many names, this tough guy, Caleb Sanders, hails from Cashville, TN. He spends his free time shopping for guns and taking notes on movies based upon con artists; when asked why, he simply states to improve his skills. He was allegedly picked for SWO because the combative communities "feared for the natives." He decided upon a frigate out of Norfolk because every other city was "too soft" for his tastes and did not have a large enough supply of squirrel and spaghetti with catfish. As for the frigate, he claims that he likes the brotherly atmosphere and that drug smuggler/pirate hunting has nothing to do with his pick.

John C. Sauls

Navy Pilot

It's not easy doing naked pull-ups, but he can do them all day every day… no problem. After all, when someone has taken the Supe's daughter out, painted Warhammer Space Marines like a boss, and literally pissed off every medical professional affiliated with the Academy, why not. He knows playin' fubol on da fubol field all his life is why he's playin' fubol today, there ain't no arguing that fact. So while the rest of you can only dream about heavy metal screaming on his level, this tree-top flyer will be out there looking for his next target, knowing that it usually takes two bombs to do the job…

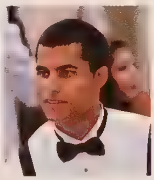
Anthony L. Scalamogna

Navy Pilot

"So guys, I've got a genius idea…" are the most dangerous and regretted words in the English language when spoken by Scal. Hailing from the land of sunshine, bad drivers, and the retired, He marches to the beat of his own drum…a very out of tune drum that drowns out words like excess. Whether it's spring break in PCB, driving through Snowpocalypse to take over G-town, or downing a bottle of absinthe at croquet there is nothing standing in his way when he gets the itch. Scal is built for pleasure not for speed, but there is no greater friend who is willing to help a guy out even if means sprinting to jump on the grenade. Bottoms up!

Tyler T. Terronez

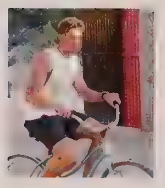
Navy Pilot



Tyler Terronez, considered the most handsome guy in the brigade, hails from all over the world (Italy, Oklahoma, Mexico). The offensive team captain and QB of SFB, Tyler led the team with a smile and perfect spiral. He spent his youngster summer on restriction after tap-n-going to see Angels and Demons. He's only our friend so we can hang out with his cool parents, sisters, and crib in PA. T will be remembered by: Roy, Dale, Yak-Ma, falling in love at the prayer breakfast, often confused with Team Jacob, Coliseum, skiroundtop, Costa Frica, USA roadtrip, slip n slide, dip girl, the inadvertent grab, best all around, and 15 passies.

Blaine Tonking

USMC Ground



After exploding from the womb of Mother Nature, Blaine found himself stranded alone in the depths of the Himalayas. He bore nothing but a loin cloth, which he wore as a bandana to cover his beautiful, flowing hair. This however did not stop him. He persevered for months battling the cold and all wild beasts in his path. Little did they know that he too was tapped into the inner beast, teeth yellower than any animals, breath that could cause even the most heinous animal to cringe. In the summer of 2007 this man beast was captured and brought to USNA where he was put on display for all the far superior animals to stare at in awe. He is a beast of strength, but values friendship and honor. He is always there, for the highs and the lows, unless he has a drink and then he is face first into the toilet. He is true to himself, and does not let his virtues sway, and that is good for me on any day. –PKS SJK

Giancarlo M. Alpuche

Belize Foreign National

When our squad leader asked "Alpuche, did you just eat that sticker?" after biting into his apple; we knew in would be a fun ride. Since then, it has been a whirlwind of smoodies, waar, wax experiments, strolls with a pillow and "I need water." A year isn't complete without Puche giving his best Eeyore impression with those big, brown, drooping eyes as he burns the midnight oil. Our Big Brown Bear brings the Latino heat and promises to show you the moon and the stars, because that's where his future will take him. The wagon is strong forever, and his friendships are without out boundaries. It's a jungle out there, Good Luck!

Matthew Y. Burch

Navy Pilot

Rack. Can it end here? There's really not much more to say. Oh wait, is he awake? Or is that Pussers table really that comfortable? Ah, look! Burch has a new video for us all to analyze. Fast forward to the end! Don't mind that we are both in the room right now, we enjoy watching you at work. Should we Bravo? No, we have Burch! Our little chariot boy, we've gotten him to get after it maybe twice at our time herethat might be generous. Don't worry Vein, I'm sure she just misheard you about the Heineken. Why are you so angry? Don't get us kicked out again! It's a shame you will only get a mandatory 8 hours of sleep. Personally, I wouldn't trust you behind a Segway off of 14 hours, but P-cola is where you belong. Good luck Cheecher, we'll be cheechin' you.

Paloma B. Cantu

Joseph T. Carroll

USMC Ground

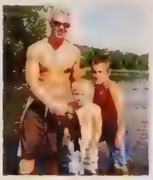
Joey Carroll, what is there to say about this small-handed, antagonistic, soon to be Marine? If you look in the dictionary, next to the word catalyst, you will see a picture of Joe. With all the guile you'd expect of a true Irishman, Joe can convince, coerce, or otherwise compel you into doing anything from riding a bronze buffalo at 1am to swimming (while slightly intoxicated) across a river and commandeering a neighbor's dock. (Ring Dance anyone?) And who could forget about Drexel, Billy: 1 Joe: 0 (Watch out Jessie!) Or Duke (I choose you Pikachu!) Here's to four years of fun and misadventure, good luck in the Corps. BAMCIS!

Victoria L. Crabbe

USMC Ground

Hailing from Kingsville, TEXAS. (Did I say TEXAS. Texas!) RAH. Vicky Crabbe, Queen of Crew, has had far more impressive injuries than you. Broken bones, Slave sport, Severn water, Shiner. NAFOD at it's max- livin' life to the fullest. Erging- need I say more? Impromptu snowball and wall-ball fights, Mexican gangster music! <(beer)> rolley chair dancing – is that a seizure?, watching Netflix over your shoulder, "highly weird," text convos about the boy IN THE ROOM haha. Dr. Pepper, Starstruck, Oakleys (x6!), BFF's. My Marine, you are so hayyyhuuutttt hawt. Rah. KMD. Thanks for keeping it real.

William H. Cunningham II



USMC Ground

B –I –L –L –Y! Go BILLY! The Group Slice came to us a fresh piece of unmolded putty and after 4 years of intense training by the clan has emerged a lean, killing machine; his once gullible politeness replaced by an insatiable appetite for death and destruction (AND Joey's blood?). The beast has found his beauty in Jacqui and has grouped his "don't mind me!" days in the distant past. Despite his aggressive nature, Billy is a true friend, one to depend on. He leaps into action at the cry "BROKEN ARROW!" and carries out SAR's in the dead of the night. He is Billy-The Marine, He is a brother.

Robert A. Del Conte Jr.

Information Warfare

Robert Del Conte, whether he is beating up on the Baby or running from his grasp, he always had a crazy comment to make. Maybe even a few crazy noises to go with those comments. Going out to have a crazy night of techno dancing and finding his one true love (to be taken away by the lonely friend), that is if he can take a weekend. Always ready to be a helping hand and always willing to tell you what he thinks. Rob might be the craziest information warrior that the Navy has ever had.

Aaron D. Foote

USMC Ground

His name is perfect for a XC/ track runner. Fleet of "Foote" and sleek as a Ferrari, he cruises under the radar on the Navy cross-country team. Elitist attitude with twin pistons, purely domineering personality- negative waves slide off him cause he's "Iceman". "Mav, this is Ice, I'm goin in", going in Wes B to toss around. Duke Blue Devils Champs 2010. Loyal to Navy Cross Country and its many traditions, has a skeleton swordfish on the Green Bean tire cover. Destroys all challenges in his path. "Stay low". Footenasty is ready to put the team on his back…provided he gets a enough sleep. Selection night his room ran out of water.

William A. Francis

Naval Aviation

Although from Harrisburg, PA Billy Bones is a self-proclaimed son of Pittsburgh. Unfortunately, the Stillers and Pens fared well in our time here, allowing Bill every opportunity to gloat, an opportunity he did not pass up. When not rowing or pawning n00bs, Billy found himself on the dance floor displaying his signature moves not only in Naptown, but in Oak Ridge as well. And Ring Dance! Being voted best couple and smashing the piñata was vintage Bill. It's been a fast 4 years and we Navy Lights can't thank you enough for the endless laughs and great times we've shared. Good luck in Pensacola, we know you'll kill it. SHARK ATTACK!

Martin F. Gallagher III

Submarines

Martydude is fun spirited and is usually the laugh of the party. If not on the lacrosse field, he can be found with his cheesing smile on the prowl at the great establishment, ACME. In the past he was the lead singer/songwriter for his high school boy band, but he has now matured into the team captain and leader of the Navy Men's Lacrosse team. The shark will be continuing his partying and schooling in Charelston by joining the submarine community. It's all good!

Michael A. Guibas

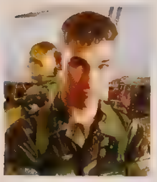
Submarines

Guibo, Guibius, Mike. Through your motivational fieldball coaching speeches you have demonstrated that this institution has prepared you to lead in the Navy. We're all anticipating your life's documentary, "Top Nuke", in which your life's greatest accomplishment of performing a barrel role in a submarine will be highlighted (top that CAPT Jarrett). Under your wrath as 5th Battalion Commander the battalion performed well except for your "former company", but you can only do so much. There is a bright future awaiting you and we know that you'll represent the Naval Academy well. I wish you success and happiness in everything you do.

Alan M. Janigian

Surface Warfare Officer

Oh Honey Bear! SWOtivator from the start. Alan tirelessly spent his time at the naval academy preparing for the rigors of a naval career by enduring late nights beating video-game after video-game. He left a lasting mark on the Academy by helping to forge the new Brigade Honor Concept. He cared about his underclass, and was always there to lend them advice or to back them up to his superiors. Alan was always able to make his classmates laugh, whether it was with him or at him didn't really matter. He is always a great guy to be around and oh what fun it has been. Just remember "pecks and abs, that's all that matters."



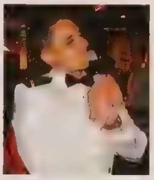
Clinton R. Jones

USMC Ground

Leader of men (and sometimes women…but especially E'vans), this knife-handing, gun-toting faun look-alike hails from KC-MO where he learned to appreciate the gangsta skills of Einstein Tech N9ne. “I wanna fly! Wait, I can't? Oh, I can? Screw flying, BAMCIS!” “It's so cold! I'm delicate, OK?” SARB survivor and addicted online shopper that loves sleeping with large and heavy… blankets? The most humble person you know. Seriously though, you are undoubtedly a man after God's own heart, one of character, humility, and proficiency. It has been and certainly will be an honor and pleasure to serve alongside you in the Corps. Semper Fi.

Michael R. Malandra

USMC Ground



So fat. So man. FAT MAN! The man who has single-leggedly set every single high school record in every position of every sport in the state of Pennsylvania. No wonder your blockish head (with immaculate combover) is present on every female plebe's corkboard. I like to describe Mikey by the 60% rule. Take whatever he says, and reduce or increase by 60% in the reasonable direction. AGHH! I SQUATTED 5000 lbs TODAY! Easy. Only 2000 lbs. No big deal. Mikey can be found in 4 locations: in the real world slaying huge dragons with his hysterically fat and ugly friends, singing his own praises in the P-way and talking about himself to anyone who will listen (Plebes and Loeffelman), pretending to workout, or in DTA consuming his 30th beer (12th) while enjoying the AC. The savior of the masses, you will be forever missed. Enjoy UPenn and the United States Cheech Corps. Cheech, BAMCIS, CHEECH!

Cory S. McArtor

USMC Ground

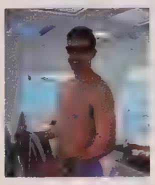
Cory McArtor, a man from Kentucky who is often spotted without shoes, without teeth, and running rampantly through the woods. We will never quite understand his sadistic love for running ridiculously long distances. Upon encounters with him, do not be deceived by his seemingly lack of emotion…Anyone that is close to him knows that he is actually plotting your murder. All joking aside, no one could ask for a more loyal friend and brother. Those he leads will undoubtedly see his heart of gold, unwavering character, and passion to serve. This place was merely a stepping stone to his much more significant purpose. May God bless you.

Matthew M. McGury

Submarines

What to say about “Old Man” McGury? It took him five applications but he finally made it to the Academy after taking the hard way through the corps (the reactor corps!) The only plebe in 21st co. who already knew how to properly fold his issued clothes, Matt has been using his enlisted experience as a reality check for the class ever since. The only person who puts down a physics textbook to free read about old physicists, his nerdish qualities paid off firstie year with the freedom that only VGEP and a gifted car can bring. He aimed for the clouds and ended up beneath the waves, but we all saw that coming. In the words of the salty old Captain at your board, “he'll make a hell of a submarine skipper one day.”

Meredith A. McKaig



Collin A. Meador

Surface Warfare Officer

Collin Meador: Workout beast with a lazy streak. His only weakness is candy from Mom. And maybe some peer-pressure, too. Whether scaling Mount Halsey or swimming in the depths of the deep dungeon sea, Collin never cut a workout short… except for maybe a few. Much like his homework, something that he could never be seen doing. Maybe his epic movie watching skills made up for the school work, though. Through it all, he remained quiet and competent, and declared himself to become "the best damned ship driver out there."

Christopher G. Memminger

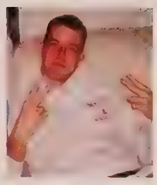
Navy Pilot

He came to us a singing mouse, "Whats up sir." We soon found "Memms" to be more like a different barnyard animal. Captain's Mast on his first visit to the real Navy. Ready to lead the company as a 3/C, with the command, "Company right shoulder, arms". Memms prefers to dine on Chinese delicacies in the room, especially seaweed and tea. Relentlessly organizing big projects it seems he is always working on some kind of large humanitarian relief effort while the rest of us are just trying to coordinate a trip to steerage. Always dependable when you are in a pickle, there is no telling how high this pilot will soar.

Jason M. Morin

USMC Ground

Madam, you are speaking to a military genius! My strategies have been compared to those of Napoleon. Lance Corporal, Quarterdeck Grad, and Academic Success Program success story. Jason rose from confines of bitter Norwich, and the steaming jungles of Honduras, to join the ranks of Midshipmen. Never leaving behind his New England roots, the Patriots, Red Sox, and Celtics were a constant focus of his passions; even though Brady didn't reach 19-0! Football Manager, Intramural Hockey superstar, and beast of the 7th Wing Gym. From Canteen Boy to Atlas, 2nd Lt Morin survived the daily struggles of the Academy and accomplished his goals.



Mark A. Munson Jr.

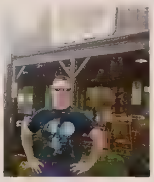
Surface Warfare Officer

Big Muns. Polar Bear. Big Baby Munson. Mark's loved every minute of the Academy ever since UJ brought him in; thankfully his time here turned out a bit better. Spin shirts above his head and take naps on tables. Just make sure he doesn't make up any stories about firsts. MAM senior paved the way for the Baby in a successful career, and it was rep'd every day by his anchors. Don't worry no one remembers that he had to switch cause he was just too smart for EASA. Mark spent most of his time working out like a beast and in DTA to show his ankle socks to girls. Have fun in Norfolk; I'm sure we'd all like to be a little closer to KM.

Enick R. Neely

USMC Pilot

"Nelly! Why are you always so late?!" Since leaving the reservation back in Oklahoma, Enick Neely, AKA Nock, AKA the Landshark has been the epitome of promptness. With a sense of urgency that would make a sloth resemble a cheetah, Enick can always be counted on to appear just after the nick of time. But with all those late nights spent chasing after his favorite mistress, a very cute night-elf-mage-sorceress, who wouldn't be a bit sluggish in the morning? But now the quests and raids, and even the flying machine he built for his mage become real. A good roommate, a better friend, have fun on your next adventure in the Corps.



Travis M. Nicks

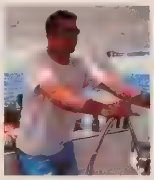
Submarines

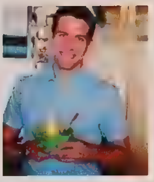
Always eccentric, Travis hails from Tulsa, OK—from which sprang sliced bread, the wheel, and America—and still he promotes liberalism. Always hungry and never too bashful to eat your food, he frequents the Big Cheese, chews cinnamon stalks, and performs culinary feats with a Foreman and a toaster oven; An Ocean E member, his heart lies with the Dark Side: Poli Sci. Traveling round the country as NAFAC's token engineer, he charms the ladies with his witty banter (If ya ain't Annie, ask why… too soon?). Unless also acclimating to sub life, you don't know Travis at his peak: 3 am. Strange slumber aside, our Voice of the Brigade disarms restricting Sr. Chiefs and snooty Mids with his eloquence. Our wordsmith will show the fleet that "you can prove anything with facts!" "And, about the major make-out sess..."

Christopher L. Phillips

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Grandpa Phillips. A descendant of the Pilgrims, you claim lineage to the Mayflower. A product of the gold rush, you stick true to your native routes. A Padre and Chargers fan through the worst of times. You tell the best of tales. If only everyone could be as awesome as you. Sea stories filled about women, diving for lobsters, and of course SEALS. You came here to play football, yet ended up working for G. A product of JROTC, you truly were a step ahead of the rest. Your hairy mane only lost you a few seconds on the PST. Your success dwarfs that of Phillip's Standard Oil. Nothing like cruising in Daddy's wheels. Good luck with EOD.

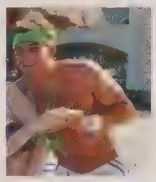




Matthew D. Pierson

SEALs

Matthew Dean Blocky TB Pierson is the king of the room workout, the 8- song DJ, the Milk Camel, and so much more. He is the Dennis Rodman box out champ of the sink, the only person we know that would buy a yoga mat at the fish market, and the only man to contract a multitude of diseases while at the Academy, including TB, Mono, CB, esophageal ulcers, Frosty, and an abscess. It's too bad that food scavenging isn't a service selection, or Matt would graduate as a flag officer. Blocky, all in all, you are a good roommate, but a better friend; we wish you the best of luck at BUDS.



Michael A. Porcelli

Submarines

Porkchop, Kelly Slater, Mr. guess how much I benched today. What month is it? The word genius who can't spell and needs a voyage200 for simple math. Too bad those free roids don't work on the brain. This 4 year youngster is the only mid to every beat Smitty in a shot contest. Darth Vader's list of legends includes the crier, Senator's daughter, Marko's girl, born in Maine, ShellFish, and the Women's soccer team, just off of short-term memory. Even though you spent more time fixing your iPhone than studying, we know you'll still kill it at Nuke School. We'll never forget the adventures in the kennel or the man who made them epic.

Matthew R. Robida

Navy Pilot

Gnome, Joebida, Hooyah, Hobbit, Kurtains, Blows, Ship. The man known by so many names but defined by one, Jenny. "Where's the gnome?" "Jenny." Must have said it ten thousand times. The rage is building, the rage is building! SNAP. Laying waste to a semester's worth of notes over OWLs. Codfish. Had a cheechin' good time on your birthday and never looked back, except for the occasional Toro, where nights go to die. Ever the wilderness man, snowboarding, camping, hiking, already planning retirement in Montana, kid was meant for the Paleolithic Age. Won the award for girlfriend with the best baked goods, can't wait to see that metabolism fade… Constantly the voice of reason within a sea of emotion, many have looked to you for reassurance. Good luck in Pensacola, have fun, don't flunk out and remember to always cheech. If your role as 1st LT is an indication of future success, the Navy might want to hang on to you.

Aaron L. Rosa

Naval Flight Officer

Ben Stein, Shakespeare, Blowsa, stromaxx- common room jargon used for our newest brethren. Aaron may be the most dramatic male to ever attend the Naval Academy. Quite frankly without Black Ops Zombies, [blowsa-D] would lose his mind to Glee and Modern Family. A 4-seconds-from-failing, two-time stop and walk PRT Champion, you can see Aaron always leading from the front. Aaron, best of luck in Combat, hope your adamantium ring doesn't hold you back from your dreams and remember 4060 will always have your back.

Luis E. Sanchez

Naval Flight Officer

What is a Cheech? To be cheeched, cheeching… cheech is an extremely diverse word in the english language. Suffocating every morning. Lungs filled with baby powder. Salsa music. Always working towards perfection...those two a day workouts. A physical specimen. Dexter, Glee always downloading from the internet making great use of the issued external. Reigning from the great state of VA. Never ceased to hone his snowboarding skills. Taking showers whereever he pleased. Cheecemus Maximus, cheechy….CHEEECCHHH. Everyone knows Cheech. Look out Pensacola you are not ready.

Catherine M. Sheerin

Surface Warfare Officer

Cate the great from College Park! MD…home to 21st Company! lunacy, crazy nights and crashing in the basement? "I can't control it, Sir!" [insert head-wobble]. 4 years of swimming, chlorine, and being a beast in a pool. Random songs bring back memories, played too many times in one day, <DANCE BREAK>?! Library nerd. From her early days in Lima to our years in Lejeune, she was that elated "Woo" of excitement, or a gargled "ArghAah" of displeasure; Cate is the sound effect setting on a keyboard. NWSD will never forget Cate's noises or kindness. Swo-tivated, motivated, the Navy is lucky to get this one: that ballin swooolifee. kmd6

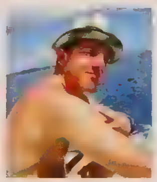
Neil S. Tublin

Naval Aviation

Tubz, where do I start? From being fried for listening to the State of the Union address to rising to the role of CC, you've come a long way. A master of multitasking, you can always be found creeping on Facebook or surfing through YouTube videos, yet you are somehow always "working." And working HARD! God forbid you miss a SEALfit workout. Bouncing around between sports, you settled on Rugby and rose to the "top of the middle" demonstrating your perseverance and dedication. Oh, and your hoarding skills are unmatched! Neil, you are a great friend, roommate, and American. I wish you the very best of luck in P-cola. Stay dangerous!

Stephen C. Usery

USMC Air



In my best South Carolinian accent: Stevo! Hey, we don't need to fight. (Then getting knocked out). Run, Stephen, Run! I got my initials tattooed on my arm so I can remember who I am. The BVI couldn't handle Stevo! So I put my hands up, they're playin' my song. The butterflies fly away. Noddin' my head like ya, movin' my hips like ya. YOU FLIPPED MY CAR! Always have the best intentions. Jack D is his best friend. BVI, PCB…Epic! (Besides getting sick that one time). What'd you say to me Munson?! Whoa put the knife away. Great guy, as good as they come.

Patrick G. Veltman

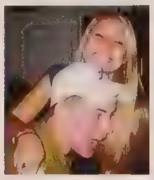
PGV3, Pontius Peeves, Tank. Whichever of his monikers you choose, count on an argument regarding your choice. Whether climbing imaginary fences or procuring coveted treasures, Peeves will be there. SB 09': BASs, BGPs belligerence, Bottles, War Eagles, & Pikes. SBX: Plastic Railings and Rayon, a new addiction. A true creature of habit, enjoy some Chickfila or Fuddruckers ever time one chooses to spend time with him, and then keep enjoying with the incredible smells that he produces. Through wonderfully surprising nights at the Hotel Rouge, and long drives at night over Christmas break, Peeves was there and he surely always will be.



Robert Wynne

Surface Warfare Officer

What can I say, or where should I start? Bam-bam/slant/cheech/hoodrat – just always getting' after it! From Dock Street to Dillos to the Fleet to Pussers…where did I leave my card? Dad, I need another five grand! Just put it on the card – I don't think another credit card in the world has seen as much use as the IBB – doubled the transactions of the bank. Should have invested heavily in that. No, we chose AONE instead. CHEECH! Speaking of going out and dancing, it became pretty obvious you couldn't see out of your one eye. It's just a shame you won't join me in the Corps. I'll just think of you getting a tan on your cruise while the rest of us are fighting the good fight. Couldn't have had a better roommate. Good luck at Oxford and with SWOOOO! By the way – your Frosty is still all over my rack. And, about the major make-out sess...

Nigerian Nightmare. The blackest person we all know ... great for hide-n-seek with Doboy. REALLY loves 22nd Company. The crying-woman laugh. Leaves his legs at the bar. 21st birthday visit with the OOW … almost dressed up Diggs for the occasion. Baby-wipes with Mom. Brooks' seconds and victim. Lent Clark Vaseline … never again. Has had the biggest GPA swings at USNA. SWO … no, Marines … no, Subs … no, SWO … fine, Marines. Drives the most stereotypical car … EVER. "Dare we don't have time for you to buy orange drank." Better at drill than Zach … and SSgt. Brigade XO & Brigade Boxing Champ. A loyal roommate, destined for greatness.

Natalie A. Albertson

Navy Pilot

El Capitan with the 4th N*, the IM Queen, the Minnesota Viking, our beloved real-life encyclopedia, this is girl is going far! Our wealth of knowledge, "Mom" to many but friend to so many more; Natalie you kept us in line. Always working hard and being blunt thanks for keeping the NWSD team going. No one is quite as sarcastic yet so sincere and compassionate. All those people who say every day is a new day – well it's been swim, eat, school, swim, eat, school, swim, eat, homework, repeat… so I guess that's a no. But now things are changing and even though you hate birds, you will love flying them. Best of luck Nat!

Brittney M. Boucher

USMC Ground

With swag in her step and a gleam in her eye Brittney Boucher has lived life to the max in her four years by the bay. Nothing can stop her, not a thing; most people would take a break when they tear their calf muscle...not Brit, nope, she decided to max the PRT, no big deal. A true renaissance woman Brit not only excels in academics as an ocean engineer, winning a grant to build the next generation of ocean energy; she also championed not one, but four varsity sports, even going on to captain Navy Tennis. One day she will be a brain surgeon with that perfect house on the beach, with that one essential neighbor… Robert Downey Jr. ;)

John A. Bowen

Submarine Warfare

MAAAN-VAAANNN! Human baseball encyclopedia. Pick-6 baby! Yeah … Bowen's paying. Belt! Universally known as one-shot. Father of Mark Reis Bowen. Worst shot in the Navy. Voted most likely to go on a shooting rampage and not hit anything. World champion of Balloonster '09. The infamous Nav explosion. Spring Break whaler. D.C. subway bathroom breaks. One girl, one hour. Spent his nuke bonus on Packers Super Bowl memorabilia. You really would have liked Celio! John was at Air Force. Should have gone EOD … diffused the company time-bomb. One of the most hilarious people in the company (and he'll let you know it).

Clinton A. Brown

Navy Pilot

Alex J. Clark

Navy Pilot

Alex "W" Clark is never afraid to just hang out. The State Champion of Swimming has always dominated sports except for the time he chose OPINFO over practice. Loves early morning workouts even after pulling an all-nighter at the local talent show. He has never been wrong. His fresh scent has been known to clear rooms. He really should have been on drill staff (at least that way he would avoid the Army-Navy game). Sons of the Severn.

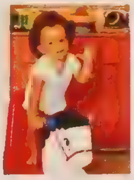
Caleb W. Cronic

Surface Warfare Officer

Caleb Cronic… a true brave- heart (complete with no britches under the kilt and all… he's not afraid to show you. He even has two holes.) Honorary member of 1st squad best squad. Takes accountability to see what's going on, doesn't "give a damn" his cadres favorite movie is Gone With The Wind. Jamaican Gunny? Cronic? Coincidence? sure…. Killing zombies, poli-sci and swo, "its just what I wanna do," the ka-choo-choo bird, and the Atlanta Braves. Go dawgs. Man-wich, the olllld west, Aviator wings, no dance routines. Once known as Crotterson due to an infamous love chit with a certain member of 24th company. My name's huckleberry, you're huckleberry too?!?

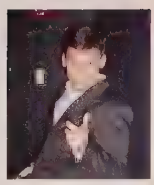
Casey A. Czarzasty

Surface Warfare Officer



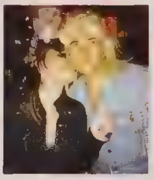
Lives for Duke Basketball, Philadelphia Sports, and Politics

Christopher J. Dematteo



Submarine Warfare

Boopity boppity beep. Slappity? Fellas! DEMATTE-HO. Frying like '09. The Stalin of 22nd Company. Ring Dance "naps." The flow that made a gay man fall in love. Plebe Summer Viking. Check behind the couch at Toga. The Godfather. The grandpa of all 21-year-olds: a bad back, indigestion after 5, and rumored ED. Gab's pampered prince. Took a gastrointestinal tour of Italy. The only 2 percent-er with a relationship that had a strong 2-week background before I-Day. An entire paycheck spent at Nano's Youngster year resulted in a stern motherly lecture. Most solid friend we could ask for. Good luck in the Submarine Force!



Michael M. Dobrinen

USMC Pilot

Doboy fresh. Worst wingman EVER! Serial monogamist. "I won't have a girlfriend when I go to Prague." NMMI. Hair sweater. Lily Powers. With a 1.0 at six-weeks ... "Dude, I just need to relax." Chef master supreme in his man-cave. "Roses are red, violets are bluish, in case you didn't know, Mike is Jewish." What are you doing this weekend, Mike? Ships in Spaaaceee. King Koopa. The most molestable friend ever. Picked Marine Aviation at the last minute. You'll do fine in Flight School, even though you took Dirt. The most genuine and patient guy in the company. We all love you (almost as much as Amy).

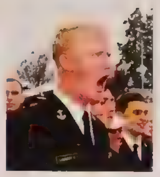
Yoshikoson U. Haddon

Surface Warfare Officer

Has a knack for selling anything, yet he is the worst investor we know. Got any headphones? Truly dumb for a smart guy. The greatest dancer we know (hip thrust). Has a healthy taste for voluptuous women. The "stanky leg". Self cleansing/ a built up immunity to disease. A trustworthy ride in style. "dirty little Asians make angry Buddha's." An art for wearing his food. Most likely to be a millionaire…or end up in jail. A sincere and honest person, who always has the best intensions. Light-hearted. Cares for others before himself—a trait that will serve him greatly in the fleet.

Benjamin A. James

USMC Ground



Clarence F.S. Lambert

Navy Pilot

What did you spend 1000 Czech sloggies on? There's a she-Skip in your closet! "Hey Skip, could you do me a favor and sing for the next 4 years?" Jason Derulo. Goosed Cord. The most annoying individual in company. Nice to everyone, except those he likes the most. Turns a 20-second statement into a 20-minute story. The 22nd Company safety observer on liberty. His favorite place to go on the weekend is his desk. "Yes Skip, it's too late to go to Penn State." Romig's one true love. Meat-spin! Wiggle-boarding with his damned guitar. Won't start work until everyone else is asleep. Always has your back. Good luck at Flight School!

Alexander W. Laun

Submarine Warfare

Shaundra Brown. "Laun, that's called fistin'." The human typewriter. Ate a whole cucumber in one sitting. Frost bite! "I'd motorboat the s out of those!" The dub whisperer. It's a good thing Alex has small hands… for her sake. Destroyed the streets of NYC, rescued by Bianca. Becomes the fifth member of "Sex in the City" when he gets drunk. "Hey Alex, can you take BOOW for me?" Got accepted to Oxford, told nobody. Will room with Scales at power school. Drinks estrogen in a bottle. Accountabili-buddies. Looks good in a dress. Only feedback we ever read. Number 4 in our class, 1 in our hearts. Without a doubt 1st to make Admiral.

Elizabeth S. Loveland

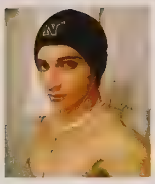
Surface Warfare Officer

Has anyone found Bill the Goat yet? Well we know he wasn't in Panama City because Lizzy was there grinding her "assets" on a big dark man. She always seemed to gain attention from them resulting in almost every night in DTA ending with a massive brawl involving Sheehan. Always known for her big heart, she was always looking out for others, even if that required waking up everyone by exploding M-80s inside the house. Margaritas were always her downfall especially the blackout that was Preakness. Hosting drunken parties was her specialty even though it cost her time. She will always be welcome on 6-3 no matter what chuck says.

Zachary M. Maldonado

USMC Ground

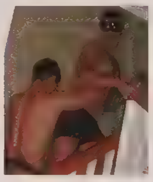
The angry Mexican. Scales' best friend. "Give me some fu@*&n chicken nuggets … I don't care what they cost." Threw up in his cover … and his backpack … and everywhere else. Cheated on and engaged in the same weekend … in that order. Drinks Dole juice in a wife-beater. Mojitos and Mike's Hard Lemonade. Napoleon complex. Instant anger. Kept LT on a short leash. Battling the Mule … and not Army. The Beta male of the room. One of the Maldo-noski twins. JROTC. X-rated Blackberry movies. Balcony barfing on a cruise ship. A gardener at Ring Dance. One of the best leaders in the company. A genuine guy who will make a great Marine!



Steven N. Malinoski

Submarine Warfare

Little Bear. Currently working on the manual for life. Super calculated. Thanks for the wedding invite, Steve! Wanted every service selection, except Marines. Planned the wedding before popping the question. The fumbled proposal at Ring Dance. Business trips to Atlantic City. The other Maldonoski twin. Hairy ass. Shook the elevator. "This apartment's in a good school district!" Taught us how to wear ties. The perfect budget: $300 for eating out, $100 for groceries. Midget fetish. A caring friend and a dedicated family man. Born for nuclear power. Enjoy married life!



Christopher C. Miller

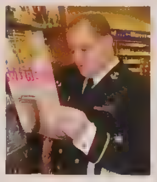
Naval Flight Officer

Chobbs. Scoobe in the bathtub. Shirt-pants. Pant-shirt. Role switch with Travis Nicks. Best tour guide at the Empire State Building. "I can ride my bike with no handlebars." CAPT Jarrett's favorite mid. Leader of the World Series expeditions … twice. "Call me Daddy." Loan on a Corvette … which he's now selling. Date! Chris Miller v. the State of Maryland. Gin bucket extraordinaire. The sole reason we lost an $800 safety deposit. Huge a-hole. Eyeball shots. Kleptomaniac when drunk. Plebe-reg clawset. It's "MAHR-EE-OH". Cinnastick. Annoying cackle. Why are you always with Gill? A loyal friend. You can't change majors at Flight School!

Christian Mineur

Submarine Warfare

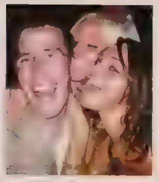
Checkmate! I love Pack … and Thrasher. 9 times in one night? Impeccable stamina (inhuman). I think he's in Justin North's room? The suit that always closes. The Superman shirt that always closes. The Porsche that always closes. Keg stand … solo. Weekend trips to Tennessee … FAIL! Thank God he's better at poker. Dude, chicks dig magic tricks! "Throw it, and I'll film it." Sh@*-eating grin. The Tetris wars of '09. "Hey, did you hear that I got a better grade?" Hasn't seen his floor in 4 years. Parachuting in. Christening the Man-Van? One of the smartest guys we know. O-4 in 6 years. Thanks for all the stories!



Colcord D. Moore

Surface Warfare Officer

Colcordius the Great. Cordy-poo. His momma calls them titties. The orange juicer. Sandee Westgate. Appetizer gone in a flash … CORD MOORE! The only man to ever wake himself up with a fart, giggle, then go back to sleep. C is for cookie. "I'm not gonna stop!" "I can health and wellness myself!" Irish whispers in the Bahamas. Return trips to Prague? Love overseas (cougar attack). The schoolteacher's present. The dumbest Moore. Loves his two favorite Youngsters. Slow buffaloes. Rec league hockey's Bobby Orr. The CAT-V robot. The greatest storyteller ever. Denisa. Cord doing Cord stuff. The best friend that we have. SWO Daddy!



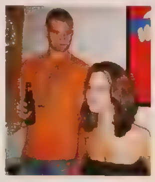
Cody E. Oshman

Submarine Warfare

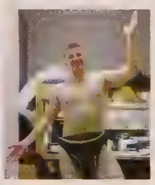
Marine ground? "You're gonna be a nuke." Still waiting on that writing assignment. Sleeping in the P-way with Miller during rack-races. White and Nerdy. The Reverend. Blueberries! The Piedmont Gazette. Cody's bachelor party. "I have the best friends in the world!" Melinda Chambers. The anger accelerator. Late night PRT training. The Alpha male? Upper crust? THE CHOICEST! "5 dollar cover? … No I'm not going out!" Puked in every academic building. Arm circles. Debo … I can't contain it! Face-sitting. Fat woman fetish. Trash under the pillow. Yes Cody, we know you're the Board Bandit. We like you, Coats

Cray R. Pack

USMC Pilot



An all-American hero, gay Cray's ready to play! Cray Pack, the 2nd most prominent Korean name. "What's going on!?" "Are we gonna die?" The morning moron. Happiest as a Plebe Summer detailer. Lady Gaga? … No, that's Big Bird. Broken neck drunk. Brokeback Pack. Dumbest smart person alive. "If Cray's a big gay throw your hands in the air and say yeah!" Academic masochist. Champion ice skater. Satellite reception through his ears. "That's way too much for a beer, Akon!" Cray could close … if he stayed awake. One of the hardest working guys we know. Great guy, better friend. A Devil Dog through and through.



Mark B. Reis

Navy Pilot

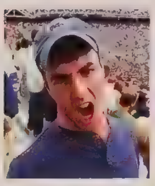
Coose. My friend Mark is very nice, he's my second favorite Reis. "Hey Mark, heard your sister had surgery!" The Jew nose. Moose meat. Loves the finer things in life: whittling, candles, tea, gardening, culinary arts, large breasts, straight razors. Oh look … the door is propped open … AGAIN. Mark's harem and their free gifts. "One time, when Mun was making me a sandwich, …" Naked chair-sitting with other people's hats. Naked pictures. Waltzing with Younger in the P-way … with NO music. "But I was drunk!" Fun with trolls. A gentleman in every sense of the word. You'll make a great officer … and a great wife!

Christopher M. Rose

USMC Ground

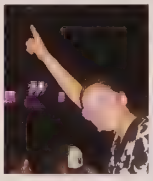
Meegs. You know what would go good with that beer … Jack. Make that a double. Mystery face injury. Always sober for CDO muster … if he goes. The friendliest drunk we know … not. Rossi's sole defender. Awesome 21st birthday party during Notre Dame weekend. Sniffing Allison's letters over Plebe Summer. McLovin'. Weekend trips to NOVA. Spent 2/C loan on dip. Task Force Tattoo. Flexing with Snowmid. Flex workouts in the mirror. Found the love of his life after a week. The big turn-around 1/C year. A nice guy who's always there for you. Good luck in the Marine Corps!

James M. Royals



Navy Pilot

Greatest performer in Glee Club. Rosy-cheek Royals. Goes underway every night. Braveheart speech during 2/C pre-comms. Senior Chief speech before the PRT. LT voices. Crickets. "Dude, man, it's good for you." "Shake my hand and call me brother." "Peace, love, dub." He made Sully do it. Still doesn't know where to park his car. "I still like purple!" Everyone's little brother. Two goals first time at late night hockey. The last one to turn 21 … on service-selection night. UNSAT because of Mexico. Horrendous farts. So Colombian. The best 131st member of the family ever. The most moral person we know. A great man. Have fun in the skies!

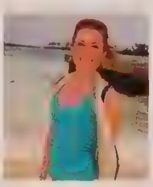


Katherine M. Ruffin

METOC

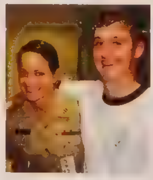
KT, Killer, Kate - Queen of motivating quotes & outrageous clothing, known for witty status updates, fresh pink LAGear light-up kicks, lending her foam-roller to all in need, & CDO emails crafted expertly as poems an English major could appreciate. Yoga Mondays, Marcel the Shell & being downright ridiculous with you have gotten me through this place. A beautiful young lass with a heart bigger than a canoe. Her charm, wit & sarcasm could easily get her a job as a greeting card writer. I couldn't ask for a better friend-always listening, honest, & a quirky, beautiful woman. Katie doesn't just bring life to the party, she is the party.

Corey J. Schulz



Surface Warfare Officer

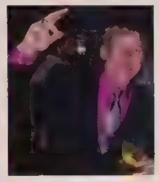
Sticks and stones may break my bones, but chains and whips excite me. Yes, I didn't expect that from you either. Surprise after surprise you never seem to bore those around you. You are the most exciting person from Washington. D.C.? No Washington State. Oh, yeah you're the only person form Washington. There is a reason your middle name is Jo. After the cutest guy expressed his love for you, all you said was "very well, carry on." Mother B will miss you, brigade medical will not… After four shots of steroids your ankle didn't feel better, but you biceps were huge. Keep surprising people in the fleet, they will love it!



Patrick J. Sullivan

Navy Pilot

Hey, where's Sully? The only man to out-gay Skip. The best pipe-blower we've ever seen. The only person not to have a good time in Montreal. Pahk the cah on the yahd. Sully, what did you say? UNSAT Pat! Irregardless. The working ladies love him. Smith. Late night hockey. African tribal pants. Qualified for Boston, but forgot to sign up. Pat and Kat. Wears a skirt like a man. Amazing Grace in Dahlgren Plebe year … and the brick ceremony. Our lovable Irish friend from Boston, and the most chahming man in the company. Good luck in Pensacola!



Zachary D. Thrasher

Submarine Warfare

KR, DB, JM, RW, MM, EP, KL, two lovely ladies in Atlantic City, one in Vegas, etc., etc., etc. I used to think techno sucked, until you started creating it … Now I hate it! The man of many professions: poker player, Alaskan bush pilot, stock broker, F1 driver, DJ, Olympic skier. Such an engineer! Submarines are like flying underwater. Geoduck. "Do your legs hurt? Because mine sure don't. Dresses like a Frenchman. Oh yeah … he wanted to be an astronaut, too! Very ambitious and a great friend. The Submarine Force is lucky to have him!

John E. Vick

Naval Flight Officer

A self-proclaimed renaissance midshipman, Vick has explored the full height and breadth of the Naval Academy experience. He helped others by organizing book drives for African universities, volunteering at Habitat for Humanity, DJing for the USNA radio station, and by composing both pithy and hilarious 1st LT e-mails. He gave moral support to wayward midshipmen by marching 65 tours with them in the heat of summer and the cold of winter. However, he was not just a philanthropist. He always managed to maintain an active social life, entertaining himself and his friends to the tune of 235 demerits and one ruined set of summer whites.

Edward A. Warren

USMC Pilot

Three years spent mastering ship driving will serve you well as a Marine pilot. At least you'll be ready when Captain Kirk recruits for you the Enterprise, EE boy. "Did I fall off the bed? I fell off the bed!" The only Marine who doesn't know what a first down is. Keep playing your guitar loud and singing music that was old before you were born. Old man socks and sandals: fashion at its finest. Make sure you check your car again. It probably needs something replaced; preventative maintenance. Long island ice tea = I'm gonna sleep on your floor tonight. Totally sneaky, SF. Sushi, wine, and sugar. I'm not thinking about nuthin'! Long bike rides to… well… Wear those overalls with pride – you'll bring a little Tennessee into the Corps bit by bit.

Brooks B. Williams

Submarine Warfare

Bothersome Brooks. The minimalist. Virginia Tech hoodie and Wrangler jeans. Worst tailgating etiquette … EVER! "He's pissing!?" International rum runner. Quietest man ever … until he's drunk. Gullible. The Chat Roulette flasher. JV basketball for 3 years. Snowballin' stories. Honorary member of the Country Club. The dumbest smart guy we know. Summer Seminar late nights. Uncontested world champion … ball-showing game. Violated Dare's head (and lived). The I-Day nose dive. Flag football superstar. 10 hours of driving every weekend. One of the most down-to-earth guys we know. Thanks for the good times! Good luck in submarines!

Leah Woodman

Surface Warfare Officer

Leah Gaga Woodman: a woman with more on her mind than she knows what to do with. Back to the Miami sketchiness of plebe year spring break, she was always one to bumrush to the club. Miserable cold crew mornings were better than endless 5Ks. GWOT! Be careful what you say around her she will be quickly to correct youre English if you have gotten it wrong. Valentines Day, Bucknell style, where all the magic started. Least we forget the "yucky" Casablanca Hotel. Classic Lifetime movies beautiful opal rings small puppies furious lions are things that will bring a smile. When she hits the fleet, she is sure to bring the SWOmama attitude.

James A. Allsopp

Navy Pilot

Seated in his lopsided throne high atop 6-2, golden hair flowing in the box fan breeze, James Allsopp conquers all video games that cross his path. This Annapolis native never let school work get him down or come between him and his necessary eight hours of beauty sleep a night. No where will you find a man with more talents that no one knew existed than Jimbo. Got beer that needs drinking? Girls that need charming? Or maybe a sailboat that needs racing? James always has your back, which is perfect for a future NFO who will spend his career calling the shots from behind. Annapolis' favorite son is bound for big things.

Noah W. Baker

Submarines

A proud native of Ohio, Noah has spent his four years at the USNA "correcting" those around him. Although comfortable when in charge, he is also good at escaping responsibility. A hard worker, he can be found hanging out in Rickover or running around hospital point at 11 o'clock at night. On the weekends he can be spotted in his little purple car with other little things, sporting the latest in European fashion (colorful scarves, sweaters, etc). With an affinity for the Rolling Stones, Noah isn't one to turn down fun. Entertaining the ladies with his funky bass jams and witty humor, Noah will be an excellent member of the Sub fleet.

Kelsey L. Bergh

Naval Flight Officer

This Jersey girl knows how to represent. As an honorary Napster and a retired rugby player, this girl definitely knows how to party and have a good time. However, she never acted alone, with her wing girls, Nora and Jami at her side; she conquered DTA with her fist in the air. But don't be fooled by her bubbly blonde personality, this girl has done her time as head restrictee and an extended 2/C. This supposed to be SWO, will take Pensacola by storm with her charm. Watch out Aviation community, this NFO will keep you right on target!

<3 KB NA JP

Peter M. Bower

Navy Pilot

Old man Bower—you were quite the class act representing us few proud rednecks. Never a dull moment with you. Always making fun of the hallway trash and drinking at the fleet. Never forget that evening we came back for Steerage pizza and thinking you were home girl's brotha. How about Plebe Summer free balling it at uniform issue? All the money you spent on a fishing kayak filled with empty PBR cans, probably could have bought a real boat! Spent more time at Ortho and hospitals than in class. Good luck with the Old Lady, better find a good nursing home soon!

Ashley N. Boykin

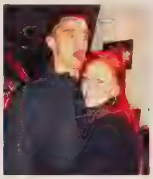
Surface Warfare Officer

Ashley B. new she would B somebody the day she was accepted to the Naval Academy. This Kentucky Derby Queen hails from Radcliff, Kentucky and left the horse tracks to prepare herself to sail the seven seas as a future SWO mama. You can never have a dull moment with her spontaneous, charismatic personality. With Ashley's perseverance there is no doubt she will one day be running the Navy see you at the top Ashley!

Owen J. Bullard

Submarines

From the southern comforts of Concord, North Carolina, Owen Bullard is your typical jacked southern gentleman. When he's not in the gym, or on the phone with his better half, or playing tennis/golf, or sleeping…actually, that's about all he does. Yet, he still manages to maintain a 3.3 QPR. Bravo. If you asked him to describe life without sweet tea, a set of golf clubs, and Bojangles, he would simply describe it as "the worst!" He is…the most interesting man in the world.



Christopher L. Burleson

USMC Pilot

Although he's not entirely sure what state to call home (Kansas? Georgia?), Chris Burleson certainly knows what two places on the Yard of the Naval Academy where he feels right at home: the Bancroft Hall rifle range and the 7th Wing Gym. His time spent in the rifle range is shown in his designations as a First Team All-American in smallbore rifle, and his time in the gym by just how huge he is. Of the many things he will miss about being at USNA, the top of the list would have to include sleeping through several alarms, taking insanely long to put on a uniform in the morning, and spending hours defending rifle's status as a sport.

Sarah E. Burns

USMC Ground

One of the only people who can "accidentally" run for 2.5 hours, Midshipman Sarah Burns finds pleasure in the beautiful things in life, from "wind" to coloring books to late-night dancing! Overcoming a fear of lady bugs and applesauce, this little Detroit gangsta is ready to challenge herself by becoming the USMC's newest Devil Pup. NOTE TO SELF: Let Sleeping Dogs Lie. This one has a mild case of Tourette's when suddenly awoken. Her love of God and all things silly brightens up any day!

Andrew G. Butte

USMC Pilot

Andrew Butte, Heeeeey Buddy! This patriotic Texan can always take a joke to the next level. Flomax's number one customer is always there to lend a helping hand. Rex's jack or all trades, he can carry oars and fuel a launch with the best of them. Constantly having to cut weight for fear that he'll weight more then a boat, he still has lightweight flashbacks. Always swamped with his Oceanography homework, he still finds time for the gym. This southern gentleman has always been a ladies man especially with his see through trou. And, after countless hours on the river, he knows the Severn like the back of his hand. This renaissance man is proud to be a member of the Brotherhood know as Navy crew. Sons of the Severn.

Sean R. Clark

USMC Ground

Sean "Iron Maiden" "Redman" "Jack the Destroyer" Clark- Sean always knows when the next full moon is. If this future Mayor of Shelter Island, NY comes around, hide your exit signs, your bathroom appliances, and hide your women. Born with a shot glass of Jamo in one hand and a shotgun in the other, Sean will let you know exactly when "he needs this!" You'll find him at the Purky Turkey, or 'Dillos, his "home away from home." Cougars beware: Seano No Speako Americano! A shotgun, a rifle, and a four-wheel drive, Sean can survive.

Michael J. Claus

Surface Warfare Officer

Where to begin with Mike Claus? Obviously in his chair. This domestically challenged New Jerseyan could usually be found reclining and reading the Drudge Report with an excessive amount of tabs open. Once coaxed from his throne the transformation from MC to 'little Mikey' begins. Fueled by PBR and Wagon Wheel 'little Mikey' left his anti-* ways behind and becomes the life of the party. There are only two things that Mike wants to do in this world and fortunately for him he will be making a career in one of them. Enjoy "going to sea" on the Benfold 'little Mikey.'

Ryan W. Clifford

Surface Warfare Officer

Cliffdaddy was a man so manly he had to reduce his dangerously high testosterone levels by joining the more flamboyant groups on the yard, such as being the dance team captain and as the SHAPE commander. Cliff had a voice so deep and virile that he would grow chest hair every time he spoke. A man devoted to a profound taste in beers he completed the World Beer club thrice, achieving legendary status. Cliff had a sincere love for dancing and modeling that it has led him to date some. While we all like to rag on him for being against the social norm we know that there is no one quite as loyal, dedicated, and honest of a friend.

Alban Dafa

Albanian Navy

Our international friend will always be remembered as "Alban from Albania!" After four years, the most cherished memories seem to stem from daily endeavors. Such memories include stomping on mice, hiding socks, polished foreheads, winning the title "Sexy Man of the Year," and carrying on full conversations while impersonating his strong Albanian accent. His values have permeated with each of his friends, providing an appreciative and humble outlook on life. Alban, there will always be an open bar stool waiting to throw down some shots of 'Rocky,' but my guess is the next toast will be made in honor of you becoming the Prime Minister of Albania. Cheers, friend.

Clarence R. Dobbs

Surface Warfare Officer

A man of God, Clarence Ricky Dobbs Jr., born January 31, 1988, to a loving mother Barbara Jean Cobb and father Clarence Ricky Dobbs Sr. Barbara gave birth to Ricky on super bowl Sunday at 8:26pm, after being asked by her doctor to wait until the game was finished. That day was the day that the first and only black quarterback won a super bowl. Ricky grew up in Douglasville, GA where he became very active in the community before entering high school. Not long after that, Dobbs chose to attend the United States Naval Academy. He will be getting his degree in General Science, and receiving a commission as a Surface Warfare Officer.

Ashley E. Fischer

Jeremy R. Harbaugh

USMC Ground

Big Pimpin—This guy spent more time chasing tail than anyone I've ever met. When he's not busting ass for the Sprint Football team or Acing his classes, he can be found in the woods hunting or watching NASCAR races. You could say he's a redneck, but to us it's just a way of life. You by far always did the stupidest crap while drinking and I'm happy you never got in trouble. Good luck kicking ass in the MARINES and if you get out, I'm sure Bud Light could use a poster child. Joe and Clyncke, you 2 will always be my brothers. John-we sure spent some crazy night on the E. Shore. Pete-a true bud, next rounds on me fellas.

John H. Horne

Surface Warfare Officer

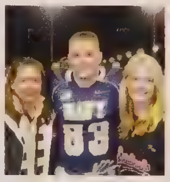
Strolling down the hall in his fashionable pink, I mean salmon, shorts, John Harrison Horne could often be seen drinking from his large Wildberry beverage container. If you wake up early enough you might catch a glimpse of him roaming Halsey. Always willing to socialize and buy drinks for his friends at Castlebay, you know you can always catch up on the company news with him. Despite being a connoisseur of the finer things in life, he does what to dead people?!? A future plank owner of the USS Spruance, we know he will bring as much to the SWO community as he brought to 23rd Company.

Christopher D. Jones

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

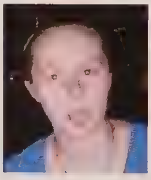
Chris Jones, Go Bucks! This proud Ohio native bleeds scarlet and grey. Never a fan of studying, this brainiac can often be found slamming weights in the gym or enjoying a nice afternoon reading. If he is not chatting it up in Arabic, he most like out and about enjoying the town. This scholarly gentleman is City Dock's number one customer and there is always a hot pot of coffee brewing in the room. This jack of many trades loves the outdoors and is a passionate sports fan. This protective big brother and devoted son is not one to spend the weekend in the hall. This loyal friend always manages to make the most of his free time and is always up for an adventure.

Kaleb J. Kaetterhenry



USMC Pilot

-K12 (because that's easier than spelling it) dedicated many hours to his sponsors and the Sprint Football team, but mostly his sponsors. A stand up individual, his carnal knowledge of the honor system was clearly witnessed in (and out of) Bancroft. Like any good Texas gentleman, he always removes his cover and keeps his uniform clean while purging his stomach before a long bus ride. Our fearless CC received his power after a unique but effective turnover from Baker in Baltimore. Marines worldwide will be lucky to have one of our very best supporting them from the skies, just as he has supported his friends over the last four years.



Julia L. Kranz

Surface Warfare Officer

Julia is best described as dedicated whether to the task at hand or to those around her. She can be found most days and nights either studying or working hard on some aspect of the latest theatre production around the Yard. She is a loyal, caring and willing to drop everything to provide an ear to listen or a shoulder to cry on. Julia does a great job as the voice of reason, almost too well, with just a hint of defining sarcasm to keep things amusing. If Starbucks isn't enough, there is always a "Hospital Point Night." Big Navy doesn't know what's about to hit them when she gets to the Fleet.

Seth B. Labak

Navy Pilot

From the land of sweet tea, few shoes and even less teeth, Seth Labak lost his way and ended up here at the Naval Academy. Four years of constant disbelief later, Seth continues to amaze and surprise us all. During plebe summer, near death experiences could never slow him down or dampen his enthusiasm for manual of arms. Always with a bounce in your step and peanut butter on the roof of your mouth, your mystery will always keep us intrigued. With Navy Pilot in your sights, we hope you will keep on stickin' it to the man and that you will never forget this place you spent four years with all them roommates not half as wild and crazy as you.

Johnathan E. Longo

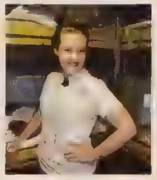
Navy Pilot

Affectionately known as Skookum, John got off to quite a slow start here at the academy. Despite the man working against him, John "Not Very" Longo quickly excelled once he was afforded the opportunity to express his feelings with words and "not numbers". This hairy "Batman" fights crime not with malice but with mild wit and overbearing imagination. If only his stature grew as fast as his stories, he would tower above us all. Too bad we'll never let that happen. A proud member of the aviation community, we are all interested in what his call sign will be.

Skye C. Martin

USMC Ground

"Hi, I'm Skye." She closely resembles a golden retriever but don't be alamed - she's a puppy lovin', cold-blooded Marine. Too bad digis aren't rainbow colored... YUT! Her Marines will be enchanted by the sound of her marvelous vocal chords when she sings cadence. Coffee only adds energy to her already overbearingly bubbly personality - and she drinks it by the gallon. But this Skye isn't just a blond sunshine lovin' popstar. God is the deeply rooted seed of her flower, from which her family, friends, and talents blossom.



Elizabeth M. Milnes

Submarines

Liz Milnes wasn't even going to bother writing a bio…until she heard it was Liberty Dependent. This eloquent word-nerd can edit anyones' paper to be a A+. While typos and comma-splices are easy to extinguish, this fiery red-head won't go down without a fight… or at least without having the last word. Her many talents include being able to unravel a Clementine while keeping the peel in a single piece, mixing up the prepositions and articles in nearly every well-known song, and having a great Russian accent. Everything you wanted in someone you'll be trapped undersea WITH.

Angela M. Myers

Surface Warfare Officer

Raising the Bar
Navy seniors set stage for success

When I hear the name Angela Myers I say to myself "Oh boy, here comes trouble." I sometimes wonder what thoughts, ideas, and images run through her mind. I'm certain that there is a 10 year old child trapped in her body. For example, Angela has more toys, gadgets, and movies than textbooks, notebooks, and writing utensils. Also the place she spends most of her time besides on the basketball court is at the movie theaters and McDonalds rather than the library or class in that case. Overall Angela has one of the greatest personalities, a heart filled with love, she's very charismatic, caring and enjoyable to be around. Some might call her "Super Woman I simply call her Ang.

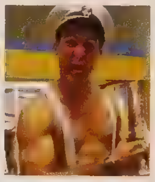
Robert J. Neill

USMC Ground

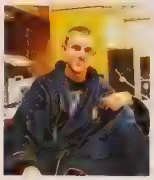
Robert James Neill, Bricktown, NJ. Fat Bob, Stanky-Stank or Robby began his arduous journey by leaving the fist pumping action of Point Pleasant and enrolling into hotel Ripley with the four amigos. From hearing loss to NAV scandals he has managed to see the light without harming any NARPs. Sister-Sister action and late night lamp jousting has brought his crooked hang down many memories. NWE will remember the gargoyle snarl. His Hooligan shouts will be echoed from Georgetown to the Navy stadium parking lot. Pufferfish is recognized for his strapping lats and his occasional time traveling capabilities.

Andrew J. Parker

SEALs



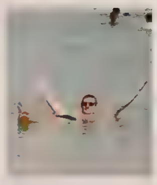
Drew is a perpetual child, but one would never know this because of his uncanny competitiveness and forest-like arms which have earned him the nickname Sabretooth. Whether on the water with Lightweight Crew, on the rugby pitch bashing heads, or at home tossing board games across the room, Drew is always fighting forward despite his hairline's efforts to retreat. Drew tried learning how to play the guitar to impress a girl – she does not talk to him anymore. Congratulations on SEALs. SHARK ATTACK!



John R. Patterson

Navy Pilot

John 'Gumpty' Robert Patterson hails from the rough streets of the bustling metropolis of Roanoke Rapids. His extensive knowledge of all things history and trivia adds to the telling of his legendary stories (all ten of them), which you could hear on any of his numerous man-dates. Prone to collisions, his greatest obstacles were always stationary. His love for the rules was only surpassed by his need for speed, resulting in that speeding ticket. Never content to sit still, JP's many fidgets 'bring him joy.' This future "Red Baron" will certainly rule the skies while contently delivering toilet paper from ship to ship.



Casey D. Powell

Navy Pilot

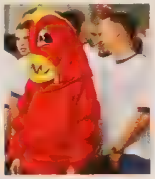
This no shoe-wearin', sweet tea swiggin', snow pea munchin', anime watchin', zombie killin', 'tard speed havin' son of the South has successfully graduated the academy with zero hours of work to his name. The only equation he mastered was the 'sugar to tea ratio.' For the brief time that he's not reading from his hoard of fiction novels, he provides hilarious tactless comments. Always good for a laugh, he's sure to maintain the fun quota in any room. This Southern gentleman will be flying high as a future aviator.

Jami V. Pruschki

USMC Ground

The Navy moved this girl around thirteen times before finally settling her down at USNA- but not before a year long stint in the blustery city of Newport, RI. She took on DTA with her high heels and her best friends, Nora and Kelsey. Always a team player, Jami liked to keep it in company, looking out for her "family". Never alone in her scheming, this girl knows how to look out for her friends. Whether it be offering up advice or holding back your hair, Jami is always there. The Marine Corps doesn't know what it's gotten itself into. She'll match her makeup to whatever uniform you give her!

<3 KB NA JP



Calum W. Ramm

USMC Ground

If Cal wasn't five miles ahead of the pack or in the emergency room, he could be found working on his flow with the assistance of Rogaine. With his infectious smile and "witty" comebacks there was never a dull moment while he was around. Always working, even constructing his own submarine, he evaded the long reach of the sub draft. He will now be a complete Marine and not a sub-marine. We know that if Cal works as hard in the Marine Corps as he does growing his hair, he will make an excellent officer so long as he survives himself.

Christopher J. Rogers II

USMC Ground

A loveable Texan with a hankering for east coast Mexican, "El Toro Rogers" was quite the meteorologist. This truly motivated weekend warrior gives 110% from the bars of Annapolis to the shores of Tripoli. A true fighter for social justice and the underprivileged, it's not surprising that he caught the fancy of a young temptress from Indiana. Hey, what's her sister's number again? Well the last four years sure have been a riot while you've been on point. We have no doubt that you'll make Chesty and the Marine Corps proud.

Tristan J. Setzer

Surface Warfare Officer

Tristan, or TJ, or that weird guy that always wears the headband has been able to average a D in conduct and 2.3 roommates per semester in his 4 years at the Academy. Don't believe it? Tanks speak louder than words. When he is not practicing his SWO commands, TJ enjoys sipping on mojitos, a pack of Twizzlers, and taking naps behind soda machines. He dreads the day of commissioning from this wonderland by the Severn and will be greatly missed by all 5 of his friends.

Patrick J. Staub

Surface Warfare Officer

Patrick Jeremous Staubulous V. As the oldest man in the Navy, nobody is wiser than this salty prior. Having introduced Rumple Minze to Annapolis, this Irish Catholic Notre Dame fan has proved there's nothing holier than a morning after in the church parking lot. From Snacktown, PA the only thing more impressive than Pat's collection of queso and Spicy Sweet Chili Doritos is his unmatched ability to catch cheese balls in his mouth. In a desperate attempt to relive his glory days, Pat spent his recent years struggling to beat "Mike Tyson's Punch-Out" on the NES. Ladies beware: This SWOtivator will be tearing it up down in Mayport, FL.

Travis L. Swiatocha

USMC Ground

Can your cell phone swim? The King of all Cobras cell phone can. Does cream cheese belong in the VCR? The Master Debater thinks so. Who boreth the hole in the granite? None other than the Divine Holder of Jelly Belly's. Where are we going this weekend? I say Brett's. If you want to find this guy, follow the trail of chips and queso to his home away from home, Dillo's. Just don't forget to pick up a tin on your way back to the hall for this Captain of Varsity Rack. If you are trying to save that bag of Dorito's you just bought, better hide them now before we get in the taxi. Don't expect this Marine to be a lifer, he just "won the lottery".

Robert T. Vann

Surface Warfare Officer

Hailing from the mean streets of Tampa, Florida, Rob Vann bravely ventured where only two Vann's have gone before. While allergic to school work, physical confrontation, and eating food that isn't someone else's, the 'Anti-work' found his place and fit right in. Everyone's second favorite ginger could usually be found sleeping in his rack or playing some tasty licks on his six string. Although this flow master doesn't look so good with a shaved head, he doesn't let it slow him down on the sailboat course. Rob is a genuinely chill bro who is too smart for his own good and will be a better SWO than any of us never wanted to be.

Thomas G. Verbeeck III

Navy Pilot

Thomas Gerard "ICE Man" Verbeeck- The Bad kid from the wrong side of the tracks he spent 3 years of his life doing nothing. Then the "tommy gun" was unleashed. "Say goodbye to that pocket New Kid." College Park was a turning point for this Choke artist. Fumbling on the one yard line is "Tony Romo's" profession. And his greatest enemy is the Loews Hotel. Always ready to lend a responsible hand, Tom is the epitome of an "Officer and a Gentleman." Earning his stripes as a "Prospect," "Danny Zuko" withstood the gauntlet of becoming a man. Oh Boy!

Kenan E. Wang

Submarines

Hailing from the misty mountains of Guilin, the "Asian Sensation" of 23rd Company has single handedly provided enough "economic stimulation" for Golden Dragon to not only survive, but prosper in the midst of one of our nation's greatest economic downturns. Well stocked with Naked juices and shin bowls, Wang could withstand any siege. The only thing Wang loves more than Chinese food is Chinese women. When he wasn't wooing his lady friend, Wang could be found doing other Chinese things, or playing StarCraft II. It's been a great time, we hope the engine room is all that you ever hoped it would be.

Jonathan R. Wheeler

Submarines

JonRyan "Grizzly Bear" Wheeler- The Heavyweight Champion of 4119, if his sister isn't good for anything else than attempting to run you over with her Volkswagen Beatle, at least she has hot friends. While this Chill Cali Bro can tell you all the dangers of "falling off a skateboard," he'll also let you know when he is "too drunk to take this chicken." Jon never forgets to "warm it up" before he slaps the bag but only Jon and my grandfather go every 5 minutes. Some people step back from the Ledge, but Jon steps right in it. This future submariner can tell you all about the proper procedure for "dumping them out."

Eugene A. Amor

Government of Micronesia

Amor's dreams of the American collegiate experience was shattered by I-Day. Who knew USNA was so different from Animal House. Eugene's English fluency improved rapidly and it wasn't long before he could clearly express his opinions even after knocking back a few. He is an avid sports fan who doesn't just ride the bandwagon, he drives it. His dazzling footwork is displayed regularly in pick-up football and basketball games. He was a fantasy football champion known for frequent trades and inequitable offers. He has some real magic when it comes to picking up ladies. Had he gone to ring dance, who knows how many stripes will be there with him. Amor's legacy will be his optimistic attitude often accompanied by his trademark laugh. He service selected future President of Micronesia.

Nicholas R. Birger

Submarines

To be #1: Insert LARGE dip of coffee grounds to mainline caffeine, forgo sleep except at nonsensical hours (bonus: preparing for underway on a sub), Twitter constantly (current events, duh), eat staggering proportions, do all things NAFAC (include trips to campuses with high female populations), become dependent on 5-hour energy, balance bodily forces with magnetic-wear, 0 hmwk (but lots of drinking) on Sat, live by MOE, and captain the team that can drink then win on the same day: tennis. Prestige aside, Nick can be found Pickin up honies everywhere from N. Carolina to Africa and especially Cadillac Ranch's "Single & Mingle." Now our star is taking his smile (and Owen, of course) to Charleston where his genuine compassion and obvious brilliance will serve him well.

Carolyn V. Boothe

Navy Pilot

First words: "I'm from Oregon; GO DUCKS." Carie (not Kerry—despite what birthday cakes claim), braved the Annapolis humidity with her always cheerful attitude and became the girl to speak out against oppressed chalkboard rights. English major and Mark Twain enthusiast, Carie edited the entire company's papers (and then some) and possessed the superhuman ability to start a capstone on its due date and still pull out an A. The low stress half of the EEE room, Carie helps every soul in need and corrects their English, too, thus earning the well-deserved title, "Mama Boothe" (or is it for her constant critiques of the bull-pen?). Leaving the softball field and Sampson, our Grammar Nazi is trading in Wesley and her red pen to fly high in the fleet! How bout yourself? Cringe!

Eric M. Bunker

Navy Pilot

Eric Miller Bunker was born on July 21, 1985 in Plantation, FL. He was raised by his parents John and Pauline Bunker in Smithfield, RI and has a brother, Kevin and a sister, Kaitlyn. They are twins. After graduating high school he enlisted in the Navy as an Electronics Technician (Nuclear) and spent two years in Charleston, SC where he completed Nuclear Power School. From there he was accepted into the Naval Academy Preparatory School where he played baseball, and was subsequently accepted into the Naval Academy. He is an Aerospace Engineering Major and will head to Pensacola after graduation to pursue a career as a Navy Pilot.

Vincent J. Catrini

USMC Ground

Vincent Joseph Catrini, aka JoJo, is an interesting mix of a white suburban upbringing, suspect behaviors, and African roots. Sure to be found working on his "project" with James every Tuesday at 8, which is the same time Glee airs, he struggled to balance his different personalities. Wishing to be Bieb's "one less lonely girl," JoJo was an expert snow drifter. His receiver skill on the Sprint Football field will be remembered, as well as his epic rescue of a fallen shipmate at NOLS. Remembered by: Debs, Jordan, Earl, pieces, Granger, Bob's sausage, Dale, Twilight, ATL, legacy, people.com, crazy birthday boy, and flawless GPA.

Daniel W. Chan

Surface Warfare Officer

If it's not Dan's obsession with Warren Buffet, then late nights keeping up his roommate is probably number one. Whenever Dan is not freakin' cleaning the room, one might find him scaring the world with his driving or knocking over ambassadors in Washington. Dan will always be remembered for ordering that beer tower back home. And remember not to let him ask you questions about puddles and calling relatives! No worries though, because Dan will always accept expired food. Just remember to ask Dan about his snowpocalypse experience the year France decided to strike and force him to spend hours on the phone searching for tickets home.

Alexandra K. Dauernheim

Nuclear Surface Warfare

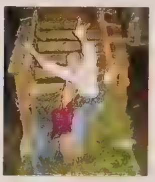
Team, attention to announcement: Justin & Lexi met exactly 2 years ago today - oops! wrong announcement - I mean, come to Toss for the Cross tonight, I'm making guac with my magic bullet. In the midst her frequent odd moments, Lexi loves to let you know "we are having so much fun!" This self-proclaimed matchmaker will never miss an opportunity to orchestrate an awkward encounter, or fail to bring a smile to your face. A colorful Californian, she's known to over bundle on the lax field & "grandma dance" in the locker room - dance EI anyone? What sets Lexi apart isn't her worship of Erin; it's her unfailing loyalty & thoughtfulness.

Julio A. Delgado

Peter S. Donahue

Navy Pilot

This talented breaststroker spent most of his Academy life in the pool, and he's got the goofy gait to prove it. Raised with 4 sisters, Pete didn't put his mojo to good use until Mikey came of age (the girl one). Once chronically suffering from subpar academics, Pete finally started helping the average. With innocent interests ranging from Modern Family and Glee to polar bears, we were all a bit shocked by this curly-haired guy's intense temper. His team, however, is well versed. Fiery temper? Be a Marine! 4 weeks of Leather-Nam dispelled that notion, and Peter was pleasantly surprised to find a pilot certificate in his hand. So he's joining in the swim team's relocation to P-Cola. May the good times continue as you party hard and fly high, Petey!

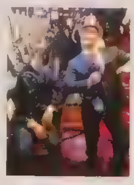


Michael A. Eisenberg

Submarines

"I'm a Mudblood" The most epic way to dodge the Sub draft and he still gets to be a Devil Dog. Although Christened Michael Abraham Eisenberg, this proud St. Louis boy/die-hard Texan is only Jew-ish while sporting boots and a Card's hat. Four long years battling on the tennis court and in the basement of Michelson (Chemistry, Woof!) Mikey's managed to maintain that fiery temper: broken rackets, smashed appendages (and windows) and a whole lotta "F that noise!" Remarkably intelligent, yet weekends find this scholar bumming around with the other two stooges—Cody and Jeremy—creating trouble when none's to be found. So let's raise our glasses to Mizzou sports (F Kansas), the Ring Dance 3-way (plus some—thanks, Cody), deserted W. Virginia streets, and quirky admirals.

Jason R. Falk



Navy Pilot

Jason Falk always wanted to serve. He chose the Navy and after two tries gained appointment to USNA. He wanted to be a SWO but was selected to be a pilot. He couldn't be happier.

Sonia R. Herrera

Aviation

This Air Force brat switched teams when she came to USNA. She couldn't stay away from her roots long and vacayed in C-Springs for a bit. After testing out the waters, her best advice? Exnay on the Oomizays. Thought to be particularly fond of them, her main question- Are Dinosaurs considered Asian? Dabbling in rowing she made the best of friends, but escaped in time to save her hands. Think twice about lying in her presence, you might end up in an XYZ case. Not straying too far from her roots Pensacola watch out. Hopefully her swim buddy won't be too far away. "Hey jelly girl, is it an escalator or elevator?" (Mathew 6:25-27)

Ryan R. Keeney

Surface Warfare Officer

Even though Keeney denies being a red neck, his assortment of flannel shirts and trucker hats speaks otherwise. Keeney could always be found wearing one of these at the bar and loving life. His loyalty could always be depended upon and he proved on occasions that he was willing to sacrifice himself for others. Weekends were never the same without Keeney out drinking in town and waking up with a mystery woman or sometimes man next to him the next morning. Keeney always knew how to pick the ladies. Sunday dinners were always best when his new pick would go through company tables. Lollipops were never the same after Keeney's birthday.

Alexandra E. Lado

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Left right, Lado! Motivated Lado! Arriving on the banks of the Severn—both calculators in tow—we didn't know what she was doing here, and neither did she. However, the Triple E has thrived for 4 years—even surviving her exile to Striper Alley. Almost as excited about EE as animal rights, Alex is a walking contradiction: masochist crew devotion and circuit jokes; bar crawls in Philly, Eugene, and DTA and lights out at 7pm on Friday (she's got practice). Completely organized yet so stressed, here's to Calvin and Hobbes, good stories, late-night laughs, a nail polish obsession, and… shoes! Do big things, girlie!

Patrick A. Laughlin

Navy Pilot

8/9 Laughlin sick-in-room! Who is this Laughlin (ck, not f) character? We found out the night the Devil visited him in the form of pain meds and our absent invalid became our personal Emily Rose. Stitches healed, Pat took on fencing and video games with equal fervor. First to defend poli sci and fly, he followed his dreams through the rigors of academia (just ask him how many pages he wrote this semester). As an elite member of the 2% club, Pat's determined to prove that long distance relationships work and cell phones don't cause cancer. So whether he's informing you of the latest political crisis, the exact specs of every plane commissioned or the intricacies of fencing, Pat's worldly knowledge and genuine kindness always shine through. Good luck and fly high!

Sean B. Margot

Surface Warfare Officer

He is a storyteller extraordinaire whose tales seem to grow more exciting each time he yells them. During 2/C year he was particularly zealous in training the plebes. His legendary 'Burb contributed to more conduct offenses than NAPsters and varsity athletes combined. Although he will not be going to Pensacola after graduation, we all suspect he held a special place in his heart for the sky.

Emmett Merchant

USMC Ground

Mr. Mershant! Yes he's French. Has there ever been a guy so motivated to stay at the Academy. From an interception machine on the football team to the Training Sergeant for 24th company, he has been presented with all the Responsibilities he's ever asked for, but that's not all, he will even be a highly motivated Marine upon graduation. And who can forget the hard math problem he was thinking about all throughout football season after his concussion. Well I guess Mr.Mersshant thought long and hard because he is finally graduating from the institution that he loved so dearly. Its OK Emmett you can come back and visit!

Erin K. Neumann

USMC Ground

Erin is everyone's phone-a-friend on Who Wants to be a Millionaire, the person you'd love to run into the Cash Cab with, and the perfect castaway companion! Yet, never fly with her, and, Erin, don't forget your OCONUS chit! Accidental 12 mile runs, 100 boxes of Mac-n-Cheese, and a million pairs of shoes. She's a Sporcle fanatic and is so good at land navigation, that I sold my GPS. Although an Ocean Engineering Goddess, Angry Birds and Cut the Rope taught her more than any engineering class. She is Company Commander, but has managed not to march since plebe summer. She's a lover, not a fighter; but here she comes Marine Corps!

Kristin R. Otterson

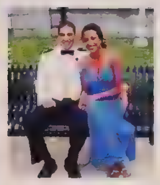
Surface Warfare Officer

Kristin Otterson. k-r-I-s-t-I-n. Sweet and innocent on the outside, witty and a bombshell of words on the inside. Compassionate and respectful with a side dish of toughness. Runs your legs off, talks your ear off. Empathetic and kind after she beats you in cards or swimming. Art runs through the veins, naval arch out the ears. Never waits a moment, always takes a picture. "I found the fun." Tomahawk chop, ski fever, "I am too from the south" and "Vegetables are good for you." A fish in the water, Monet on land. Smiles always with a mind open. Laughs more than a hyena and "I know I shouldn't, but I think that's funny."

Jeffrey M. Ouimette

Navy Pilot

Jeff is the only guy I know that washes his car four times a day. The guy owns over thirty pair of shoes with multiple matching custom made outfits, one for every occasion. He has more three piece suites than the Brooks Brothers. Jeff usually spends hours out of his day researching every little aspect of his life. However Jeff can be very resourceful, he knows all about booble. It's always a good time when "The Woon" comes out. Maybe you will wake up lying next to a stranger in a New York train station or witness the Woon submarine. I am lucky to have roomed with Jeff, and it has been memorable.

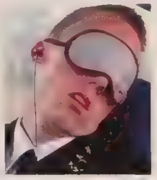


Saul Polanco

USMC Ground

After a semester of premarital bliss (read: relative sobriety), the Horse spent his first unbridled Sunday attending early morning mass, teaching Bible study, and then puking at the bar in Castlebay. He once risked Hep-C and a major conduct offense to save a few bucks on a tattoo in Peru. A welcome addition of ethnic spice, Saul taught us the intricacies of inter-Hispanic racial feuds as well as the absolute limitations of a dollar bill. As a 24th Company pick-up game All Star, Polanco will be remembered for his quick feet and even quicker tongue. We hope he'll be able to navigate the terrain of Quantico better than his Xterra did.

Justin A. Rogers



Submarines

Born underwater, Rain Man came into this world with a MK48 and his first phrases being "down bubble" and "I have the conn." Concerned with water tight integrity even when inebriated, his instinct to ensure that all hatches are locked makes him the perfect submarine officer. Justin's special powers include, noise generation (especially at 0530), creating lakes at will after showers and being able to fill a glass to the brim without any spillage. Additionally, you can always be assured that his reservoir of professionalism is checked daily for leaks!

Timothy Ruth

Surface Warfare Officer

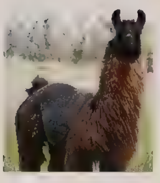
Used to run marathons, but then he drank; was gonna get good grades, but then he drank; was gonna have a long-term girlfriend, but then he drank. Timmy "Runnin Ruthless" does less running and more… drinking. Fancying himself a ladies man, Tim tried for the Dirty Thirty, but settled with slaying 07-13… lay off them Plebes! A true Kentuckyian, the only lady who can hold his heart, and all his attention, is his Cadillac (the boy does NOT multitask). Wild, but kind this poker "superstar" showed off his poker face for a good cause during the 6-2 health/wellness. With stories we'd never expect, all we know is they'll be entertaining! As Timmy heads across the Pacific, we wish him all the luck he can muster, he's gonna need it. Stay focused, Timmy, and watch out for those Asians!

Charles G. Schappert

SEALs

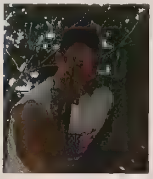
Chuck, a physical fitness major with a minor in fashion, was arguably the best at exercising in the company but nowhere near the best athlete. You would think that the walking Express mannequin would make a better wingman since he always gave his appearance the utmost attention, even when it was an orange jumpsuit. Everyone knew he had high aspirations with the Seal Community, but after Preakness '08 who would've thought he'd rise to be company commander. We all know he would've brought the best looking girl to Ring Dance if it weren't for 0 block Seal Cruise that he volunteered for. Congratulations on all your achievements Chuck, just make sure you take your celebratory cigar outside of Bancroft this time.

Keith E. Schmitt



Navy Pilot

Keith has come a long way since his lewd exploits in the display window of Starbucks. The only midshipman who ever found a use for I'll-Find-Out Pads, Schmitt split his time between religiously checking his phone and ESPN Gamecasts. Keith will be remembered as a Philly sports fanatic, crooked fantasy football commissioner, obscure black history advocate in Halo, and Kevin Kolb's biggest (only) fan. A young man of uncompromising morals and an unforgiving roundhouse kick, we will always consider you a great roommate and friend, even if those save the date letters got lost in the mail. Oh, we almost forgot…CandaceCandaceCandaceCandace.



John A. Sheehan

USMC Ground

Known throughout Bancroft as one of the yellinest Mids on a Saturday night, we always knew who kept the 1st LT so busy. Masterfully walking the line between inappropriate and wildly inappropriate, we're sure the classes of '08-'14 will never forget him. After watching "The Fighter," the pride of Leominster, MA rearranged both his hand and an innocent civilian's face during one of many Four Loko induced crazes. After the Brawl at the Beach in 2009, who would've known 24th Company's favorite loose cannon would find love in Panama City. Though his path is heading towards the Corps, everyone knows all roads eventually lead to Pusser's.

Jacob W. Spitzer

Navy Pilot

Not famous, not infamous, but there's always more to him than he lets on. Jake is the kinda guy who helps you out in a pinch. Glad to see he's going to be a Flyboy, maybe he'll wear that Blue flight suit one day too (hopefully he won't have to learn Russian first). It's been one wild ride. The Highlight Reel: AF Country Club; Sunday fun-day; Vegas New Years 2011; Kilts and Single Malt Scotch; Sandman Slim; ChurchKey & Viennese Balls; CDX = computer nerd Mecca; Victory loves preparation; Bad decisions, good memories; 35 58 88 89; Live. Laugh. Love. "A bottle of wine contains more philosophy than all the books in the world."

Aaron P. Sponseller

Submarines

This late addition to the Rockstars fit right in: goin solo on pitchers (Shirley Temples), tearin it up at Ring Dance… sober! and droppin lines like, "It's tough to catch flies with honey; it's much easier to catch honies when you're fly!" Expert in Italian, marathons, and eatin big to get big (with Kevin's tutelage and a hefty sweet tooth), don't let this motivater's Marine green shirt fool ya, he's going pi—subs! Aaron's old and responsible—Thrift Savings Plan Training… yes he put up a chit—but he's had time to sharpen his skates—strategically planned dental visits? The good natured addition to the Ocean E clan is always there to listen (unless it's 2230, then Kristina's got dibs), and the last 2 years he's brightened our days and our lives. Get it, Aaron!

Jeffrey A. Steinmetz

Naval Flight Officer

Rah, yut, kill. Straight from the Corps to the Yard. Big guy, huge pushover. Crying to Seven Pounds then hitting the bars. Delilah- best transportation- Ever! Best friend, sounding box, his honesty will kill you, seriously. My sanity and insanity. Blue and Gold runs deep, Scarlett and Gold runs deeper. No, we're not dating. Haha. Cheesehead, oh yes. Tossing 16pound balls like they're…nothing? Beer. Gary, really? From Football to Field (Track). Two of the best years of finding the person who'll stick by you through it all. Priceless.

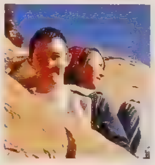
With a daily caloric intake higher than most Southeast Asian countries, Thai is a living testament to the motto, "Eat Big, Get Big." Don't be intimidated by his bear-like appearance, Kevin's heart is even bigger than his biceps. He is one of the nicest guys you'll ever meet—unless he catches you using the youngster ladder or is trying to validate plebe boxing. The Taliban created a national holiday when they heard he was disqualified from SEALs, but unfortunately for them Thai will be visiting even sooner as an officer in the Marine Corps.



Ian L. Thamm

Navy Pilot

From having his next nearest neighbor 20 miles away to being stashed away in a 15'X15' nuclear fallout shelter, Ian initially crumbled under the stresses of claustrophobia and a menacing plebe summer PC in the form of Mr. Rozich that considered him "the worst Plebe to enter the Academy". Once the Qualifications of a Naval Officer were under his belt however, he flew onwards. While most midshipmen battled the sleep monster, Ian battled the insomnia monster. Despite the onslaught of the sleep monster and roommates who were in cahoots with the evil one, Ian survived the 0530 garbage trucks, late night programming projects, incessant punching of the keyboard, and even the nightly torture of "hey baby." Like Wyoming's bucking bronco, Ian galloped through the challenges of Computer Engineering to become the Rockstar's XO and is well on his way to soaring to greater heights, literally.

Ryan M. Yohe

Surface Warfare Officer

Ryan's a girl's name! We discovered when this tough NOVA lady first rocked our world. Constantly laughing (we had superb bearing in comparison), and biting her nails (they look great now!) she couldn't keep step in formation, but that hasn't stopped her on the dance floor! Dance partying and lax playing with the best, all the while full of her analogies and philosophical insights. Ry embodies brilliance and class, look at her campaign against wrinkles (Can she put away an ironing board? Hard to say…) But don't be fooled, while she a wicked sassy side she still gets around, the world that is: Russia, Chile, Poland, Ukraine, and Georgia (We learned "the Ryan" snap), and she'll see more of it via ship. Fiercely principled and unquestionably loyal, get ready world, Ryan has arrived!

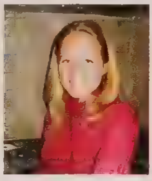
Lorenzo J. Armijo

USMC Ground

"This ain't no playground…" LoLo "Papa Doc" 'Mijo never turns down a party. A sucker for tequila and the ladies, Lorenzo knows how to celebrate any occasion. Even before let loose at 2/C, he was a founding father of the Ram's Head shuffle. A Varsity Track star all four years, he never let it get in the way of a good party, even when his tattoo landed him some demerits. Lolo keeps the room fresh with his obsession with the impending Zombie apocalypse and always knows the best distractions for that homework-less Tuesday night. The Marines will be proud to count him as one of their own.



Ariel L. Baltis

Navy Pilot

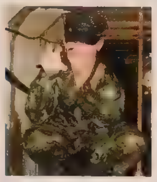
Who's that ball of energy gliding down the p-way? Who's that girl with the soft voice and cute smile? Why it's Ariel Baltis of course! Don't let her small physique fool you, she's packed with punch. If you didn't see her in the Halloween Concert as Christine, Ariel's beautiful soprano will knock you off your feet. Most afternoons you can find her in the Chem lab with her RNA. When she's in her room, she surrounds herself with adorable penguins. Ariel will be following in her father's footsteps as a Navy Pilot and will take control of the sky! "And I couldn't be happier, because happy is what happens when all your dreams come true."

Kaleb C. Brown

Carson M. Burton

Naval Aviation

Hailing from the booming metropolis of Fairmount, Georgia (God's Country) Carson "Papa" Burton started his naval career as an enlisted sailor. He arrived for plebe summer at the sprightly young age of 22 with a big smile and warming heart Carson quickly became one of the most popular kids on campus. Whether it was finding a way to get through thermo, cooking Thanksgiving supper, or going on a Southern Road Trip, you could always count on Carson to be there for you (as long as you don't tell him he looks tired). Carson is set for big things in this life and we are all very excited to watch the illustrious career we know he will have.



Jonathan D. Cameron

Surface Warfare Officer

"Cali-Kryptonite" What can be said about Jon that hasn't already been said about Afghanistan: it's bombed out and depleted. Always finding new ways to hurt himself, Jonny Cam'ron spent more time in BMU than his two roommates combined. But who couldn't like this lovable idiot and his addiction to California girls. Japan better watch out. The one thing Jon loves more than scotch is the long, warm showers after a hard night of partying. But in all honesty, Jon is a hardworking person dedicated to helping people; he will do great things for the SWO community.

James B. Corrin

Navy Pilot

DING DING, 2ND REG ARRIVING! James Brownlee Corrin… scratch that, Jamie: you obviously didn't study enough, you didn't get a 4.0 (Penguin wannabe). Such an underachiever, tsk tsk. Glad to know you got out of the Hall on the weekends, even if you did only go to Rickover. Thought you were working over there, didn't realize you were playing WoW, Starcraft II, whatever. The advice on what to give your girlfriend for Valentine's Day based on what you gave your sisters was… helpful? (Warning: Top Gun reference) Highway to the Friend-Zone! Now Freebird, is that by the Beach Boys or the Beatles?

Jeremiah A. Derrick

Surface Warfare Officer

HMMWV-1114, moving on. You're physically knowledgeable, just pass the dam PRT! Who would've thought you'd be one of the first to get engaged. Glad to know that you've quit dipping, again. Apparently it is easy to quit; you do it all the time. We didn't want to be abrasive, but tact isn't your forte, so it fits. You're such a closet romantic, though we knew it all along, even with your jokes that offend everyone equally (almost). By the way, I'm looking for that new movie; you know the one that comes out next week. I'll swing by later to grab it. Good job with Adj and Wardroom. Thanks for the beer and donuts. SWOOOOOOOO DADDY!

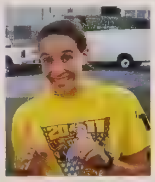
Erin M. Fawcett

USMC Pilot

Super Woman: The One and Only, Erin Michelle Fawcett (EMF). She has kept it a secret over the years how she manages to be involved with Glee Club, the Halloween Concert, musicals, Protestant Choir, D & B, ballroom dancing, MAG (just to name a few), have a flourishing social life, AND be a VGEP-er. God is her number one love, but pulling in at a very close second is Starbucks. Rarely seen without a coffee cup in hand, Erin is a walking advertisement for the super power coffee chain. Erin is ever positive and never is bad word said about her. She is the best friend anyone could ever want. Semper Fidelis!



Sarah E. Grant

USMC Ground

Well-known by the alias of MOTU, few know she got the title for recognition as the best mid in the brigade. She was later recognized as the most unrecognized mid, thanks RADM Kaufmann. From living with a secretly engaged gentile, to the emperor penguin, to being the BC's slave. After Plebe Summer Ops they let her try something new: Brigade Ops. But they never trusted her as a squad leader. Lost a fight with a rope but joined the rugby team. She's smart enough, dedicated enough and hardworking enough; it's simply a question of whether she'll be the first female Commandant of the Marine Corps or a hot shot big time lawyer. LMPZ

Meryden B. Griffin

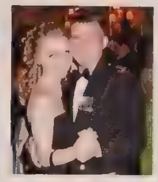
Surface Warfare Officer

Come along with me. NAPS '07, Kill! An RI Stunner, Meryden Griffin has been doing it live for her entire career as a MIDN, Oh crazy dance parties with Kat and every night crazies with Jess. "Why don't you shower for the both of us!" "Hey jess how do you spell 8?". Meryden thinks 'everything happens for a reason.' She doesn't seem to mind hitting every bump in the road. A special thanks go to Reg-man "the Admiral" and Mathah Griffin. If you need a movie quote, some great advice, or a good time, just ask this chick. Oh yeah… She is sorry she ruined your lives, and crammed eleven cookies into the VCR. SWO Momma- lets do this. Love

Steve N. Guidry III

Submarines

Steve Nelson Guidry III has two sides. During the week, it's nonstop hitting the books and PT. Hours are spent on Thermo, labs, and chem gibberish because Beau is just as comfortable with polymers as he is in the gym. Jared and Brian struggle at repeats and "yeah I'm going for a swim after." When the weekend arrives, Beau's dark side comes out (You, sir, are a monster!). It's all Kilwin's and cookies, with some navy sports heckling on the side. Forget books, let's grab say 30 and hit up the rink; and you can't forget about the pastel shorts and polos lookin' like rainbow sherbet, speaking of "Anybody want to get some ice cream?"



Michael Harrison

USMC Ground

MIDN by day and superhero by night Mike is always saving the world from cyber attacks. As the master of multi-tasking and a prominent member of Team Awesome Mike did everything he could to make sure that he had absolutely no free time while at the academy. He especially ensured that the Music Department had someone to do the job, whatever the job, whether it was acting, singing, building, running sound or running shows, Mike was on top of it. Literally. He spent more time hanging from the ceiling of Mahan than any person ever should. Through it all though, Mike could never get away from his Marine Corps roots and to that we say Semper Fi, Rah, Yut, Kill, and the like.

Dmitri Hatley

Surface Warfare Officer

It can be said with confidence: never has the Naval Academy seen a man so willing to make a statement and so unconcerned with what others thought about it. Swords? D&D? Computer games? Kicking your roommate across the room? What about the cowboy costume? Such classics, all of which kept a smile on our faces, or was that a smirk? Of course, no one can say your name without remembering those phrases of lore: Battlecruiser operational! Kirov reporting! The Friday sushi nights were also great. Random suit night? Yeah! Oh, and please don't hack our lives. Of course we all know about your involvement with STUXNET.

Why are you even wearing clothes? You look like a cucumber soaked in evil…

Samuel N. Martinette

Navy Pilot

Sam has risen through the ranks to become the Navy Men's Swim Team Captain and has somehow managed to remember his roots and visit Virginia over and over again. So much so, some might say he set a record earlier this year. Sam has a sharp wit and is always quick to make a joke; two traits that he has needed to train his roommate to be self sufficient. Sam is a great teammate and a great friend- he always finds time to tell a funny story and also finds time between early morning practice, class, lift, afternoon practice, and homework for personal time.

Jessica R. Maxwell

Navy Pilot

A leader in so many ways... From Training Sergeant to Plebe Summer Squad Leader, to Company Ops and then reaching the top as our 5th Battalion Commander, she puts others before herself and is there for you whenever you need her. She's a hard worker during the week and a solid partier when it's time to have fun. This German speaking, Supe's list reaping, Aviation leaping, best friend keeping, totally amazing sometimes going crazy, California girl will show the Navy what she's made of high in the sky with her best friends by her side! Book me a flight with this dynamite woman anytime! Raise your beer to her! Great job Jess!

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

I'm Brian James McShea (call me BJ McShea). I work hard at Ocenagraphy and David Goggins Friday (me and Weezy sneak out before dawn ;). Returning, I pop Triflex pills to decreese joint pain and smarten me. I do have trouble sleeping. If I have a smoothie after 1900, I lie awake for hours in bed, so I listen to suthing v8s revving. Thanks to the hard dissipline of Valley Forge, I have had many roles (1st Serjant, CC, FHCC, and more) but I'm most proud to be the Wax King. I've been social and met new friends, like roomates "Bubba" and "Care Bear," yet spent every weekend with my family or at raging Fairfax clubs at 2130. Hooyah EOD

Cherie Molett

The overly-flirty black girl. The abrasive, elbow-pinching twin that I never had and didn't ask for. JK! Cherie has been there for me through it all, during the tears of sorrow or tears of joy. Through the good days and the bad—and there have been some very bad days. We've seen it all together and gotten through it all together. Memories: step-dancing practices & 90s sing alongs in our room, "Ich liebe dich mein minibus" in German; and without her I would have never gotten the opportunities to eat strange European candy. And most importantly, without her I would have never discovered my talent as a rapper. HOETITS! MRRREHH!

Hated: that Brian Wemple quit. I can't wait to graduate…and sit in sunshine…and retire

Daniel C. Reese

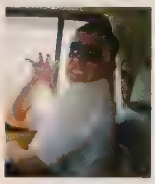
Submarines

Fancy! Softball helmets and Seersucker Suits, the ying and yang of Daniel's 25th company experience, breathing in the beauty of Annapolis through one leather bound cigar at a time. He is always thirsty for a tale of late night debauchery as he lives vicariously through his friends' shenanigans. The burden is his to collect and mend the shredded remains of their dignity the morning after. Snorting lines of polo T's off of newly inducted plebes. Dan…iel started his career early with the Supe's daughter and ended it prematurely, shaving away the years of bachelor life with one final hoorah in Vegas.

Keith Romoser

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Keith had quite an experience at the Academy-whether he liked it or not. If you wanted his eyes to light up, just mention Philmont. He set the record for weeks per summer there, and growing a beard, but everyone needs to look like an axe murderer sometime in their life. While he never grew to like this place, we hope he looks back on good memories and friendships. He finally managed to get out of this place. Unfortunately it meant he graduated. Eh, time in the Fleet will do him well; then we'll have to figure out which mountain range he's in, cause we'll never see him near Annapolis again. He probably won't even read this, oh well.



Bryce L. Saddoris

USMC Ground

Bryce Lee Saddoris, contrary to belief does not hail from Brokeback Mt, but rather Spring Creek, NV. Perhaps round house kicking side mirrors off of cars is normal in Nevada but ol'Rocket learned that such behavior in Boston is frowned upon. Dolly not only receives affection form his fiancé but is also loved in a peculiar way by two elderly gentlemen. After sweaty wrestling matches, he is often seen jumping into the loving, outstretched arms of Maj. Johnson or embraced by an even older man, named Bruce. He is quite a catch with his satellite dish ears and motivated high and tight. Look for this Midn to have a decorated USMC career.

Peter H. Shultis

Navy Pilot

Pete was conceived and born on a glacier in northern New York. In his time at the academy, has grown to love dressing like Joe Dirt, yutting out the window, and waking up his roommate with a blow horn. He has had a long standing addiction to playing pokemon – though he stops playing long enough to pay his dues with the ski team. Pete is a ski master. His teammates call him POP, an acronym for his antics. If you want to learn the story, you'd better ask him. It involves his underpants, a hot tub, and gravity. His luck ran out earlier this year when his skis broke free from his boots and attacked his legs during a race. He will recover and dominate Pensacola nonetheless.

Michael Smith

Submarines

When Michael Smith comes a running, they go a running. American the ole dungeoun. He lived so many years a deep…periscope depth. What is Michael Smith? An ambiguous name? a space ship? A haiku? Perhaps. He is all encompassing. Sunday afternoons lazily wandering Bancroft hall stark naked as a jaybird. He will forever (hopefully) be remembered by his shenanigans and intoxication. come bandana. Front Flip? Impossible!

aka Jacobian, Sauce. Jake's wisdom is beyond his years as the youngest Firstie in 25th company. He's the life of the Bearshark community and will forever live a legend! None will forget the classic times: Dahlgren Hall arrest, verbal spar with Mid store lady over a pillow, priceless Mack-truck reactions, crushing an RC helicopter, or tackling a fe-mid basketball player during army week (crocs +socks=tactical). A spec warrior at heart, expect this SWO to board Somali pirate boats and interrogate them with vicious mind games or simply quote Shakespeare. The Navy doesn't know what's coming, but the House that Haas built is heading out!

Brian G. Striffler

Surface Warfare Officer

If he wasn't playing lacrosse, he was enjoying time with his friends and family. Striff was a hard worker who loved to have a good time. His dancing is questionable but it is full of enthusiasm and lust, which makes up for his lack of proficiency and technique. Although his time here at the Academy is over, he will bring everything he has learned and his loyalty to his friends and brothers with him. Navy Lax forever.

Matthew J. Suhr

USMC Ground

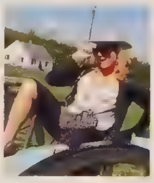
Matt "how ya doin" Suhr calls Bethpage, New York his hometown. Never passed handwriting class in school, but this jabroni learned how to drive by age 3 and got his 1st speeding ticket at age 7. Not the brightest crayon in the box, but knows how to get the job done… Matthew is known for illicit altercations with bystanders and has word schemes you could/would never want to imagine. He can fist pump with the best of them and plans to keep the beat going in the Marines…you may find him one day down south in the sticks with his lifted diesel truck, cigar in hand, rifle on shoulder.

Patrick W. Tagan

USMC Pilot

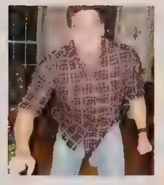
Being the Mayor of Bancroft Hall seems impossible to the average Joe, but not for Patty Tagz. Born and raised in a small town outside of Boston, MA, he proved that there is nothing that Navy can throw at him that he cannot dominate. From running the JFK 50 miler, an Iron Man, several marathons, exchanging to USAFA, earning a coveted Color Company parking spot as Midshipman of the Semester, leading the Pistol team as captain, being King BearShark as CC, conquering the Oceanography Honors program, and finally solidifying the 11th company rumors that Sammie Blea really did get engaged, he showed USNA what being one of the best means.

Stephanie Wexler



Surface Warfare Officer

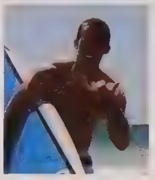
Who is the nappy-headed white girl with a bright blonde afro that could write a book about her Japan adventures? My rambunctious roommate of 4 years! Who knew white girl had soul! The same spirit that leads her to wear bright pink pants down the hallway (but look there's a N for navy...somewhere) and serenade me and everyone passing by with sweet nothings in the shower. Steph and I have shared every single joyful and miserable moment together for the last 4years, and I'm glad she was there for them. I will miss the YouTube-filled nights in which I got caught up on the latest Japanese pop music and got to be UP UP UP in my studio!



Jared M. Williams

USMC Ground

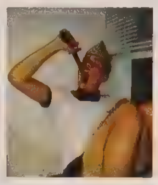
"Aint no thing." –Theodore Roosevelt on gunshot wounds. What can be said about the Weezy aka Mr. Pukey, or if we are being formal, J. Weezy. Things that come to mind are Army-Navy, hanging with the Johnnies, day drinking "really Williams its 2 o'clock in the afternoon," camping before he was tied down, Woodchuck, Slivovitz shots, and of course, narrowly escaping the wrath of an angry bachelorette party. "Oh I don't know Sallie, it's just our house for the next 2 days." But in all honesty, Jared is one tough SOB who will make a great Marine Corps Ground Officer.



Tucker C. Witt

Naval Intelligence

Tucker is a southern gentleman and the first to offer a word of consul–that is if you can find him away from his rack. In his final semester, Tucker grew particularly fond of spending weekends with Mr. Daniels and planning his dream vacation to the countryside in Ireland. A weekend in GlouCHester, VA consists of hip-firing Granddad's arsenal, special popcorn, and Mama Witt's home cooking. Tucker is a passionate oarsman and known to always keep a level-head. In one month, Tucker went from coxing to winning a silver medal as bowman of the varsity. Tucker is not brilliant, with that said, congrats on Naval Intelligence. SHARK ATTACK!



Graham D. Ziemba

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Tell us again how West Point is so much better than USNA. The only thing greater than your idealism is your knack for sharing it (loudly) at 2 am after a night out. You are the King of Special; we have videos to prove it. From falling asleep in random places, to acting like a dinosaur, it's safe to say life in the Hall would have been much less interesting without you. You were always influential even if you never got the stripes you wanted. BTW, did you ever catch 'em all? If you're ever in Alaska and the opportunity presents itself… use protection.

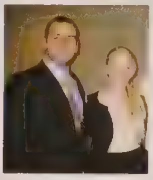
Anastasia S. Abid

Surface Warfare Officer

Anastasia Abid can often be seen running 8:38 1.5 miles on her hamster wheel while sipping shots and eating entire bags of salt & vinegar chips. She loves NWS and NWS loves her; she's a baller on the soccer field in her neon cleats and you'll never catch her. Don't feed this gremlin after midnight —you're liable to get yourself punched or bitten. A woman of character, Stasia has a big heart, Tunisian calves, and an ever-expanding vocabulary—but you'll have to excuse her French. She picked Mayport for the beaches, but the 5-hr drive to Jay and Harold is a plus. Fair winds and following seas, my swo-sister. Love, B. & the original 8017



Matthew L. Ahrnsbrak

Surface Warfare Officer

Matthew (Ahrnie) Ahrnsbrak came to us from Winchester, Virginia. For Ahrnie, life at the Naval Academy was almost too easy. He found a way to maintain a 3.0 as a Mechanical Engineer and never seemed to do any work. He was "too busy" to work out yet managed to always get an A on his PRT. To find Matt truly in his element you would need to stop by his room where you could find him dominating flash computer games or trying to finish every season of Burn Notice in one afternoon. #1 & #2. New shoes? Not for Ahrnie, just Christmas shopping in 7th wing. A true Irishman, Ahrnie was a good story teller and a great drinker. Rumor has it that he actually sold ice to an Eskimo. Off to Mayport, marriage and the Sea, I guess Ahrnie figured it out. Best of luck!

Biancia R. Bell

Surface Warfare Officer

USS ...TONIO LPD 17
...RK LPD 21

A child of many homes, but she brings her Mexican flavor wherever she goes. Her height is no indication of how big her heart is, and she never looks down on anyone, literally. You can identify her by her bulging biceps, find her running up mountains, sniping people to sit in on a conduct hearing, or giving her original roommates a vocabulary lesson. The USS New York will be lucky to get such a master of words. She's a giver; she's a fighter, a listener, and a mother away from home. As she takes on this world, she will take something with her—a dashing confidence of style, a certain flamboyance and courage, her panache!

Tanner J. Bogardus

Nuclear Surface Warfare

Tanner (Bogo) Bogardus joined our ranks from Clive, Iowa, but not before making a trip through NAPS. He spent youngster year in the rack only waking for class (which he slept through). He managed to complain every night how much homework he had but always managed to spend an hour or two in the mirror admiring how big he was getting. Extremely loud, and always had something to say, even if it didn't make sense. Good luck in San Diego and the Nuclear Navy!

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP

Jesse S. Cohen

Surface Warfare

The Navy found Jesse in Mountain Lakes, New Jersey, and when they invited him to come to the Academy, we're pretty sure he swam all the way here, jumped over the sea wall, and headed straight for the pool. He's been a power player on the swim team ever since, helping establish Navy Swimming's 20-year dominance over Army. And don't let his looks fool you! He's a pretty smart guy, spending those few moments he has on land building some sweet robots. But for Jesse, family comes first, be it his family back home or his brothers & sisters in arms at USNA. You're gonna make a helluva SWO. Hooyah!

Scott D. Collard

Navy Pilot

PLEASE DO NOT FEED BUBBLE BRE

One would be hard pressed to find a young lady who did not know of Scott David Collard. As smooth as the bourbon produced on his home-turf, Scott's baby-blue eyes and flowing blond hair compliment his Greek-god-like body in such a way that one wonders what magazine they have seen him on. The life of any party, he spends his time finding ways to make joyful the people around him. Either a tune on the guitar or a witty remark, his personality could only be encompassed by the skies he was destined to fly. So whether he is in the cockpit chasing enemy aviators or scuba diving for pirate treasure, Scott flies higher than the rest.

Erik V. De Sousa

Surface Warfare Officer

"That's free beer like this is a free education." Erik's the sorta guy who brings a gun to a knife fight. Why? He doesn't want to get his knives dirty. The captain of the High-Power Rifle Team, his rifle's name is Shirley, and he built her himself. Did I mention he's also got an interest in photography and high-powered lenses? Plus he can quote just about every movie ever (even Disney songs). Erik is truly America's Mid, with a taste for Tennessee Whiskey, a love for backpacking out in Philmont, NM, the looks of an Albino gorilla, and to top it off he's a Yankees fan. Where did they find this future SWO(ED)? Oh yeah: Texas.

Matthew O. De Villers

Submarines

Big D of Wisconsin. Land of lakes, but he's not into motorboatin'. Packers for life. Everyone's favorite Devil Dog, the shoeless drill demon of 2-6. What a quirky young man. Hot sister, Angie. Agnes shot him down. Dumb and Dumber. Old Man De Villers will smoothly transition to the nursing home as his diet consists of granola and yogurt. 24 hours awake, like Jack Bauer. Gotta catch 'em all. He busted mad rhymes on long runs. Still chasing that elusive first kiss. Just how many can fit in his rack? 3? 4? A Leathernam Gunny vet, but he answered the call to the deep. Tearing up the XC course, he came through when the team needed it. Twin.

Matthew D. Debbink

Navy Pilot

Matthew Debbink is a strong, athletically built fellow from Wisconsin that can be summed up in one term: "the modern gentleman." A young man of fine breeding and witty Wisconsin backwoods charm, he delicately courts lucky ladies through the cobblestone streets with his hat confidently tipped to the side. Add the fact that he is an accomplished sailor and mandolinist, and no woman can resist. If you can't find him designing yachts, he is sure to be hard at work studying or working out, his two favorite hobbies.

Kaleb C. Delfine

Amy C. DiLuccio

Naval Flight Officer

Amy DiLuccio may look unassuming, but don't let that fool you! She's 5-foot-2, and every inch packs a punch. Originally from Burke, VA, she rolled into the Academy by way of NAPS and took it for all it was worth. Marathon club! Scuba club! Trip to Italy! Mission trip to Uganda! Swam with dolphins for an internship! Plebe Summer squad leader (boy did she have 'em quaking in their little combat boots)! But above all, she loves her family & friends, and wants everyone to know that she's going 'FO for the sex appeal. Fly the friendly skies with Amy D.

Ryan R. Ferrao

Submarine Warfare

"Don't call me Gaga." How do you upgrade from Bose bass boosting speakers? Ryan, the Canadian Indian from Mexico, New York accomplished this feat. Now he has 6th wing bulk and over heads shaking at their natural frequencies. Computer science geek. 6060 deck is no place to take a leak. He devours cheese like a mouse. Squeak. Girly drinks and hard alcohol bring out his inner freak. Showdown with Hopp, melee weapons are plastic utensils and the cone. WHAT? SNAKE EYES! We thought you were an expert at blowing horns before you left for Army, but boy were we wrong! Fool of a Took!

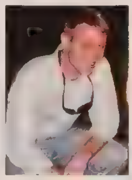
Matthew W. Finnerty

USMC Ground

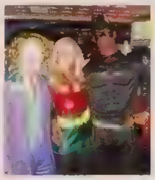
Indubitably the nicest man you've ever met, Finnerty is the epitome of a gentleman. Whether constructing V-Day plans or collecting wardroom dues from the company, Matt 'Friendly' Finnerty oozes charisma. You should've seen what he said to the woman of his dreams in Jamaica…epic. On a serious note, Fin is renowned for his mathematical prowess and lack of understanding of anything that happens outside that miraculously tiny brain. In a few short months, the halls of Bancroft will no longer be blessed with his boyish smile, but never fear, for his tender love and care is etched in the hearts of all who have been blessed to know him.

Sean J. Fitzmaurice

Submarines



A Wake Forest frat star rolled into USNA with that easy going social approach and boy did it pay off. Always up for a party or relaxing afternoons, you could often find this lazy underachiever either on the varsity soccer field, walking (or kicking) onto the varsity football team, maintaining his 3.9+GPA, working as Company XO, or planning just about any event you can bring a keg to. To top off a lack-luster "under the radar" career at USNA he goes and becomes the best damn Brigade Commander anyone has ever seen. Go on you Sub Commander; the people love you, we love you, and that's how we know you'll end up CNO, or even POTUS.



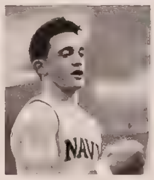
Aaron R. Franz

Surface Warfare Officer

Pretty fly for a white guy.

Logan A. Hershman

USMC Ground



Logan "Mighty Mouse" Hershman always greets you with a smile followed by a punch to the head or body. His fighter mentality is attributed to his 4 years of boxing domination at the Academy. Give him a six pack, a fly rod, and a role of duct tape and he could accomplish anything. His "bi-polar" personality and random acts of violence are a perfect match for the Marine Corps. The second set detailers will never forget his motivated speeches as November Company Commander. The Corps will benefit from his warrior mentality.

Michael A. Hopp

Naval Aviation

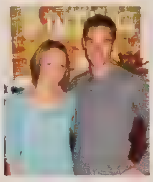
The Hoppster. The Dread Pirate Hopp. Snake Eyes! Regardless of alias or affiliation, this stout prankster knew how to talk his way out of trouble with his undeniable charm. Through the years, Mike was able to sidestep numerous fries and escapades with the quickness. Despite all of his closet trickery, Mike was a fiend in the weight room. Spanish minor. Miguel is an academic too. Halo and cartoons, but he buckled down at desperate times. Bustin' caps in Bancroft Hall with the pistol team. He saved some rounds for late night lovers in the pistol ward room. Shoot steady and straight. Web cam, Skype, and late night 'debates.

Evan B. Jester

Navy Pilot

Known as "Creole" he spends his time getting the latest albums on leak. He can be identified by his walk from any distance and does everything with TENACITY. He knows everyone in the class and makes it his job to disseminate the albums so that everyone else knows the latest musical trends. He has a hard time keeping all the girl's names straight, especially since he can't keep a phone from breaking or falling behind his bed constantly. He is an avid fan of poetry, claiming that he strives to use the poems to remind him to build bridges that future generations can use and to not make mountains out of mole hills.

Cody A. Keef



Naval Flight Officer

Cody Keef came to us from the Bluegrass of Kentucky, yet somehow managed to leave home without ever picking up a country accent. An active member of Varsity Rack, he was constantly on top of his physical fitness. Cody would consistently stay up to the latest hours, only to become the worst morning person ever, and still never get any work done. Waiting on a phone call, 24 hour watches, and a minivan. Off to the beaches and the skies, best of luck to you.

Kelly I. Knorr

RL METOC

A real go-getter, Midship "chick" Knorr, as she refers to herself, is known for her inability to speak softly, her enthusiasm for physical activity, and her curling golden tendrils. Ever the motivator, Kelly enjoys long hours of studying with her midship-hubby, running stairs in Halsey, and sleeping with her jump rope by her side. She also enjoys extended van rides through the barren Midwest, taking summer school, and wearing her uniform. You can usually find Kelly teaching MGSP in Chauvenet, belting it out with the women's glee club, or just smiling somewhere. In Jesus' name, Amen.

Michael K. Landis

USMC Air

After a long day of tying humans into knots on the wrestling mats, Michael Kenna Landis enjoys nothing more than sitting down to a meal of Ramen Noodles, cookies and a whole tin of Pringles. Appearing at approximately seven meals during his entire Naval Academy career, Landis survived by stealing food from his roommates and fishing in the Severn. The human embodiment of a teddy bear, Landis' intimidating exterior is complimented by a soft, gentle interior. The perfect combination of brute force and finesse, he was drafted to patrol the skies in USMC aircraft and is one person you want to have your back. The Marine Corps will be a better service having added Michael along with his older brother Galen to their ranks. We all wish Michael the best of luck, hoping that he flies better than he fishes.

Matthew C. Merrill

Navy Pilot

After roping wild bulls, Matthew "Chawls" Merrill enjoys a good pair of boots and a strong glass of Everclear. The nimble, bean-eating Texan dreams of fast women and tasty smokehouses. His kind heart, love of the outdoors and Benedict Arnold style has encouraged his interest in the United States Air Force as a Combat Rescue Officer—something that makes women swoon. Whether it's partying, loving, drinking, or reflecting, Merrill always does his best. He reads real good.

Wyatt T. Middleton

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

An old man going a lone highway Came at the evening cold and gray To a chasm vast and deep and wide The old man crossed in the twilight dim The sullen stream had no fear for him But he turned when safe on the other side And built a bridge to span the tide Old man said a fellow pilgrim near You are wasting your strength with building here Your journey will end with the ending day You never again will pass this way You've crossed the chasm deep and wide Why build this bridge at evening tide The builder lifted his old gray head Good friend in the path I have come he said There followed after me today A youth whose feet must pass this way This chasm that has been as naught to me To that fairhaired youth may a pitfall be He too must cross in the twilight dim Good friend I am building this bridge for him.

Megan K. Misencik

USMC Ground

A California kid, Megan Kelly Misencik is just living the dream. Sick cars and dirt bikes, don't mess. One life, no regrets… That's how she rolls. She did it all: First Sergeant…training sergeant... pretty much a BAMF. Starter since sophomore year and VP of Navy Women's Rugby… No big deal. Fond memories include, Ocean City '09 and '10, Winter Break '10 in LA, spring break '09 in Puerto Rico and spring break '10 in England where she was carried away by the Catholics. A pure physical specimen, she is unmatched by few…Steel Susan at Leatherneck, just saying! Famous quotes: "20 x 8 is at least 200" and "it's Miller time." Dedicated, honorable, and infamous, Megan is the real deal. Service selection: Marine Ground…YUT! Boots on the ground, ready to go… bring it on!

Rachel O. Nelson

Naval Intelligence

The definition of GRACEFULNESS, but only in the air. Once this little puff fish hits the ground, watch out chaos in motion. Remove all objects from her path especially a megaphone. Oh and it's not a good day when this little puff fish inflates. If there is a local Starbucks nearby you can find her day or night even if that means crossing a major highway to get to it. Did I mention that she wouldn't even cross that highway at the stoplight, and instead just took off with traffic and all! She will make one amazing grandma. She already can knit you a blanket on a long bus trip, tell one heck of a story, and love you with every ounce.

Craig A. Nygaard

USMC Pilot

The only thing tighter than Craig Nygaard's high & tight his is belt, which is tightly wrapped around his small, 30" waist. A physical specimen and quite a looker, his Norwegian ancestry and stern demeanor make him perfect for the Marine Corps. His love of authority that was born Plebe Summer has continued and allowed Craig to blossom into a fine young man, who loves to help out and has a great smile if you can pull it out of him. His classmates would follow him anywhere, as will his future marines. Usually the life of a party, Craig prefers studying aerodynamics and sipping seltzer water in his room, and is already planning our class reunions. Craig's personality and fervor has finally met its match however, with his soon to be wife and high school sweetheart. Semper Fidelis, sea soldier.

Westley B. Olson

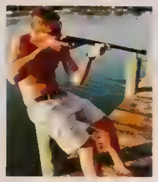
SEALs

If Wes were a bull, his name would be the "Raging Red," or maybe even "Chili Pepper." Normally very shy and reserved, this ambitious man can not only become the life of the party, but will drop everything to selflessly help a friend (as long as he's not working out). A schoolboy bully turned patriotic hero, Wes loves the red, white & blue (especially the red). His outstanding character has earned him the utmost respect of his classmates, and his boyish grin the love of his little blonde firecracker fiancée, Amy. They share a matching tattoo of a bald eagle straddling an American flag. The epitome of student-athlete, the accomplished ocean engineer is also a varsity baseball pitcher. Fittingly, this summer he's off to BUDS to be a Navy Seal. He has had red hair from birth.

Matthew P. Roberts

Submarines

Heading out on a submarine with no sunlight is nothing new to this super-northern "American" during the winter months back home. He plays hockey (big surprise) and found the club hockey opponents slightly easier than the polar bears (and penguins?). He may be close to Russia but he sure knows his Japanese, but his notes don't always turn out successful. He survived the Calgary Olympic Park, the southern most rooftop apartment, and a week with two nights following Jersey. Good luck to you Alaskan submariner. May you always appreciate your lack of sleep, grid paper, and math. And may you always take the extra step to reach the shower.



Evan T. Rowe

Navy Pilot

One smile from this southern gentleman, and you will be walking in the spring fields of Virginia where Evan was born and raised. Evan Rowe is George Washington turned frat boy. As a leader, partier and friend, he is a true renaissance man that loves to talk about the presidents from his state, and is going to out-lead them all when he gets to the Oval Office. Did I mention Evan likes to party? Whether it's Brews with the Bros or Courtin' Cougars, Evan goes all out in the fun department, especially after he's done with his excessive Poly Sci workload. Like Medusa, one look in his eyes will turn your heart to fluttery stone.

Michael P. Sweeney

USMC Ground

Michael "Maet" Sweeney is the quintessential meathead—a stereotype propagated by misspellings, ill tempered wakeups, and sheepish acts. Personified in this cartoon loving, sluggish night owl, Sweeney roams the halls with a sasquatch-like gait, looking more beast than man as he searches for Scooby Doo cartoons and new episodes of friends. Complimenting the hard work and long hours spent on the gridiron, Sweeney has dedicated hours to academics, company duties, and being a good friend. We all wish him the best and will pray for those under his command.

Kyle D. Tucker-Davis

USMC Ground

With rippling muscles and a dangerous scowl, it would be hard to guess that this Honors Mathematics major spent his weekends studying the classics and seducing women, using both his arithmetic prowess and Alabama-sweet tea southern accent. Kyle's professors will occasionally call for help on math problems. An American spirit of adventure lies right beneath the exuberant bicep fibers, and combined with his passion and limitless work ethic, TD is the modern day Theodore Roosevelt. He spends his summers in between math books, Philmont's mountains, and Quantico's jungles. Despite having the workload of three men and a small mule, Tucker-Davis is known for his favorite hangout spot at 7th Wing Gym, where you're lucky if you can more than a nod of recognition.

Joshua M. Westlund

Marine Pilot

What does Josh do for fun? He trains. Trains for adventure races (run, Josh, run!), street hockey, handball (bring the pain), and trains Plebes. First he was training sergeant, found he liked it, and became a Plebe Detailer. Then he got a bit tired (ha!), took a break by becoming CC. To relax, he hits the rock wall or scuba dives. Loved driving the gang around in his first Jeep (RIP) and loves his new one even more. Annapolis winters are a little warm for him though, so he watches hockey to sooth his Minnesota soul. He decided to go Marine Pilot, 'cause sea level just ain't his style. Show 'em how it's done, Joshy!

Patrick A. Wiedorn

Submarines

Most people need a working speedometer in their car to obey traffic laws, but “Weeds” could get by in his DeLorean with just his tachometer and calculator watch. Raised by SWO parents, he sailed on offshore and later joined YPRON. It didn’t surprise any of us when he was selected to The Silent Service. Armed with his lab coat and Henry the coffee maker, Pat passed on his love of chemistry to many a struggling 26th Co Plebe. As the Editor-in-Chief of The LOG 1/C year, Pat will be remembered as the man who slaved away to bring the Brigade its much-needed comedic relief… usually only a month or two late.

Jonathan E. Williams

Navy Pilot

BARR TRAIL
TIMBERLINE SHELTER
BARR CAMP
MANITOU SPRINGS 13

Jonathan Williams is Prince Charming meets Paul Bunyan. His elegantly sculpted body is complimented by a light beard that takes you back to the mountaineer days, right alongside his heart-melting smile. His fairy tale life revolves around a moment where he met his queen, Darlene, at the State Fair after showing his prized hog. Together the two break hearts around the world. A spitting image of his father, Jon has started his own business, is a future Naval Aviator, hunts deer and moose, and enjoys wood working. In his free time, Jon is a 3.6 aero major. Sorry ladies, he's taken.

Thomas L. Yuhaniak

Navy Pilot

Tom hails from Ohio, and means it. Though a little shaky over Plebe Summer (who gave that man a gun?), he smoothed out quick enough. Some have their head in the clouds, but Tom shoots a little higher. Came to Canoe U to be an astronaut, showed the Astro profs how it’s done. 2/C year: Work all night & sleep all day. Firstie summer: Vegas, baby. Plus he was the damned scariest Detailer this place has ever seen. Spent his leisure time at ‘Dillos with Craig, Bogo, Arnie, and the rest of good ole’ 2-6. Collected coins & women. Dang Tom, you really are the man. Have fun at flight school!

Nora K. Ackermann

Surface Warfare Officer

Nora's been in for the long haul- beginning her USNA journey in the frigid town of Newport, RI. She was the hardest working plebe; they kept her 4/C class status an extra semester. Once the trio joined forces, DTA was never the same. From Friday nights on the Pusser's dance floor to sleepovers with the girls in 4121, wherever there was a party, Nora was sure to be found but not without Kelsey and Jami. With her charming smile and charismatic personality the SWO community doesn't know how lucky it is. Watch out USS Iwo Jima, you're going to have your hands full!

Eric M. Arnold

Submarines

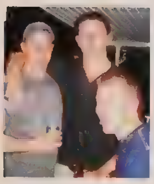
Eric Arnold grew up in a small town in Georgia on the outskirts of the metro Atlanta area. Growing up, he played little league baseball for a number of years and swam competitively for a local recreational team. At age 11 he joined the Boy Scouts of America and earned Eagle Scout by the end of freshman year at East Coweta High School. While in high school he participated in the Marine Corps Junior ROTC silent drill team and the swim team, captaining both during his senior year. At the Naval Academy, as a member of the 27th Company, Eric majored in mechanical engineering and service selected submarines as a Bowman Scholar.

Brett B. Barrett

Brandon M. Beckler

Naval Flight Officer

Brandon can be best understood by looking at a few of his prized possessions: a Super Hornet poster on his wall, a picture of his fiancé on his desk and a candle-lit shrine to Tim Tebow and the Gators in his closet. He has made the most of his time at the Naval Academy through excelling academically, playing sprint football and spending quality time at Ram's Head with friends. His four years by the bay included the toilet paper fiasco of '08, surviving Snowpocalypse, an epic adventure to El Fin del Mundo and a trip to Vietnam. Brandon is highly respected by all who know him and will undoubtedly do great things in the years ahead.



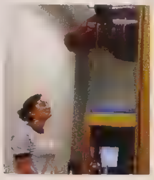
Michael L. Bettis

USMC Ground

Member of the Combat Arms Team and a low level brigade striper Mike Bettis's participation in the brigade fooled only the USMC. Weekends, Mike could be found perusing the streets of DTA for cheap beer, a piano, and an open mic to ramble sloppy southern renditions of "Don't Stop Believing", "Jack and Diane", and various 80s classics. Man of many ambitions, he claims his best career endeavors include a brisk run through UT's crowded library, long goodnights atop the seal, and early acceptance to the prestigious Black N Society. Mike Bettis's bold charisma and affinity for DTA nights will surely be missed only by his peers.

Bethany R. Candalor

Naval Flight Officer



Victor G. Castro

USMC Ground

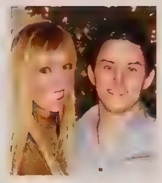
You never know what is going to come out of Victor Castro's mouth. El quizás vuelva a su idioma español nativo. Se poate auzi rostind tot felul de injurturi romȃneti de asemenea. If you're looking for a good time, stay nearby Vic, but don't trust him to get you anywhere on time. Despite his NYC roots, Victor prefers the kind of adventures you find most in Utah—Mormon women. This international man of leisure enjoys an eclectic array of activities: Broadway musicals, firearms, YP driving, skinny jeans and other Euro fashion, night land nav, cutting grass, and hitting racquetballs (or his opponents). One thing can be expected from him as a Marine officer—unwavering loyalty. Semper Fi!

Kevin W. Dunn

Navy Pilot

Kevin came to Annapolis from the deserts of Arizona with two things: an encyclopedic knowledge of the intricacies of tumbleweeds and a West Coast bro attitude. His four years on the banks of the Severn molded him into a fine example of the future of Naval Aviation; he unfailingly practiced his crew rest every afternoon, meticulously cultivated his sick flow and became a pro at beach volleyball. Though he majored in Political Science, Kevin maintained an active interest in many other fields as well, most notably in technology. His hoard of Apple products, including an iPhone, iPad, Macbook and multiple iPods earned a personal thank you from Steve Jobs. As Kevin prepares for an exciting career, his friends know he will succeed and wish him the best of luck.

Gaylan M. Greenawalt



Surface Warfare Officer

They say he once punched a horse to the ground and challenged his reflection to a staring contest. After 3 days, he won. It is rumored that he can divide by zero and has counted to infinity... Twice. He lives vicariously through himself. All we know is... His name is Gay.

Wesley R. Jackson

USMC Ground

Wesley "Stonewall" Jackson passed the time at the Naval Academy by duck calling innocent sleepers, managing loads of laundry, and spontaneously falling asleep (even when his base was under attack). Thanks to Uncle Sam, Wes is now a cyborg. Don't forget to change his batteries. Whatcha know 'bout bow fishing? Probably very little. What is that behind the nightstand? I don't know, ask the guy who ate a cheese and bean burrito. Is that a 40? Cause it just disappeared in under two minutes. Wes will forever be remembered as a sprinter, because God knows that doing anything for more that thirty minutes results in a well deserved nap.

Julie A. Kiernan

Surface Warfare Officer

This 'princess' hails from the great state of New Jersey. Miss Oak Knoll started out slow, fighting the tears every step of the way. But she has succeeded in her own right. Most importantly, Julie perfected her skills as a sociable squash player, now spreading her wings on the golf course. It seems she has her priorities right. She cherishes her time with her family and friends, always knowing when its time to put her head down and work hard. With a big smile, now she's off to San Diego! We can all laugh about it now. Thank you to my family and good luck to the class of 2011!

Andrew M. Kramer

Submarines

Andy sets the standard when it comes to persistence. Four years of trying and he has only managed to have been demoted to a chief. What he lacks in the department of being jacked, he makes up for by getting tan. He sets himself apart as the anchor man on the sailing team, but he is far from it in the academic realm. Andy serves as a beacon of light to all those from Jersey, and proves it is possible to be intelligent even if you can't pump your own gas.

Marc A. Lockhart

Surface Warfare Officer

Growing up in west Baltimore, Marc Shane Lockhart, witnessed the masses of midshipmen flocking to Baltimore's historic sites and night life. Little did he know that in the years to come, he would be shinning his shoes, knotting his tie, and adjusting the famous midshipman cover upon his head. He returns to his Baltimore community not only as a proud midshipman, but as a role model. With the support of his parents, (Karen and Angelo), community, and friends. Marc Lockhart navigated through four years at the academy. However, the seas were not all calm and sunny, and that's where Marc persevered as a leader. Whether he had to improve grades, conduct, or aptitude, Marc charged ahead and came out on top. He leaves behind a plethora of younger midshipmen who were lucky to learn from his wisdom and enthusiasm.

Luke F. Mannion

USMC Ground

Holding it down from the Empire State, its been said that he bears a striking resemblance to a car with its doors open. Nonetheless, his willingness to hang 40 feet over the stage at all hours of the day and night always came in handy. Sleep schedule, what's a sleep schedule? That's what caffeine is for! One can never have too much burlap... Look a fire truck!

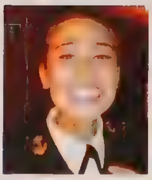
Erick J. Meckle

Steven V. Mincks

USMC Pilot

Steve Mincks attended Leatherneck 12 times, completing the course of study on the first go and then hazing his classmates the other 11 iterations. Pumpkin smashing, 'watering' penn state elevators, exit signs, and arm bars are all personal favorite pastimes. Living in a house of learned men, Steve has no time for women. Only the 'fairy' can satisfy his needs. If you eat Steven's Chinese food, he will attempt to murder you. And you better not try to move out. I mean I don't mind you in the room, but Steve… Oh and by the way, is Steve going up for 1st Sergeant? Good, because everybody else sucks.

Leighton Moncada

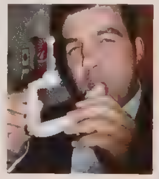


Alainia C. Moomau

USMC Ground

A native of small town Kansas, Alainia Moomau traveled to Oz to become a Marine. This Pottawatomie princess enjoys long sips of margaritas and can often be seen surrounded by her girls at El Toro. Her heart belongs to KU, so don't you dare offend her Jay Hawks or she'll beat you red and blue. Alainia is a hard worker and a woman of few words—mostly English words, but some Arabic and Spanish too. She is as loyal and as trustworthy as it gets, and the best friend you could ask for. Pigeon-toed and beautiful, the Marine Corps is lucky to get such a woman of quiet courage. Good luck on the greenside girl. Love, B.

Thomas E. Moshos



Naval Flight Officer

Arising before the dawn at a staggering 0445 every morning in order to eat his porridge, Tom Moshos could not be any more of a perfect specimen representing naval standards from the age of sail. Armed with abacus and ledger he marches to class (uphill both ways through the snow) in order to fulfill his destiny. Majoring in history is an interesting conundrum considering he has first had experience from almost all the major events that are taught at the United States Naval Academy. A model midshipmen from the age of sail, Tom lives by only one phrase, "That wasn't good enough; bring on the cat o'nine tails!"

Theresa A. Nafis

Naval Flight Officer

The East Coast wasn't prepared for this sun soaked California girl. Behind her friendly smile and a bundle of energy is one short word: TROUBLE. Her sense of adventure and high pain tolerance has led T to some interesting places and bruises. No challenge is too much, except maybe the morning after. Whether T is snowboarding in her bikini, going out on the town or racking up speeding tickets, she always gives her best. And in her crazy life, she also finds time to be a great friend. You'll never see anyone as smart and successful as her have as much fun as she can. You won't soon forget a night out with Terri. Just try to keep up.

Peter A. Pappalardo

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

The man, the myth, the Pappa-lightweight. If you have four beers, that is three too many. Losing the "fairy" bet to Jason Peck. dislike of feet and… va jay jays… USNA underground…. Waking up a room full of people at penn state(she was not skinny)… Fifa during the EOD screener. Honorably infecting your roommates with swine flu before ditching them the next year. Driving your new car without insurance. Getting a ticket for driving without insurance. Losing your ring dance date to gay right after a happy state patty's day…twice. Fight the power(s). And the Marquet girls didn't like your dance. All the things that make you "The Man."

Jason A. Peck

Franklin D. Roberson

Submarines

Look at Frank. Now back at yourself. Now back at Frank. Sadly, you aren't Frank. But after reading this bio, you could find out how to be more like Frank. Look to the left. You're on the Rickover stairs, and there's Frank being a man of passion. His dedication to academic excellence knows no bounds, even when books aren't involved. Look in his hand. It's Frank's special glasses that let you see the 'true beauty' of any woman in the world. Now look again. It's Brittany G…and she still looks like a grenade. No cursing, but always smashing patties. No, you can't be Frank…but you can smell like him. Scratch and sniff.

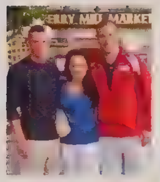
Jacob S. Roche

USMC Ground

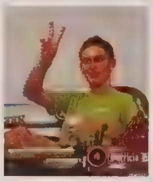
Jacob Roche hails from Chicago (well, Wilmette), Illinois. Knowing he wanted to be a Marine from the very beginning, Jacob prepared himself by maintaining a flawless high-and-tight, keeping in peak physical condition, and preparing for early morning wake-ups by going to bed every night before nine, a feat he somehow managed despite the rigorous schedule of an English major. As captain of the Navy cycling team his senior year, Jacob put in countless hours working on his tan lines, shaving his legs, and "suffering with the boys." As Jacob heads out into the Corps, we wish him well and hope he will look back on his time in Annapolis with fond memories of time spent amongst friends.

Marcella R. Rodriguez

Explosive Ordnance Disposal



Marcella Renee Rodriguez (Marci Enchilada) hails from the great state of Arizona where she spent her childhood romping and playing with her amigos. She is known for her bubbly personality, compassionate nature, and ability to make gremlin noises at random. Her best memories from USNA are the glorious days of NOLS, nearly dying on the mtn bike "blue trail," room dance parties, and spending times with her chicas out in DTA. She is excited about her future as a SWO Engineering Duty Officer. She would just like to say "¡Te amo y gracias!" to all of her friends and family-they mean the world to her. Abrazos, LKP.



Nikolaj Rossovskij

USMC

Nick is a Chernobyl baby. He woke up in Moscow one morning, walked to Cheb, Czech Republic, then, after many episodes of JAG, decided to emigrate to the US to become a part of the Navy-Marine Corps Team. This Russian has known only oppression from the bread lines in Moscow to the halls of Bancroft. Chugging Monsters, coffee, Naked Juice, and other liquids had never fared well for Comrade Rossovskij. Perhaps one day he may conquer "Dragon's Tale"! Although married, he may one day know what freedom really is. His time at USNA has been made memorable by an assortment of badass roommates, awesome friends, a beautiful and supportive WifeJG, and a responsible combination of bikes, guns, and fine spirits!

Karl F. Schonberg

Submarines

"If they want me, I'm sure they'll come back and find me," were the first words that came out of Karl's mouth at the academy. Plus, he got seasick once. An auspicious start that somehow became a great 4 years. From skiing to Alessandra. Dubstep, Rutgers, raves, and surviving the wilderness of New Jersey, the adventures were numerous and just plain fun.

Allison C.D. Scott

Surface Warfare Officer

The Great White Whale of 8th Wing (boosh!); four year member of a slave sport (I1 for life!); founding member of 27th Co. HSC (dajaj?); an aspiring gun-toting Martha Stewart; currently regretting trying almost every language except Japanese; TP Fiasco '08; "your dad's totally a spy;" RIP Hienrich von Richtenhoffen. To my lovely crew ladies, thanks for a great four years; to the '11 Gamecocks, you're awesome; to my fantastic roomies, thanks for all the good times – from chickens to firefighters, dance parties to bedtime stories, you always know how to make people stare with just a hint of judgment in their eyes.

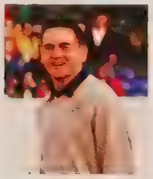
Andrew M. Shellgren

Navy Pilot

Andy literally shoots for the stars every morning when he wakes up late to his astro engineering lecture. Constantly having to thank Yuhaniak for astro help. Always bragging about how awesome Maine is. Despite the lack of rest, he is a rabbit on the track. His nickname, Turtleman is merely adeceptive measure. Maxing the PRT, year after year. Push-up, sit-up, and run like a deer. Sarcasm for long runs and trance for late nights. It is by no coincidence that Shelly's best dance move is the running man.

Andrew J. Stephenson

Submarines



Andrew 'Tall-T' Stephenson is a man of many talents. He knows how to stay calm in terrifying situations, like the time when he got trapped in his room and was forced to coolly signal his classmates for rescue. He's a Trident Scholar who takes advantage of the privileges entitled to him – to include riding the elevator, drinking coffee, and not going to class. When he's not nose deep in IT, he's diligently winning the sleep game or saving the world. Andrew is also an avid Navy sports fan who can match the heckling of Statler & Waldorf. He's a role model that will go down in history for, amongst other things, his uncanny ability to climb trees.

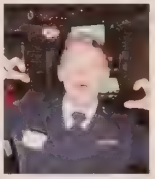
Joshua H. Taffer

Surface Warfare Officer

Hailing from Boston, GA, he is truly a man of many traits. From car repairs and engine building to dancing and poetry, Joshua can do it all. Don't be fooled by this English Major, he can out talk any Mech E about cars. The rockstar, class clown, and friend who cares, Joshua has left an everlasting mark on the Brigade. Skinny jeans, hats, and vests, Joshua will be remembered as the guy who wore whatever he wanted, whenever he wanted. Working as a DJ for the Brigade, this country boy isn't afraid to let loose—watch out SWO Community! There's no telling with this guy; it's just one adventure to the next. Good luck in Norfolk Poophead!

Nicholas P. Viola

Submarines



Nicholas "The Italian Stallion" Viola is always getting his swol on. Known for his keen affection for horsepower, the ground, and attention, Nick was a typical midshipman who liked to voice his opinion – loudly. His car is his life, even coming before the life of his friends. He overcame his fear of cold water after trying to quit the crew team for the swim team twice plebe year. Nevertheless, Nick prospered. He spent the majority of his time on the Severn engineering, sleeping, faceplanting, and torturing himself as a callused rowing-slave. Most of all, he'll never turn down a slice of bread even if it's moldy. Sons of the Severn.

Daniel R. Abney

USMC Air

Dan "Doctor" Abney, the only Doctor to never have received a PhD, or for that matter, the only doctor who took 6 years to get a bachelor's degree. Don't spit on the bus. Two beer hangover? Is that a bedbug or Schiavo? Six year bachelor brother with Jager. Halfway to 50! Wrestling bears with Diana, almost getting his head cut off by Greg. RESPECT: Find out what it means to the upperclass. Are those West Indian Lilacs? Call of Duty "Medal of Honor" recipient. Is he seizing? No that's just his full body laugh. Orlando's not the south, but he'll tell you otherwise. CRA traitor. Broquet Imperial Wicket.

Alana K. Ahern

USMC Ground

She's always there when you need her, but really! She clocked the most hours for time spent in room and at her preferred place for napping: her desk. Despite the hours lost to House, she's the resident brainiac: 99.5% on her thermo final and her response: "I wonder what I missed?" Her record doesn't end with brilliance: she's an Irish beauty with hawk eyes for grammar mistakes in Brigade emails, delights her roomies with Broadway songs, and reminisces about her civilian status while abroad in China. Like a pearl in an oyster, she may be hard to open but you'll always find something beautiful and special inside. We love you, "Arana."

Aaron Aiken

Surface Warfare Officer

Standing 6'4" with a melon shaped like an asteroid, Aaron Aiken is commonly referred to as "The Caveman." Oddly enough, Aaron is relatively smart for most cavemen and got accepted to USNA. During his four years at USNA, Aaron was a dominating force in the pool for NMSD and one of the top swimming sprinters on the team. Outside of the pool, Aaron chose to be an Economics major after horribly failing as a Physics major. Despite his intimidating looks, Aaron is a relatively gentle giant who enjoys playing WoW, shooting guns, and dating psycho midgets. If you do manage to upset the giant, expect to hear the words: "AIKEN SMASH!!"

Hannah E. Allaire

Surface Warfare Officer

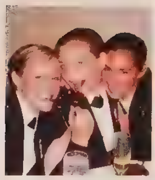
Hannah is uniquely made in the eyes of God. She has been the woman of faith when I'm in need of wisdom. She is compassionate and believes in living life to the fullest - a true life of optimism. Hannah is a ball of sunshine, smiles, adventure, and energy rolled up into one amazing woman. She is the friend that tells you what you need to hear, but in a way that is kind and truthful. "HP nite you in?" She likes girly drinks, big trucks, and hanging out with the MAGTF! It's a miracle she can smile and still drive without hitting anyone. She lives with elegance and enthusiasm and is training to be a ninja in her spare time. Waaatchaa!

Jeffrey H. Burton

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

When Jeff Burton walks down the streets of Kennesaw, Georgia, people ask "how do you stay so trim?" Lets go Drew, Jeff doesn't know what he's talking about. Wait like a Nano combination? Disney princesses. Frequent flier miles. Facing the wrong way. Ralph's swim buddy. Jaeger bombs. Getting kicked out of Dillos on 21st birthday. 75 cents. The biggest apple I've ever seen. Blonde teacher at Dillos. The only person with an accurate recollection of Wake Forrest. Mooning - A gentleman's game. Hot hands. Entertain me. Huge ears. Bastille day. The one and only Golden Spoon. Moderately good looking Burton.

Gregory Covington



Laurel E. Fernandes

Surface Warfare Officer

From day one, she has been our flower child. Plebe year she spent time decorating a certain Training Officer's shoes with rhinestones. Laurel can be spotted wearing ribbons, sparkly lip-gloss, pearls and a happy smile. She has never left any space unused in the nooks and crannies of her desk and closet, which will serve her well aboard the USS Blue Ridge (let's hope they have room for her 8 seabags!). If Navy Fashion Designer was a service selection it would be her first choice. She is a long-lost lady from the fifties faithful to God and her values; she continuously inspires us to be better people. We love you, "Raurel."

Ralph N. Grossmann

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Never a dull moment with such an esteemed man. Whether you are braving the high seas on the mighty Zaraffa, rescuing POWs from French guards, keeping up relations with the British, or just going for a crab pretzel at Davis's… Ralph is your man. He is the only guy that you can depend on to fireman man carry you with 2 broken limbs onto a 747 to get you back from foreign battlefields. Truly, Ralph is a man of character, loyalty, and one of the best friends a bro can ask for. Absolut hooyah, above and below, you should see my ORM, what's that headlamp for Ben? 37 mini-beers, good order and discipline, but her friend was nice.

Michael E. Haas

Surface Warfare Officer

Philly Boy Mikey Haas-number 24 in your lax program but number 1 in your hearts…lived with this character for a long time and had to withstand his competitive drinking streak for a little-what Kobayashi did with hot dogs Haas did with fresh drinks made at acme. This San Dog will be broing out with his boys for the next few years. I know right? Yea son, ya feel me. Pass that cranberry juice so I don't mistake my bed for the bathroom and continue to give my nephew Parker a run for his money in wetting the bed…Love this guy like a brother and always will…Haas just remember quality over quantity ya filthy animal

Discovered in a dumpster behind a 7/11 in 1986, Jerry Strickland Hauburger has led a life dedicated entirely to the service of others. On the weekends, Jerry works at the local soup kitchen where he serves hot bowls of his own sweat to those in need. While he remains totally illiterate, Jerry forces himself to stare at books for hours in the local library in the hopes that he will, in his words, "learn words more better." Jerry aspires to one day be as fat and bald as possible, while also maintaining his uncanny ability to climb up lamp shades in the White House when no one is looking. I can waited to be a SWO

Wonho Kang

USMC Ground

Hailing from the Frozen Chosin and raised as a Kangry individual, Wonho "Nmn" Kang was blessed with a succinct Korean middle name, sir. Seriously, what kind of dumb middle name is that? Making fun of crippled firsties who claim to be "getting stronger everyday," the true guidon of 28th company worked for four years to fend off post it notes to clean his room while his base was under attack by the Protoss. A true draft dodger at heart, he gained notoriety from the nuclear navy selection committee while at the same time winning 1st place in the PCB invitational key toss. Permission to correct your classmate is not granted. Knock knock

Sylvia A. Kilburn

Surface Warfare Officer

Sylvia A. Kilburn: woman of many voices, many faces. More often than not, Sylvia could be found deep within the bowels of Mahan or the Chapel, frolicking in between scenes—most of which starred her in one of two roles: old woman or middle aged man. "Why?" you ask. Because Thor, mighty god of thunder, resides in her larynx. And her height? Proud representative of the Lollipop Guild…welcome to the Munchkin City. Her four fine years by the Bay boil down to the following two life lessons: 1) Grad School will, in fact, be worse, 2) Prose. And so she beats on, boat against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past...

Luis E. Luy Jr.

Submarines

(Read in fake Mexican accent) Before making his way to Annapolis, this gypsy roamed the border between Mexico and Arizona, where he began his unsuccessful pursuit of the English language. His short-tenured French club prez further confused this knowledge. Everyday he still wakes up there, on the border between incoherence and reality. Instead, he lets John Mayer speak for him; no Big Mac for Jano. During his time "just here," he worked in the back of ETB, romanced the Subway girls, went "bear" hunting, and said no to boundaries of accepted taste and proper decorum. Always late, but ready to party, Good Nice was the best of nice.

Robert A. Macedo

Surface Warfare Officer

Mom, Dad, thank you, I couldn't have done it without you two helping me through everyday! Chris, Marcos, and Michael I love you guys! You three were always with me. Mama J, Mr. Jordan, Arielle and Miles I'll miss y'all! To my closest friends, our adventure was awesome but as always too short. Sailing the Bay and the Atlantic kept me going the first three years. Climbing great falls and drinking downtown kept me here my last year. No matter what it was you were all by my side, thank you for the memories. I wish you all the best. Have fun and don't stress the little things!

Jonathon S. Malycke

Navy Pilot

Through it all I couldn't have done it without my parents and my 2%'er Catherine. To start off the early years were marked by back to back PCB trips and Waterballoon-gate. The rest went something like this… Majority Rules, "How many copies of Top Gun do we have in the car?", Brigade-famous BIFF-X, That's what the girl in the store said, Army-Navy 2009 (Schiavo how are you still alive?!), the red light house, Chapel-Hill: Are you Russia!, But I want to go Marine Air!, Fins up, 21st Birthday (I am the original Saki-bomber). My four years have been all that James Franco advertised and now it's time (that's right Admiral, the fastest of Jets). There's more to tell but simply put, I couldn't do it justice.

The best Marine Corps Barbie to come from Dallastown. Rowing is awesome, let's buy all the clothes! Oh wait no it's not. Most often referred to as Ali, the look-alikes are inseparable...VGEP is for smarties, roommates? Good thing she was in Egypt before the revolution. Thank goodness for swine flu, yay month off of school! Middle Eastern romance dun dun dun dun… yay party girls unite!!! Who else closes out the firstie club? Mrs. Degree was part of the plan, can't wait to test out her Rachael Ray recipes in her state of the art kitchen. Chicken casserole with a bit of killing on the side? YUT!

I went to the woods because I wanted to live deliberately, to suck the marrow from the bones of life; to put to rout all that was not life, and not to come to the end of life, and discover that I had not lived. I did not wish to live what was not life... I wanted to live so sturdily and so Spartan-like as to put to rout all that was not life... to drive life into a corner to know it by experience and be able to give an account of it in my next excursion.

Mo Mo the Hawaiian. According to Dan, he's not a real Hawaiian and even if he was, he's probably the only Hawaiian that can't swim. He always has a smile on his face even when he's telling you that you suck. His most notable accomplishments are his engagement to the beautiful Erin Fee, his nuke interview survival, and the 500 college boy rolls during PROTRAMID. Don't forget his words of wisdom, "Welcome to the jungle, I'm not Montoya, I thought he said fun cover, Winner!, and company prayer at 2145 in the Wardroom!"

Reared in Chesapeake (not Hampton), this kid loved him some Oriental flavor, including, but not limited to, Judy living in his PC, Calabrese's fiancé, Mariko, Ju and Uju, Pasty Eyebrows, Hui, Brownie Bear, and NOT Caleb's ring dance date. This unrepentant gambler could never beat the monkey during the precious few hours he was awake at the Academy. On the streets of NTV, he and his Chachrockets picked fights with unsuspecting cop cars, pizza, and white devils (get money). The missing link of ring dance is missing knuckles. He was the anti-Murph, fueled by Rumpleminz and coffee. He didn't want to be here, but he belonged here.

Master Chuckles, Smurph, Chick Magnet. Hailing from Worst Bridge VA, this Super Smash Bros champ is the most ticklish person on the planet. Flying a naval aircraft will be a serious upgrade from his Tonka Truck, since most grandmas could beat him in a road race. With a robotic analysis that could put C-3PO to shame, he managed to rise through the ranks of the lwt crew team to become its captain. Perhaps one of this sweat monster's best characteristics is his ability to keep his cool, unless he's competing in a "half mile" warf to warf swim. To a great captain and a better friend, good luck at flight school and beyond. SHARK ATTACK!

When you were our age, we know that you were already having flashbacks to wars that you were never in. Like that time in 1944 when we needed help with our papers…and oral…and test corrections…and anything you learned at Nuke school that applies nowhere else in the real world (except our beloved USNA). While we appreciate your usefulness as a flashlight and for a never ending source of entertainment with the conduct system, no one cares that you had a picnic at Manassas. It does indeed take talent for you to get fried for drinking underage at the age of 23. Stay thirsty my friend. Musketeers for life.

Known as salty Sergeant Ramsey, she attacked plebe year with earsplitting chow-calls & single-handedly made us the only plebe room to never sneak media privileges. Her campaign to replace all food in King Hall with soy milk, hummus and veggie burgers is well underway. She can often be found sporting various USMC regalia & her desk is a shrine to the Corps. Aside from intense PT, she enjoys avoiding speckled grapes, inventing Chinese dialects & taking liberties with the English language. And although we may not always be listening to the constant stream of chatter, we surely appreciate her opinions. Cheep cheep! We love you, "Raura."

This IST captain followed in the footsteps of his water balloon-hating hero, Maj Turner, and donned his zero fade proudly. He could ride in his little red wagon. Not including his Tupperware full of cash, he was left with a generous endowment from his parents. He ventured out in his suit, compression shorts underneath, to be kicked out of every bar in the tri-city area. His "dance," heavy on shoulders—not much else—won over the randos. Not his bag. All he could do was be him, whoever that was.

I would just like to acknowledge your willingness to accommodate absolutely everyone else before yourself. You are the definition of selfless and no one can fault you for that. Thereza Alvesteffer

Nuclear Surface Warfare

The small town girl becomes a USNA graduate. Her mad cooking skills and love for adventure took her to almost every state in the union, and her wacky sense of humor kept her friends in stitches. The SWO-tivated Nuke met her match, however, in the witty Ricky Smith. His Cap'n Crunch proposal captured her heart and they decided on a June Wedding! Thereza took full advantage of her time at good ol' USNA, with her track escapades, marathon races, skiing adventures, plebe pyrotechnics (who knew hand sanitizer was flammable?),and many trips to southern Virginia to see the fiancé. Her future looks bright and full of hope! Good luck, chica!

Brett Borda

Surface Warfare Officer

This hard working, constantly studying insomniac from Bethlehem is a true American hero. From Bruce Springsteen to America's favorite pastime Brett embodies everything that is this great Nation. Brett is everyone's first call for a friend, favor, or a wing man. He is the kind of guy that will drop whatever he's doing and drive all the way to BWI to bring you your ID.... you know… hypothetically. Firstie year he achieved the billet of Training Officer by always taking his own training VERY seriously. To this day, no one has matched Brett's zeal and aptitude for 21st birthday training. A great roommate, a great friend, and a great future SWO! Have fun in Cali, GO FLYERS!

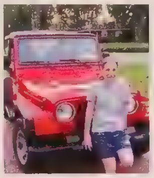
Eric T. Brugler

Navy Pilot

"Gnarls Senior," the Godfather of all shredders. Eric's obsession with concealing his 4.0 GPA and his status as "the top of our class" with his surfing persona as a "Broceanographer" is rivaled only by his love for Chipolt's burritos. Although an academic perfectionist and genius, he continues to struggle with difficult tasks such as doing laundry, ironing, and using the bathroom. In fact, Eric has never actually worn any of his own uniforms since I-Day, an unfortunate result of his laundry difficulties. Good luck in the UK my friend, watch out for the hooligans, try to figure out how leave chits work and always remember… it's alright… even Kelly Slater's bald.

Brittany Churchey

Navy Pilot



Brittany Churchey was a running midshipman. Of her 1425 days spent at USNA, she probably went running on 1000 of them. Any accountant could prove she spent more time running than studying. Nonetheless she always managed to make the grades. As an oceanography major during her time here she worked quickly and always asked for leadership. Training was her calling and she prowled the halls in search of plebes. She could even be seen clearing dry dock of misinformed plebes. When she wasn't running or training or studying you might have found her on the golf course. As one of the inaugural members of the ECA woman's golf team, she was able to find the green. This former midshipman is sure to find the green in life as well.

Benjamin Clay

Surface Warfare Officer

"Beeeen" Clay came to the Naval Academy as a promising and (then) young product of the fleet. At first he only knew three words (Over! Up! Cut!), but before long Ben mastered his craft as a Sea Lawyer. From countless Chick-in-a-Boxes at Rage to Dark & Stormies at Pusser's, jumping the wall to see an Avett Bros Concert to New Years shenanigans in NYC, Ben has lived his Academy life to the fullest. Run your division like a boss, but try not to… well, you know. Best of luck at the Gravely, Ben.

Matthew H. Cook

USMC Ground

Born in a Waffle House bathroom in 1985, Matthew Cook has led a life that many consider irrelevant, while others believe him to be The Toxic Avenger! In 2002, Matthew won the Nobel Peace Prize for consuming 816 raw songbirds from various parks throughout Europe. Matthew enjoys stealing forks from restaurants and eating loose change he finds on the floor. His favorite books include The Bible and Helter Skelter. He has been known to confuse his own life with the animated series Thundercats for long periods of time. As he enters old age, Matt likes to spend his time helping euthanize pets at the local PetSmart.

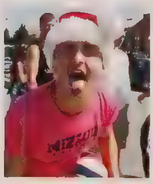
Sean H. Dinn

Surface Warfare Officer



Sean "Emperor" Dinn an Arnold alum is a c-section baby hailing from any city that has a repressive tone to it. He comes from "nothing," otherwise known as the sewers of Kensington, MD. He has never heard the words "last call." Sean has never lost a game of anything in his entire life. The game is called he wins. Probably the best sports gambler to ever grace the halls of Bancroft, again, he has never lost. Huge Philadelphia sports fan, Georgia is the pick of the week. He also has taken more credits than anyone...ever. Sean will be taking his talents to Norfolk, VA on the USS LABOON. They're in for some comedic entertainment.

Thomas M. Fiammetta

USMC Ground

Thomas Matthew Fiammetta was born in Beaufort, South Carolina on November 9, 1988. On that day the corps was blessed with a strong and mighty son. Growing up, he was heavily influenced by his older brother and his father. A natural athlete, he played football and lacrosse in high school and went on to play football at NAPS. Upon graduating, he decided to cowboy up and get his weight up. He was voted best built man of the military, which made him famous. He currently weighs in at 235 pounds of solid, brown MAN. As a future leader of Marines, Thomas is sure to succeed and do extremely well. You couldn't ask for a better friend than Thomas.

Jonathan J. Hemler

Navy Pilot

Jonny "Hammersticks" Hemler, a real great Plebe he was. There has been so much that has happened since the days of Plebe year. Jon could be found shredding waves, hitting up Chipotle, rocking out on the guitar for CRU and learning how to be a model Midshipman from Lil' Big Hem. Intershreddinals was a blast along with the two man suite firstie year listening to the DMB. Now it's off to become a pilot and married man. If the pilot thing doesn't workout though, Dillo's always needs a sick band for Mids to come hear! God speed and remember Philippians 4:13.

Joseph G. Hoff III

Surface Warfare Officer

Joseph George Hoff III always rocks his "Blounts" hat and diamond stud earring. He thoroughly enjoys exploring the Gevin with Nasher, just as much as the couches at Arnolds-but what happens in the Gevin stays in the Gevin. In between episodes of Glee, Grey's Anatomy, Greek, and Merlin, he sometimes inhales Texas Cinnamon Rolls by accident. He claims he dips, but people are screaming in the streets. Don't try talking to him, because he'll just fall asleep–even if you're telling him he has pocket aces. Senior Chief Hoff will be sporting a dark blue poopy suit and consuming tobacco in lovely San Diego aboard the USS RENTZ.

Erin M. McKenna

Navy Pilot

Patrick N. McMann Jr.

Submarines

CMOD Mcmanimal! He definitely listened to his dad every time he told him, "Son that'll put hair on your chest." The Post tripled its reports of sasquatch sightings since the Mcmaniac began at the USNA. "Pat You Dog!" Is that what you want? A murder suicide on the slopes of Whitetail? Cause this here is real! All the movie nights he pulled while his poor Aero major friends slaved away into night. We hate to say it but even as an oceanography playboy this boy wonder mastered MATLAB and dominated the gradebooks. Never losing his temper (hockey stick), and always one for a kind word, dare we say Pat is the nicest guy on the yard?

Francisco J. Melendez

Surface Warfare Officer

Francisco Javier Melendez was born on April 3,1988 in Columbia, MD.Upon graduating high school, he became a member of the NAPS class of 2007,where he played soccer and lacrosse.As a member of the class of 2011 at the Academy,he has overcome many obstacles, and continued to raise the bar for himself.He was a vital member of the Club Lacrosse team and has held several leadership positions within the company,which allowed him to blossom into a great leader and mentor.Francisco-Javier is loved and revered by everyone he meets. Sincerity and loyalty are the foundation of every one of his relationships.One couldn't ask for a better friend.

David J.V. Mendez Jr.

Surface Warfare Officer

David Mendez is a man of simple taste. He enjoys the simple pleasures in life like a long walk on the beach with a Choco Taco in hand. He never asks for much besides the occasional soda or couch. But he became an overnight celebrity when he became the number one dealer in electronic media. Soon he was living the fast paced life that every upstate New Yorker reads about in the tabloids. His reputation grew even further when he stole the limelight from the renowned Harmon. We all are truly lucky to have been blessed by the legend that is Mendez. Good luck on the high seas, and stay thirsty.

Claire A. Miller

Navy Pilot

Oh precious Claire! We love your wild laughter, kind heart, and insane geekiness! Best of luck in the Navy: no more fainting in front of senior officers! Balance your coffee intake around computers. Don't ever half-ass it or blow things into the water. Watch out for elephants, peanut butter and flying umbrellas in the biblioteca. Polish grandmothers will always have your back. The best way to move duty stations is in a shopping cart, in the rain, in your whites, with your sea-bag. Advice to Sam: wear a suit to impress the Millers and put that away, it's not that impressive. We love you Claire, you will always be a celebrity to us!

Christian S. Murphy

Navy Pilot

Chrriiiis, Young Christian, Murphy, joined us from Concord, North Carolina missing any semblance of a southern accent, but not a sense of adventure. Whether on Eurotrips, in Speakeasys', or just driving across country to attend a crappy soaring Academy, Chris has always risen to Aero excellence. Even with the amount of unnecessary math he made the time to avoid the sub-draft, make root beer floats, and find a giant fish. He is headed to P-cola soon for fffreee! His mouth writing checks that his body can't cash. However, from the superior bank of 29th Company Chris gets a "AAA" rating after maturing these past four years. We believe that he will make a great pilot and officer.

Jeremy R. New

Surface Warfare Officer

Jeremy. J-Bone. Morgan. 8-Ball. These past four years would rival Animal House between all the pigs, cows, wildebeests, salmon, and other creatures we have stocked up in the barn. Whether you were swinging around a Louisville chugger, a wizard staff or a tennis racquet, everyone would have remembered your flowing locks, charming smile and wise advice. You've come a long way from late night "phone-calls" in the tennis center to "CSI: Annapolis" dates in the apartment. With a new commission, a poli sci diploma and a wife to start your next chapter of life, know we all love you and wish you the best of luck! JeeeeeEEEEEB!

Cody M. Nissen

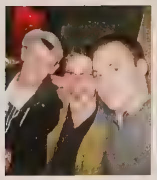
USMC Ground

Cody Michael Nissen. A man blessed with the body of an NFL lineman, the sense of humor of a 12 year old, the party appetite of Charlie Sheen, and a mind like a scientist. He is just as happy sleeping for 24 hours a day, or zero. Although he dabbles as a midshipman Cody would much rather relax in bed with his laptop while sporting dreadlocks and his pierced bosom. After hanging out with Cody for four years and finding month-old food in the most unlikely of places we have all come to know him as much more than our "special guy," but as a great friend. We know you will do big things, and don't be afraid to ride the lightning.

Kristofer W. Ochs

Naval Aviation

Kristofer "Billy" Ochs, graduate of the fine St. Mary's of Annapolis was blessed to attend the "Finest Institution of its Kind in the World," a.k.a. Valley Forge before entering USNA. While at USNA, Kris became Captain of the Managers…a Bro, a Brew, and a great friend. This Quan Econ major actually studies better in front of the TV than in the library—who knew? As the local kid, Kris went home A LOT. Everyone was invited to his place, but if it wasn't for Capt and Nurse, no one would've come back. Kris never let anything (girls, injuries, or school) knock him down, and will be nothing but successful as a Navy Pilot. Good luck bro.



Dylan O. Parrott

Navy Pilot

Parrott (not Dylan) is the greatest gymnast in the world. He could have gone far if not for a bad shoulder and even worse eating habits. One day all those Ben and Jerry's are going to catch up with him. Notorious for never having anything (paper, soap, Blue & Golds), he never hesitated to borrow your stuff with or without your permission. Little Dylan was the baby of the room and acted accordingly. We lived in the only room in Bancroft that was quiet at 1930 because Dylan was already asleep. When he wasn't sleeping, he was practicing his Russian in hopes of finding a wife. Good luck in Pensacola kid. See you on the other side.

Micah L. Penley

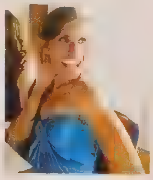
Navy Pilot

Terrorist hunting, sky diving, and flirting are usually associated the likes of James Bond. However, at least the classic hero tends to, by all accounts, put his dirty clothes away at least once a week. This preface is not meant to undermine Micah's incredible sense of style or wit (that would be in poor taste), but instead simply pay homage to the epic battle that has raged around his desk over the last four years between himself and the mountains of stuff that would bury lesser mortals. That isn't to say Micah doesn't have a soft side. He is, in fact, a lover not a fighter, but he's also a fighter so don't get any ideas.

Daniel N. Peters

Surface Warfare Officer

Its been an interesting 4 years man. Not sure how you made it with the family you had, those camping trips with Uncle Mike really took a toll on you. During our tenure at here I would have to say we became Jedi masters in the art of "skating", hopefully our apprentices will carry on traditions like civilian Tuesdays. I don't think any other class will be able to top knife boxing or extreme indoor beach volleyball. The staff at Acme or Red Robin won't know what to do now that we are graduating. Everyone wishes you and Ashley the best of luck, no more web cam or being back in the apartment by 11.



Michelle G. Romero

Surface Warfare Officer

NAPS '07 KILL! Mich will always wish she was just a little taller, eat like a baby dinosaur, drink D-Coke, and head to Chick and Ruth's for delicious deli potatoes. YUM! Wait, there isn't a gigantic bridge from Delaware to New Jersey? Oh well, ferry here we come! Sketchy New York comedy club? Mids there too, REALLY? Guns of steel, looking fly in spandex, avoiding the dreaded sock tan, never having camel toes, and Miami's own "White House" all prepare us for: Patriot League Champs, and "Who wants to get faster today?" Aye, aye CAPITAN! Whatever the situation count on Michelle to brighten your day. Kiss her because she's Irish now!

Matthew W. Roukema

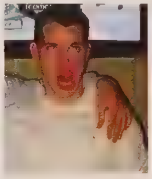
Navy Pilot

What a guy! How many people made it through the Naval Academy with only one girl, true love survives. He passed Chemistry for two people, endured attacks from a vengeful tree, temptations of Battle Star Galacta, Futurama, Tosh.0 and constant barrages from his roommates about his being whipped. But seriously, does anyone know another mid who spent more time watching TV, talking to his girlfriend, arguing with Anthony, and shooting stuff with shotguns (blue over khaki with a combo cover) and still managed the stellar grades that he did in Aero? Truly amazing, just like the friend he is to all of us.

Michael J. Schupp

Surface Warfare Officer

Michael Joseph Schupp should have originally enrolled at The University of South Carolina. Schupp really loves his football buddies, but love his lax buddies more. He also loves girls with great personalities, AKA, Miss Indiana. He will forever hold a special place in his heart for the BROWN-EYED GIRL. For future reference, make sure you don't EVER make him laugh while he is sitting near an edge of a pool. In regards to Sweeney's celery, just tell him, "the carrot monster ate it." Schupp is headed to Norfolk on the USS LABOON, but don't let him roam the streets, or it will cost you $100. FEBU.



Michael S. Smithson

USMC Air

YYUUUUTTTT! MIDN 1/c Michael Smithson has always had aspirations to fly. Who would have guessed that it would be through the Marine Corps? When people think of marines, they generally think of 240 pound, burly, jacked men, not men who disappear when they turn sideways. This isn't to say that Michael isn't fit, for it was once said that he ran to the United Kingdom, while taking a detour through France and Italy for good measure. Marines also aren't the biggest examples of compassion, but anyone who sees Mike care for his turtle Burt will know that even the toughest men have a soft side. "Yut Yut…a devildog… oohrah?" – Mike Smithson

Lawrence J. Stratton

USMC Ground

James Stratton comes from Lancaster, PA. At the Academy he was in 29th Company. He will serve as a US Marine upon commission…I want to say "What's up" to Mike, Tom, Chico, Borda, Eric and Dosk. You guys made my four years here some of the best times of my life. I never had a bad workout with you guys up in MacD, and will miss those days for the rest of my life. The best times have to be the nights we all can't remember…Love you guys and best of luck to the class of 2011.

Henry R. Strong

Navy Pilot

This caption could never begin to encapsulate the personality or antics of the infamous, prestigious, and legendary Hank "the tank" Strong. His relationship history is one-of-a-kind, could it be his suave shady demeanor, online spending habits, or his homeless wardrobe which attracts so many women, or is it his heavy-handed obnoxious typing skills? Either way the entire brigade just loves this guy… a friend to all. He's a great mentor, small group leader, and midshipman. A renaissance man of sorts he exhibits an ever-increasing number of hobbies and abilities. Just don't forget to snap a salute when you see him driving by… Those five stars on the Subaru Admiral deserve a little respect. Metro.

Anthony T. Walters

USMC Pilot

This "Lou-ah-vul" lad dreamt of flying jets while riding horses through Kentucky blue grass. Avoiding flak and dodging bullets, he survived the aero curriculum. Among us he wins best dressed; don't argue politics w/ him he'll never rest. Bellowing out split times he managed the cross country team through quarters, nickels, and dimes. Leaving the Leather Nam liberty radius was a must. In A and E, Foote and DeVillers had to trust. Roller Coasters, Lynyrd Skynyrd, true love, 6 hour road trip or bust! USMC Marathon, he left many opponents in the dust. He must now embrace the ambivalence of being a lover and a (marine) fighter (pilot).

Allison L. Warwick

USMC Ground

Facebook=life. She has to check herself out before she leaves the room. Scrunchy face. Can she ever speak correctly? What is an eggel? Beautiful, marathon runner, who with a wardrobe like that can dress for any occasion. Kittens inspired by kittens! Moms delicious banana bread. I can't stop eating! I think I have a tapeworm. Can your dreams get any weirder? Saturday nights in DTA, lets go to pussers! A committed friend, shopping buddy, and food connoisseur. France is Spring Break fun. The Marine Corps is lucky to have her. YUUUUTTT! 8322 <3.

Kyle R. Webber

Navy Pilot

"Shut the %@ up Donny." His days in "the Dirty D" instilled in him a sense of gritty determination and stubbornness that has adversely affected his ability to put together a non-G sentence. Never saw someone with a bigger man crush, not that there's anything wrong with that. Who doesn't like sweaty dudes and big red trucks? The effectiveness of his weight training is, at present, the subject of much debate. But his pants don't fit quite like they used to, too many squats? Still, he more than compensates for his emaciated stature with the power of his intellect, radiating air of the gentleman scholar, and truly great friend.

Brian T. Yaptinchay

Submarines

A PS 3, PS 2, Xbox 360, Wii, GameCube, PSP, and 36-in t.v pale in comparison to his passion to live hundreds of feet below the sea with a hundred other men. As a nocturnal Chinese-Filipino, his many accomplishments include spending more time in a Communist country than everyone else in his company combined, not once starting his homework before midnight, and earning an impressive 206,452 soul on his way to defeating all five Arc-Daemons. In short, his legacy and relationship with his roommates can only be embodied by a few simple words: "Brian, for the first three years of us rooming together, we thought you were a house-cat."

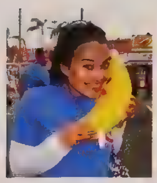
Whitney Bashore

Navy Pilot



Like most children, Whitney Chua Bashore dreamed of becoming an astronaut when she grew up. However, this space cowgirl will actually achieve this dream. Gallons of tea perished in support of her inhumane class load and devotion to the upkeep of Hurricane Whitney, Category 5. Whitney really does inspire fear into the rumors that the Chinese are taking over the world. Goats really like to nibble.

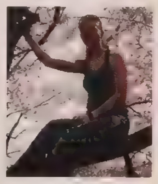
Caleb J. Burrow

Special Warfare

Caleb Burrow will soon have to leave his domestic partnership for his librarian. He's preparing for BUDS by always wearing black and going for long walks on the beach. He once tried to sharpen a knife while driving... and failed. The first hobbit from the Shire to attend USNA. The first nerd to go to BUDS. He always wimps out when it comes to pull-ups though. Sons of the Severn.

Deidre F. Coulson

Navy Pilot

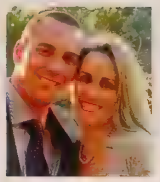


Warning: May spontaneously combust if exposed to sunlight. Keep out of reach of sharp objects if you value your life, this soulless ginger has no qualms with displaying her insane collection of knives (is it legal for someone to have that many?). Don't let her lack of color fool you; she turns dark red if she can't reapply her SPF 150 every 30 minutes. When not keeping the kids in line, Dee enjoys hitting up Galway Bay, doing unnecessarily large amounts of work, and dreaming about flying Growlers in the future (you got helos). We would miss you if you weren't bent on taking us with you. Musketeers for life.

Julie A. Devlin

Navy Pilot

Hello it's me! From Jersey, yet dressed in cowboy boots & Sunday dress, Julie D is one of the Dirtiest from 30. Touring Europe & studying in the library are the places you'll find this outgoing southern belle when shes not with her Frank / It all started on the loading dick. After Diffy Qs, George Strait, DMB, sex talks, yoga with Cori & verbatim Marcel, Id say were Strongbow mates for life / She knows how to party so well that she single handedly created an unofficial Brigade billet, Party Planner. If you need an adventuresome accomplice, whether its an epic night out in town or skiing down a mountain in a bikini, you can count Julie in.



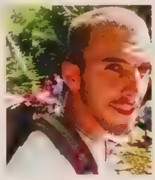
Adam F.R. Dierker

USMC Ground

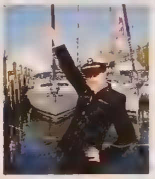
Adam Fitz Randolph Dierker is a young lad who needs no introduction. He was born an American, but travel was no mystery as he traversed the Pond to the great European continent. This was where he assumed his self-proclaimed title The Renaissance Man and graced us lowly mortals with his intellectual prowess. When he decided to end his walk-about in the Swiss Alps, he returned to America with the newfound love for Glenlivet, admiration for souped up four wheel drives, a deep fondness for older women, and a longing to serve his long-forgotten home country. On Saturday nights one could find Ol Fitzy at the local tavern sipping on a bottle of aged Scotch. He is an approachable lad, but he might only listen to you with one ear.

William F. Foshage IV

USMC Ground



Bill never works out but is always in shape. Kept the other 2 muskaqueers in check w/ over explanations, over reacting, over confrontations, and under appreciation for rules. Always the moral compass, always seen at MQF, turning the other way to terrorist plots, planning outrageous schemes, taking night tours of less visited buildings, making plebes cry, or reading wikipedia. But if you really need him for something, you go to juapotomuses desk. He stayed out of the stadium all 1/C year but once… graduation. Saved Chris's life at AF, 5 roommates 4 years, wardroom rep 2 semesters, sharp skates, Karim watch, and the occasional adult beverage.



Laurel M. Gill

Navy Pilot

Between starting a lady's golf team, Lady Gaga adoration and being a multilingual social butterfly, there is never a dull moment in Laurel's life. Laurel Gill is a refreshing mix between La Jolla princess and down-to-earth Minnesotan adventure-seeker. She is always picking up new skills, including everything from learning to speak Danish to playing guitar. More importantly, Laurel is a loyal friend and hard-worker. She is always there for her friends (and fish), full of the best advice. There is no question that Laurel will take on every challenge the Navy presents to her with extreme intensity and a keen fashion sense.

Joel A. Gillquist

Naval Flight Officer

Joel Gillquist, hailing from his rack (since it's past 2000), this illustrious training officer lead his plebes by example, quietly. Despite being possibly the most reserved person you'll ever meet and spending every weekend washing and waxing his car, he still managed to find a wife before the rest of us. On that note, she'll be wearing the combat boots in the relationship. Joel majored in math and, since he didn't have enough homework, minored in film studies. Getting "skipped over" for intramurals as a 1/C, freed up a lot of time to… be in his room. His time at the Academy prepared him well for his career of "riding shotgun."

Cartwright T. Hall III

USMC Ground

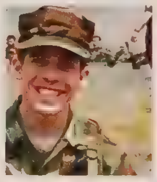
Cartwright Hall, whose age and Sprint Football number match (43), is convinced that Cincinnati is the greatest sports city the world has ever known. His academic achievements include being the only person to receive a grade lower than an F on a 6 week exam. A winner of a Woody Harrelson look-alike contest, he once barfed an entire cheese steak in a Philly bar. A leader among his SFB linebackers, he constantly motivated his teammates with a blood drenched nose. Cart will be remembered by: day olds, roadies, stonies, high lifes, being a cheapskate, love odyssey with e, room dawgs, and being the nicest guy ever.

Matthew J. Harmon

Submarines

Matt Harmon, despite apparently not graduating from high school, got navy pilot… wait no, subs, oops… back to pilot again, oh well… lets put him in a sub. Yeah, that's good, we want to see that nasty NOLS beard again. He proved that AddictingGames.com really is addicting, but hey, he's a NARC so does he really need more than 3 hours of sleep? Half man, half fish—a merman who took his mermaid to Ring Dance. Too bad his swimming will be useless at 500 feet below, but he'd better keep that lotion he uses for the "chlorine burns." He'll need to find someone else to help with that now. "Matt, sign TAPS. The CDO is looking for you."

Joseph M. Kramer



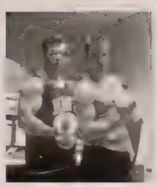
USMC Ground

Joe comes to us from Arizona, a state on the 'West Coast.' A star among the plebes during our plebe summer, Joe has developed significantly throughout our four years. Joe impressed us all with his physical abilities, doing everything from handstand pushups (Plebe Summer) to an iron man competition (Firstie Thanksgiving). A budding globe hopper, he has toured Western Europe and the Eastern US all on a whim. His dedication to his people and the Marine Corps, along with his consistently high levels of motivation are instantly noticeable. TBS better get ready for 2LT Kramer. "Mental Training is What I Do."

Eric J. Kroeger

USMC Pilot

Eric Kroeger, from Joesville, Idaho, fearlessly led D&B as they followed in the footsteps of Straight No Chaser, not to mention playing chicken with stationary objects. This "varsity" aero major never let us forget how hard his academics were, especially as he watched yet another season of Samurai Jack. Between games of Robot Unicorn Attack and Sporcle, he has been known on occasion to do an aero problem, or play Halo. His devilish looks start underneath it all, with impeccably ironed boxers, so his dingle-dongle doesn't dangle out. With his braided leather belt and go-fasters, he's set for a future in the "Marine Corps!"



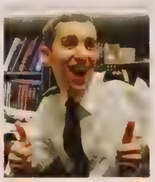
Michael P. Magyar

USMC Ground

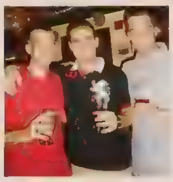
Thirtieth company's Michael Philip Magyar will be most remembered for his abnormally large Biceps and sense of humor. From the times of enlisting in the Navy as a 8404 Corpsman, to NAPS 07 KILL, to USNA: he was involved in working out, pistol club, being a Bro 24/7, curling everything in Mac D, partying downtown, and Friday night web caming with his girlfriend Steph Baby. High-n-tight motivator who refused to run more than finishing a PRT or PFT, he was a living Legend to the "Yung Chew," bodybuilding inspiration to Reck, the all-knowing older brother and Prior to Mincks, the grill legend to Manny sauce, the original 8404 Corpsman to Nunez, teacher of Mo-boards to Clay, and adventure seeking Dojo to Petey Schmidt. The long anticipated wedding will commence when Mike has any money after buying his black Camaro, even if Mike won't be able to attend his own bachelor party. Service selected "meat-head" the Corps finally found someone who could fill out the sleeves of their uniforms. GTL, Hungarian Gypsy, Keep on Curlin', Semper Fi.

Michael J. Moberg

Submarines



Mike Moberg—man or machine? A kindergartener can count the number of times he's exercised, and somehow he beasts every PRT and swim class, while maintaining his "jacked and (farmer) tanned" physique. A Company commander with fencing skills to beat Inigo Montoya. A capstone junkie who can't say no. No one believes it yet, but he'll have a son in the class of 2029, unless you've seen that picture of his "sister" and the "cousins." Seriously, he has to get that in before the radiation from the subs takes away his manpower. The most Baptist Catholic you'll ever meet, but not quite Baptist enough… There's always another chance to excel.



Andy A. Muscarello

Navy Pilot

Andy Muscarello, the I-Tie who came to the navy. You will never miss this unmistakable Guido who hails from Chicago. He always wanna let you know he got his accent from working at Fontano's and if you don't believe him, you're a sonna ma bitch. He easily becomes part of your family and lives his life in the fast lane, but only as fast as the internet will take him. There is not a movie he has never seen and will always make time to watch Hawaii Five'O with his roommates. You can never miss this Italian Stallion with his obtrusive nose visible for miles. After his career impersonating Tom Cruise, he will always have a future in the Mafia following the footsteps of Al Capone.

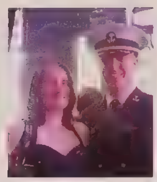
Benjamin L. Olivas

Surface Warfare Officer

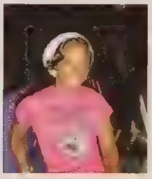
MIDN LCDR Benjamin Olivas aka The HONOR guy or BenTensity, will continue to wear his 4 stripes in the fleet as the most SWO-TIVATED Officer. He'll be the first in '11 to make Admiral, and also the first to become a Congressman. Living so close to Mexico in the bustling calles de El Paso, "Ben-ha-meen" has kept close to his Mexican roots while still maintaining exemplary patriotism. Ben has developed close platonic relationships with every female Midshipman but takes special interest in the ND "Hindenbergs." When asked for a quote for this biography he was already asleep preparing for the next day of success.

Ashly C. Pacheco

Naval Flight Officer



When not seen kicking bad guy butt on Spyro Wii, she can be seen traveling around in a blue British police box and kicking zombie butt in bad b-movies. As a (mostly) functioning member of society, she's traveled far and wide with the musical group known as D&B for her tenure at the Academy, as well as living at the end of the world on 8-4 with the rest of the Dirty Thirty. She likes 1000 shaft h.p. machinery, wearing a brown coat, a ring of power and quoting the Independents. As a NFO, she'll soon be flying around the world, and in the end, there can only be one Pachekachu. Good luck with all you do, and "aim to misbehave."



Anndrea E. Pierre

USMC Ground

THAT'S MISS PIERRE TO YOU…. The best perfumes come in the smallest bottles, and her scent is DIVA. Yep, she is Christ's petite Haitian diva. She is a true P 31:30 woman who is beautiful in spirit and strong in heart. She loves her family and friends with the same love God gives her, and boy oh boy does HE love her a lot. Willing to give her sweater as a tissue for a crying friend is among the least of the things she does and is willing to do for those around her. So blessed and glad she is in my life.
SHE is a MARINE

Christopher Price

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Chris, "The Other Roommate," and "Craig" has transformed from bipolarity, neck muscle distrophy, and a lack of childhood. He's done more billets and credits/semester than his age over the course of 4 years, sailed, drank a single beer, ran a dive shop, wrote RP, owned a Pool, and watched 22 seasons of Simpsons in a semester. Got his money's worth from All-State, cleaned p-ways with his shoulder, and mastered the nocturnal schedule with a case of monsters/week. Get outta there when, north tower, BANG, MJ, Office, MIDS, short one, commit crimes, AF puking, wacky-waving-inflatable-arm-flailing tube-man, life, sausage, and code red-ck.

Anne Prisk

Surface Warfare Officer

Somewhere I have never traveled (but to Traverse City I have)
(there) gladly beyond any experience, (dwells a Chinese, Spanish, American native).
"Your eyes have their silence" (she says softly to herself as she aims at the buck with her rifle and squeezes, not pulls, the trigger.) "in your most frail (state your meat will be delicious.") gesture(s) are things which enclose [her], or which [she] cannot touch because they are too near (so she will run to them with her ridiculous cross country skill). [her] slightest look will easily unclose [you,] (and then she takes your a to court.)

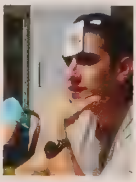
Meilyn Quitiquit

Surface Warfare Officer

Hailing from the beautiful beaches and sunny shores of Kona Hawaii, Meilyn Quitiquit left her hometown paradise to pursue a life of adventure at sea. This green-eye sprinkle lover has conquered the halls of 30th company with style, sass and a Starbucks grande soy chai in hand. It is hard to say what treasures lie in her future, but we know she will most likely own a horse ranch- with a unicorn.

Francisco J. Rivera

USMC Ground



FJ, the always decisive, never frugal, 2nd LT sel can often be found floating above his desk. Always one to diligently practice karate and take full advantage of his reward points… he vowed that as a leader he would always be available for counseling and advice, and thus has rarely left his chair or desk since moving into Bancroft Hall. Perhaps the only acceptable diversion from his post has been his incredibly challenging Farragut field workouts with a company mate, which combine a special form of yoga and intense cardio. A workout that brings him satisfaction 100% of the time, guaranteed.

Peter K. Schmidt

Surface Warfare Officer

He may be a little scrawny, but don't let his chicken legs fool you – You want Peter "Piper" Schmidt in your corner. It's not the size of the dog in the fight, but most definitely the size of the fight in the dog. He may not know how to ride a bike or climb a mountain without falling off of it first, but this old man has the wisdom and experience to get you through this place in one piece. He'll be the first to back you up in a bar, the last to leave you on a street corner in the middle of the night, and will always be your number one partner in crime. Not all mischief and mayhem, this adventure racing, porcupine eating, cliff jumping adrenaline junkie is always on call and true to himself. No one could ask for a better wingman or a better friend.

Melanie F. Simms

Civilian

If butterflies, smiley faces, and glitter were a person they would be Melanie Simms. Yes Brigade, it is humanly possible to be happy ALL the time here at USNA and Melanie is proof of that. Though her collection of Star Trek, Pokémon, and video games rival that of an Asian teenage boy, she also loves camping, Care Bears, and everyone she meets. But don't let this loving exterior fool you, for some reason this chick wants to move to Alaska.

Steven Slaugh

Navy Pilot

Man seeking woman with advanced aerospace engineering degree, or a good cook, good runner, good cleaner, and likes music most do not. Must be willing to travel, tend chickens, pet sallies, and participate in civil war re-enactments. Above all, must agree that Michigan, not PA, is the greatest state in the union. Must appreciate the following numbers (IN ORDER of greatness): 30, 18. If interested, fax 'Stone' at (7 6 2 7) - 8 9- 1 7. Note that this is an international number and distance fees may apply. MUST LOVE COUNTING, NUMBERS, AND FIRSTS.

Steven Snow

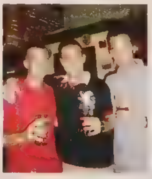
Submarine Warfare

Steve identifies with 3 groups of people at USNA: Group 1 majors (most superior academics in the brigade), Men's Lightweight Crew (most superior athletes/slaves to pain & weight-loss) & a proud member of Dirtieth Company (Dirtiest Company in the Brigade). In essence, Steve is the most superior/dirtiest member of the Brigade, despite his addiction to 'pop.' He is also an active member of a Cleveland Browns Cult & sneaks away most weekends to 'watch Browns games.' After excelling at Leatherneck, & despite being a great candidate for any community, Steve decided to join the Submarine force so he could continue his rigorous workouts.

Michael L. Strauss

Naval Aviation

Hailing from Japan, China, Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, and Taiwan as well as the incredibly safe, small suburb of Commerce, Michigan, a gross misrepresentation of nearby hard-knock Detroit, Michael Lawrence Strauss, son of Dumbo and father of Mighty Mouse was raised by raccoons and trained by real ninjas. Upon successful re-indoctrination into the American way of life in the 6th grade, Squatting Monkey quickly excelled through every adolescent and teenage challenge becoming one with the almighty Zeus. His super-natural ability to garner personnel support for any, literally any operation separates him from the rest. Nonetheless, his close family ties make him a guy to be admired. He also has a girlfriend, unbeknownst to most especially his roommate!



Nathan P. Stump

Navy Pilot

Nate Stump can often be found wooing women with his TV knowledge. The team chatterbox is almost Amish and has found great success in his anger management classes. If he is not getting caught by priests seducing God fearing women in elevators, he can be found with his domestic partner and their adopted son John. Nathan never ceases to impress humanity with his mastery of the English language. Shakespeare and Poe roll in their graves when Nate demonstrates his verbal eloquence. The first Pennsylvania Dutch to soar the skies he'll have to watch his volatile temper. Sons of the Severn.

Mark Veazey

Surface Warfare Officer

Like an ill-timed peanut butter slap, Veaz is always one to entertain. Whether its hoopin on the bball court or making good use of a pause in a game of beer pong, VZ always brings his "A" game. Hailing from Lilburn, the 6'11" giant constantly attracts the attention of strangers, especially when strolling down Main St. with his 3'8" gf. The "physical dynamics" of their relationship continue to astound his closest friends. A loyal member of the roomdawgs, Mark possesses the interesting ability to fart mustard gas. His legacy entails: a strategically placed mole, yellow fever, extra skin, and the ability to resemble an 8 yr old boy.

Viet H. Vo

Submarines

As one may guess from his name, Viet Vo hails from Vietnam. Splendidly dressed, and wildly racist, he was the star of MTV's 2-a-Days and the NAAA. He was moved to tears at a Corey Smith concert. His sub bonus financed our last year at the academy. While typically a generous tipper, he is no longer welcome at Stan and Joes. Despite his talent as a superb SFB linebacker, we wonder if he ever really learned the rules of the game. Forever loyal to his friends, he never managed to slip the beans. Memories: Cali gurls, fedoras, nudity, webcams, "This is my hell", drunk kisses, financial guru, room dawgs, but forever the life of the party.

Ryan Ward

Explosive Ordnance Disposal

Wardior, Beanpole, Little One. Never misses a chance to cite incorrect usage according to Webster's. Irregardless, he fancies being seen drinking any fine Kentucky bourbon, but we all know its Woodchuck he loves. Quite the chauffer/ chaperone in recent times. When it comes to the ladies he always seems to know what to say, a real Casanova. His friends know him to be, quite the wordsmith: the Asian Marshall Mathers. A true friend with invaluable counsel, when he could be reached, though the feat often involves a barrage of texts, missed calls, and voicemails containing choice words. Hailing from the castle spire of 8-4: Satan's lair.

Scott White

USMC Ground

Manufactured of true American steel, the Scott White, dependable as he is vicious, is a utility man capable of accomplishing what should take 40 men. Complete with multiple personalities, just attached what is needed and he'll get 'er done. Recently purchased for use in the United States Marine Corps, there will be a new killer on the loose; pure California dreamin' all the way to Helmand. The Scott White will become the best friend of any in the field, offering little kickback (unless you wake him up), but also the worst enemy to any who dare stand against him. BUY NOW.

Matthew Wittkopp

Submarines

Good thing Matty got subs to support his frugal spending habits. He has great priorities: made a comp over PS, always puts tv ahead of school and still had a 3.88, legal media collection and running above all else. His hetero Jetta, creeper photos, W chariot, Katie Perry obsession, being 'trendy', varsity napper, spelunking buildings, woot, adidas, fun w/ little kids, folder named baker, bubbler bagel and Favre, office in the catacombs, and getting out of mando events for lucky bag was all 'Just a Dream.' He's made great strides with illiteracy, speech impediments, Michael Jackson's death, kim?, checking the shower in fear, sausage, and code red-ck.

When the first call came for you to be a Mid
What are they thinking, not my kid!
My first reaction was an emphatic no
They can't have you, I won't let you go
Hold on and let's think about what this could be
Dad was smart enough to see what I couldn't see
An official visit to the Naval Academy
Discipline and structure is what it would be
A better fit we could not have found
You were definitely Academy bound!
This place was made for someone like you
Accept the offer, and see it through
Leaving you that first day was awfully tough
The following six months were really rough
Four years on the yard
Sometimes it was hard
The knowledge you gained is second to none
This place was absolutely the right fit for you son
These last four years we had a blast
Watching you grow up so fast
Baseball games we came to cheer
We can't believe it's your last year
A young man we dropped off on induction day
An officer in return; you've come a long way
A prouder mom and dad we could not be
We raised a young man who will defend our country!

DRASH®

THE WARFIGHTER'S CHOICE

YOUR STRENGTH. OUR COMMITMENT.

Failure is not an option because we serve the warfighter. Whatever we do has to work every time, all the time. That is why our Deployable Rapid Assembly Shelter (DRASH) and its supporting utilities are tested extensively at military test centers. As a result, you can depend on its quickly deployable, modular design to keep out driving rain, sweltering heat or heavy gusts of wind, in any location.

DRASH is also the most trusted and proven infrastructure deployed by the Navy and Marine Corps today. In use for more than 20 years, DRASH equipment is being deployed by all branches of the U.S. Military, U.S. Federal agencies, NATO Forces, and the armed forces of countless countries. Because we serve you, we have a moral obligation to build the best. That is our commitment. That is our strength.

Colophon

The 118th Volume of the Lucky Bag was published for the USNA by Jostens Printing and Publishing in State College, Pennsylvania. Steve Sweet and George Fold served as local Jostens representatives, Rick Brooks, Jostens Creative Design Consultant, Dee Skelton, In-plant representative, and Kristi Cash, customer service manager. Commander John Freymann served as Lucky Bag Advisor. Ellen Sherman served as Manager of the Midshipmen Welfare Fund. 2011 Lucky Bag editors were MIDN 2/C Bobby Dixon and MIDN 2/C Ashley Spring.

The 2011 Lucky Bag consists of 848 full color pages with a press run of 4500 copies. The Lucky Bag is a 9 X 12 smyth-sewn book printed on 100# gloss paper in four color process. The page edges are gilded with gold leaf. The cover is an original concept and a custom design. The front cover die is fully molded and custom embossed from a multi-layered die. Cover material is Nighthawk 499 with and application of Rich Gold 327 and an overtone rub of Black 326. The cut-away grain is Sundance.
All pages are created using Jostens Yeartech Online on Yearbook Avenue.

Photographs were provided by Jim Rainey of Herff Jones Photography.
Other contributing photographers: Debbie Latta, Josh Ramey, Matthew Whittkopp,
Phil Hoffmann, Tom Connelly, Joshua Flanagan

Pentagon Publishing solicited all commercial advertisements for the 2011 Lucky Bag.

We regret the omission of materials. All groups/sports/clubs were contacted in the first and/or second semester and asked to participate by submitting materials.

All opinions expressed in the Lucky Bag are those of the authors. They are not intended to represent the official polices of the Brigade of Midshipmen, the United States Naval Academy, or the United States Navy. Nothing in this book may be reproduced in any way without the express permission of the Lucky Bag Yearbook staff at the United States Naval Academy.
